

LITTLE THINGS FROM ALL OVER

Just Some Stuff There Isn't Room for On Page Eight

(By the Office Owl)
Same old salutation — can't be helped —

Howdy Folks!
The main reason is that there just wasn't sufficient space on the back page for all the things we had to say.
And being a bit like Santa Claus, it couldn't wait until another day.

Ennyhow, we've been getting letters and things turned in to this scribble that make us feel both good and bad.
Imagine having John McGowan, the alto-toter in the local band, come in with a letter from his offspring what has gone south for the winter.

Woe is me. In this journal we chronicle how Rev. J. E. Beckel gets stuck in a snow-bank on his way to church. In the same sheet we make mention of John's boy, Stewart, getting far enough away from here so that he can't stand the heat of the cook-stove. There ain't no justice!

As you all know Stewart is doing the mechanical end of a trip Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bailey are taking in the Southern States, accompanied by our old friend Tom Montgomery. And according to Stewart's letter home to poppy and the folks, we expect anybody happening by at just the psychological moment will find young Stew.
up a tree throwing down pineapples for Tom and E. G., or else the both of the elder gents sitting under a beach umbrella sucking an orange.
In the letter written on January 3rd, from Bennettsville, S.C., the head mechanic stated he expected to have the car and trailer, plus the occupants, in Florida the next night. Oh, dear! While the Baileys and Tom are enjoying the cool breezes off the water, the rest of us will be eagerly hunting up the hot-air waves from the top of the furnace register.

But we're sure having nice weather here! No two days alike. Hip rubber boots one day so's you can keep out of the water; ice-creepers the next so's you can keep right end up, in case your fragile; a snow shovel the day following. One night too many covers and the next you're almost ready to throw the carpet from the spare bedroom across your feet.
It's nice though.

And then what should happen to take our mind off the miserable things in life? In struts our good friend Mrs.
Potts — back to town for a few days.
And in one breath she says it's cold, but in the next she remarks "Gosh it's nice to be home." Well anyway, we were glad to see her trickle in through the front door. She's been down seeing to it that "Ned" got justice in one of them there American wedding ceremonies. And judging by what she says no bridegroom ever showed signs of being elated about a wedding day any more than he did.
The bride and groom arrived in Bombay, India, just exactly one month after setting out from New York. They lit on Christmas Day. Stopped over for three days in London (probably to interview Anthony Eden on a few details regarding "forin affairs"), and outside of that they kept paddling all the time. It must be a long ways to India. Well, we don't understand the language so we'd better stay here where we're better known. We can at least get on the relief roll if it really comes to the place where we don't want to work.

Mrs. Potts also informed us that a Dr. Green, formerly a native of this district, but now resident in New York, sends his best regards to The Office Owl, and so we just thought we'd tell him through this article that we're glad he enjoys the stuff, and thank him for letting us know.

Guess some of us eggs that didn't get around on election night missed a lot of fun — and peanuts. The band made sure they were the first outfit to "collect" from the newly-appointed officials. After that peanuts was the order of the day. Councillor Joe sold thirty-nine pounds of them. Stock got down so low he had to start clipping them in two to make the pound come out even.

And remember folks, when you start your Christmas shopping, don't go crowding everybody. There's lots of time!

We'll be seein' yuh!

MEN'S CLUB MEET

The regular meeting of St. John's
Men's Club was held in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday night with some twenty of the members in attendance.
Dr. E. A. Carleton, president, occupied the chair, and full reports were heard from the committee in charge of the recent shooting match staged by the Club, as well as other activities. At the conclusion of the business meeting a social time was enjoyed by the members.

BREAK INTO STATION

The local C.N.R. station was broken into some time during Saturday night or Sunday morning, entrance being gained by breaking the glass from one of the windows in front of the station. Mr. E. W. Ormiston, agent, discovered the window broken when he visited the station on Sunday afternoon, and upon investigation found that the till had been forced. However, the thief or thieves were disappeared because there is never any money left in the till over night. It is apparent that the culprits were only in search of money because nothing else was disturbed in any way. The matter was reported to the Railway authorities and provincial and railway police are conducting an investigation.

CROWDED OUT

Due to lack of space in this issue we are very sorry to be forced to carry over several items of interest and some weekly budgets.

CHIMNEY BLAZE

The local Fire Brigade were summoned to the residence of Mr. Guy Bradshaw, John St., on Saturday night about six o'clock, to extinguish a chimney blaze. There was a high wind blowing at the time and the fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed. The use of an extinguisher was all that was needed to quell the blaze, and no damage was done.

TRAINS COLLIDE

Looming suddenly out of a hall and snow storm, which made visibility impossible, a Canadian National Railways passenger train plowed into the rear of an extra freight near St. Hy-acinthe on Saturday night, killing three trainmen and injuring a number of passengers, none seriously.

THOS. CRANSTON IS ELECTED AS REEVE

Defeated W. C. West by a Majority of Twenty-Nine

Stirling voters went to the polls for the first time in four years on Monday in a municipal election, with contests being held for Reeve, Hydro Commissioner and Board of Education.

In the contest for the Reeveship,
Thomas Cranston defeated Ex-Reeve
W. C. West by a majority of twenty-nine. The new Reeve has been a member of Stirling Council for six years, two of which were from 1925 to 1927, and from 1933 to 1937. In 1927 he contested the Reeveship with Mr.
Thos. Montgomery Sr., and was defeated. He has also taken a prominent part in the business life of the community, and has conducted various types of business. At present he is engaged in the drover business previously carried on by his father, the late Jas. Cranston. He is a member of Stirling Lodge No. 239.

For Hydro Commissioner, Walter Jeffrey defeated C. N. Baker, who has been a member of the local commission for the past four years, by a majority of 103. Mr. Jeffrey is a prominent citizen of the village, carrying on a machine agency, and this is his first entry into municipal affairs.
There were four candidates trying for three positions in the contest for the Board of Education, and Dr. H. H.
Alger and Ewart Bailey, two former members, and Dr. E. A. Carleton were successful. J. E. Munro was the fourth candidate.

The results of the election are as
For Reeve:

	Poll	Poll	Total
Cranston	140	109	249
West	139	81	220
Hydro Commission:
Jeffrey	147	137	284
Baker	123	53	181
Ed. of Education:
Alger	170	84	254
Ewart Bailey	231	100	331
Carleton	213	131	344
Munro	109	107	216

FIRST PRACTICE

Some twenty candidates turned out Wednesday afternoon for the first practice of the Stirling High School team at the local arena. The players went through their paces under the watchful eye of Conley Ackers, who has been engaged to coach the local school entry in the Central Hastings Inter-scholastic Hockey League, which comprises teams from Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and Stirling. The locals play their first game on Friday night when they pay a visit to Tweed.
Little is known of the Tweed team but the locals will be seriously handicapped from lack of practice.

During the past rugby season the local High School presented a team that just couldn't seem to be defeated. The boys hope that the hockey line-up will work as well.

TWO WEEKS' GRACE

Two weeks of grace have been granted motorists who are still driving cars with 1936 license plates, the Hepburn Government announced on Monday. If car owners do not purchase new markers on or before Jan.
18, they will find themselves in conflict with the law.

Less than 25 per cent of motorists have availed themselves of the opportunity of adding to the Provincial revenues, according to a statement issued following Cabinet Council. Owners of commercial vehicles and trailers have been given a "break" by the Government, Monday, Feb. 15th, being the date of expiry for new plates. P.C.V. licenses must be procured not later than March 31.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLD MEETING

J. L. Good Appointed to the Library Board — Rink Engaged

A special meeting of the Stirling

H. C. Martin's office on Wednesday afternoon, with Chairman E. Luery presiding and Messrs C. F. Linn, H.
C. Martin, Ewart Bailey, Walter
Wright, Fred T. Ward, J. B. Belshaw and Dr. H. H. Alger in attendance.

The question of renting the arena for the use of the students of the High and Public Schools was discussed and the offer of the rink committee of $25.00 for each school was accepted. Under the agreement the pupils of the High School will have the use of the arena for hockey practice after four o'clock each Wednesday afternoon, while the Public School pupils will use it on Saturday mornings.

Mr. J. L. Good, principal of the High School, was appointed to the Library Board to fill out Mr. R. G.
Lawlor's term of office.

Permission was also granted the pupils of the High School to stage their annual dance in the Community Hall on January 28th.

The report of Mr. Anglin, Inspector of High Schools, was received, but was laid over until the next meeting for consideration.

This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned to meet again on the last Monday of the present month at the High School.

FIRST COUNCIL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the 1937
Village Council will take place, according to Statute, next Monday forenoon, when the members will take the Declaration of Office and adjourn to meet in the Council Chambers at 8 o'clock p.m.

IS REMANDED

George McInroy, Stirling, appeared in Belleville Police Court on Thursday charged with fraud, resulting from the issuing of an alleged worthless cheque. The accused asked for an enlargement. "Didn't you ask for an enlargement the last time you appeared under this charge on the grounds some relation had died?" asked Mr.
Donnan. "Yes, sir," admitted the accused. "Well, did the relation die?"
asked the Crown. "No Sir," was the reply. "I suggest this man be held in custody until he is ready for his trial," asked Mr. Donnan of His Worship.
The request was granted and bail was set at $1,000.

RURAL GAMES DRAW CROWDS

Glen Ross Takes Leadership With Victory over West Huntingdon

The largest crowd of the season was on hand at the Stirling Arena Tuesday night when a doubleheader was supplied by the teams of the Central Hastings Rink Hockey League. Both games provided plenty of action and the fans were thoroughly pleased with the brand of hockey played.

The first game saw Bethel and Foxboro doing battle and West Huntingdon and Glen Ross crossed sticks in the second, with Bethel winning the first game and Glen Ross the second, both by the same scores of 1 to 0.

Play opened slow in the first period and the game was five minutes old before Sims tested Sinfield in the Foxboro net. As the players warmed to their work Bethel put on the pressure and paced by the line of Parks, Culhane and Luppinette, backed Foxboro in behind their own blue line.
Caverly, of Bethel, drew the first penalty, and while he was off Sunderland nearly beat Dickey in the nets, but Faux cleared a rebound just in time. A penalty to Hanna slowed
Foxboro down and while he was off Dickey and Faux worked through and the former bulged the twine for the only goal of the game. He almost repeated on the very next play but missed. Both Lee and Sutherland, of Foxboro, had chances to tie the score, but shot wide. A penalty to Sharp slowed the Foxboro offensive and Bethel took advantage of the odd man to press but the period ended before any further scoring could be done.

At the opening of the second period
Foxboro assumed the offensive with Sims and Lee being prominent on the attack. A penalty to Culhane gave them a chance, but Parks, star centre of Bethel, gave a sparkling exhibition of puck ragging to kill the penalty.
Foxboro were having the better of the territorial play in this period but the Bethel defence proved too much for them to crack, with Dickey in the nets being outstanding. Tapps drew a penalty for swinging his stick too high shortly before the period closed. In the final period the Bethel team were satisfied to play a defensive game and Foxboro carried the play, but spoiled many of their chances by over-anxiousness. Shooting the puck down the ice at practically every opportunity, Bethel kept the Foxboro attack disorganized, although Sims and Lee tested Dickey with a number of hard drives. Feelings commenced to run high and Park and Bleckman were waved to the side, to be followed by Sharp, who took a penalty for playing the puck after losing his stick.

Should Have Remuneration

In scanning the pages of a number of exchanges which have come to our desk in recent weeks, we have noted the fact that the members of practically every municipal council in this district receive remuneration for their services to the municipality throughout the year. In fact we have been informed that Marmora and Stirling are the only municipalities in the County where the Reeve and Councillors do not vote themselves an honorarium. And after all—why not? These men give of their time and ability in carrying on the business of the municipality and are entitled to something for their services. The employees of any business concern are paid for carrying on its affairs and it is only right that those who conduct the business of a municipality should receive some remuneration besides the honour and glory of holding office. Many comments have been heard in Stirling this past couple of weeks about the dearth of candidates seeking public office and it is just possible that herein lies a solution to the problem. There are many citizens who hesitate from accepting public office with its accompanying loss of time from business, and all kinds of criticism, who, if assured of some remuneration for their services, might offer themselves for such service. Year after year interest in civic affairs is lagging and something is needed to create new interest or it will not be long before it will be impossible to secure men to fill the positions. This is something that the members of Council might well take into consideration during the present year. The number of urban municipalities wherein members of Council receive a small remuneration for their services is gradually on the increase and we venture the opinion that it will not be long before all councils are paid.

The Transient Problem

With winter days here again the number of transients paying a visit to this village is on the increase and complaints have been heard from a number of residents of the village about being pestered by these knights of the road for meals and money. Each year the same trouble is experienced, but so far no solution has been found for it. The municipality provides a place for these travellers to pass the night, but no provision is made for feeding them. Consequently they go about town getting a meal wherever they can. There probably isn't anyone who objects to giving an occasional meal or some money to these fellows because many of them are very deserving cases, but the trouble is that it doesn't stop at that. If a person accommodates these callers the word is passed along to others and the residence of the benefactor becomes a regular point of call for all hands. It is not natural that any citizen would put up with this for any length of time or should he be expected to. It is not the fair thing that only a few citizens should be called upon to feed all the transients that may come to the village. We suggest that if Council decides to give them lodging, that they should also provide at least one meal, and then see that they get out of town without bothering the citizens. This is a question that is entirely up to the Village Council and the members of Council might well discuss it at their inaugural meeting next week and make some decision on it. If the transients are to be fed in Stirling, then the Council should do it and charge the costs of doing so among all the taxpayers. On the other hand, if Council decides against feeding them, the Village Constable should be instructed to see that they keep moving when they reach here, and not allow them to panhandle along our streets or from house to house.

Municipal Elections

Stirling's first municipal election for the past four years was held on Monday, and as a result this Village has a new Reeve, a new Hydro Commissioner and a new member of the Board of Education.

In the contest for Reeve Mr. W. C. West, who has served the municipality faithfully and well for the past seven years, five of them in the office of Chief Magistrate, was defeated by Mr. Thomas Cranston, another veteran in municipal service, by a majority of twenty-nine votes. The new Reeve has served six years around the Council Board, during which time he has always worked for the interests of the municipality and there is every reason to expect that he will continue to give such service. To fill the position left vacant on the Council by Mr. Cranston's advancement to the Reeve's Chair, Mr. Frank Stapley has been added. He also may be expected to give dependable and sane consideration to the problems that may arise in the coming year.

On the Hydro Commission Mr. Walter Jeffrey will replace Mr. C. N. Baker, who has been a member of this body for the past four years, during which time he has rendered good service. This is Mr. Jeffrey's first entry into Municipal affairs and his election by a substantial majority may be taken as a true indication of his popularity among the ratepayers.

In the race for members of the Board of Education, Dr. H. H. Alger and Mr. Ewart Bailey, two old members, were re-elected to office, while Dr. E. A. Carleton succeeded to the third position and will replace Mr. F. T. Ward, who retired. Mr. J. E. Munro was the fourth candidate and was defeated by thirty-eight votes. Dr. Carleton, the new member of the Board, is one of the prominent citizens of the village, having held office in various local organizations, and should prove an able administrator of the business of the Board of Education.

CURRENT COMMENT

The mild weather of the past two weeks accompanied by rain and sleet has made the streets and highways dangerous for both the pedestrians and motorists. While many a driver has experienced the thrill of having his car turn completely around on the icy road, there have been few accidents and those that did occur were only minor. The highway workmen have been prompt to sand the dangerous spots and their action has no doubt been responsible to a large degree for the absence of serious accidents in the district.

The coming of the New Year has seen the usual mad rush by motorists for their 1937 license plates and operators' permits, and the same old complaints are heard from local and distant residents, of having to go to some outside centre for their markers. At different times in the past we have taken up the cudgel on behalf of district motorists and have urged the appointment of a license issuer in Stirling, but so far the Department at Toronto has seen fit to overlook this village in this regard. Just why there has been such discrimination no one seems to know, but there is no doubt that the appointment of an issuer here would be welcomed by a large number of motorists.

From reports appearing in the press of the results of votes taken in a number of municipalities on the question of daylight saving, it would appear that the trend is away from the advanced time idea. There was a time, only a few years ago, when practically every urban centre of any size adopted daylight saving during the summer months, but each year there has been a lessening of their number and now only several of the larger cities are in favour of it. While the increased number remaining on standard time will make for less confusion, as long as the larger centres adopt daylight saving the travelling public are bound to be inconvenienced. The only satisfactory solution to the problem is a provincial law either making it universal or banning it altogether.

Hockey fans of Stirling and district who are not attending the games staged at the Stirling Arena by the teams in the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League are missing some high class exhibitions of the winter pastime. This league has been functioning for a number of years, and while we dislike throwing any bricks at the class of hockey of other years, we believe that the boys are putting up a much better brand of game this year, and that the teams are more evenly matched. In the absence of an intermediate team in the Village, which is to be regretted, these games provide the sporting fraternity of the community their only chance to witness hockey. So journey down to the arena on Tuesday or Friday nights and lend your support to your favourite team. We are sure that your presence will be appreciated and that you will enjoy the games. How about it?

Announcement has been made of an extension of time for motorists to procure their new licenses, with Monday, January 18th, being set as the dead line. In other words, the Provincial Government needs the money and is not going to wait until several months have elapsed before getting it. There is the usual cry from many that money is too scarce at this time of year to purchase motor licenses and as a result many cars will be laid up until the Spring. The suggestion has been made that the Department should change the date for renewing licenses to a time when motorists are free from paying the year's taxes, or from buying fuel, heavier clothing, etc., for the winter months. If this were done many who now are forced to put their car up until such time as they can afford a license would continue to drive their car, and the Department would benefit from the tax collected on the additional gas sold. It would also create additional business for the garagemen during a period when business usually slackens, particularly in the rural sections. Until such time as the Department makes some change there will always be dissatisfaction with the present system. So far, only about twenty-five per cent. of the total number of motorists in the province have secured their new licenses, hence the action of the Department in granting an extension of time. Operators of commercial vehicles and trailers have until Monday, Feb. 15th, to procure licenses, while those requiring P.C.V. licenses have until March 31st.

What Others Say

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

(Kingston Whig-Standard)
What is wanted at the present time is a frank, fearless statement from the Government telling "the people the exact facts regarding the power situation. The public is not interested in private conversations between Mr. McCullagh and Mr. F. D. L. Smith or Mr. McCullagh and Premier Hepburn. It is interested, however, and vitally interested, in a public statement from either the prime minister or the chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario. Here in Kingston we know to our sorrow that prior to the negotiation of the Quebec power contracts by the Henry Government there was a decided shortage of power in this area. Eastern Ontario has lagged behind Western Ontario in industrial development because of shortage of power. We saw the Gatineau power taken right past our door to the city of Toronto. When the Ontario Government was able to make a deal with Beauharnois for delivery of power at the Ontario border at $15.00 a h.p. The Whig Standard was strongly in favour of it and congratulated the Government upon making the contract. What the people of Eastern Ontario want to know today is just where do they stand.

COPY

(Quinte Sun)

In sending copy into newspaper offices "what a break" it would be for editors if correspondents would make sure the names of people and places were clearly written. Spelling, too, is very important, particularly the names of people. The Macphersons do not like the name given as McPherson, and the Callaghans resent Callahan. Typewriters are not in general use outside business offices, but it would be a great thing if they were, for, even when names are correctly written, the "a" and the "n" in much very good penmanship are so alike that printers have to do a great deal of guessing. Nearly everyone makes slips in punctuation and spelling of quite ordinary words. These do not worry the editor—it is his business to take care of them. But let a correspondent report a visit of someone not well known in the community, and the name of the party and the place from which he came is unfamiliar, and then an "a" that looks like an "o", or a "n" that looks like an "u", can be the cause of trouble. It would be too much to ask all correspondents to print names, as is required on income tax papers, but we would request that they do be careful in both the writing and the spelling of proper names. The annoyance it would prevent would, indeed be very, very considerable.

CANADIANS PAY TREASURY $1,000,000 TAXES DAILY

Canadians are paying into the National Treasury of the country at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, for every day of the year.

Estimates of national revenue for current fiscal year indicate total collections in the neighbourhood of $370,000,000 according to National Revenue Department figures.

This includes all taxable sources, each of which will, when the books close on March 31, show a marked increase over previous years and probably the best year since before the depression.

Income tax collections this year will be close to $100,000,000, a boost of about $20,000,000 over last fiscal year. A larger item, however, is the eight per cent. sales tax expected to bring in about $105,000,000. This will be approximately $25,000,000 more than last year.

Excise duties and customs receipts will probably each run to between $80,000,000 and $85,000,000 with a grand total of collections falling little short of the $370,000,000 mark.

BANCROFT LUMBERMEN ACQUIRE LARGE TIMBER LIMITS AT BRACEBRIDGE

Now owners of what is believed to be one of the largest privately owned timber sections in Ontario, Hubbel & Son, well known lumbermen of Bancroft, have purchased the timber holdings of the J. D. Shier Lumber Company, of Bracebridge, according to the current issue of Canada Lumberman.

The block includes the township of McClintock and part of Livingstone and Lawrence, a total of nearly 100 square miles.

The limits are estimated to contain over 100 million feet of standing timber of which about seventy-five per cent is birch and maple.

During the past season Hubbel and Son estimate their yearly cut at about 6,000,000 feet at Bancroft, and during the latter part of 1937 may move headquarters to Huntsville. This has not been decided definitely, however, owing to the fact that the company still owns approximately 12,000,000 feet in the present limits in Cardiff and Chandos Townships, according to the announcement.

FIRE DESTROYS COBBOURG CHURCH

Six families were driven to the street in Cobourg on Sunday night when fire destroyed the 100-year-old St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The flames started in the church and quickly spread to the surrounding residences.

It was believed the fire started by an overheated furnace. There was no sign of the flames when the congregation left the church at eight o'clock after the evening service. A strong northwest wind made the task of the firefighters difficult. They were on the job shortly after the outbreak, but in a few minutes the flames had shot completely out of control. The Port Hope Fire Department responded to an appeal for help from the Cobourg authorities when the flames raged out of control and threatened destruction of the homes.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

A united effort on the part of Western Ontario counties to start a program of conservation and reforestation and to put a stop to indiscriminate cutting of woodlands will be commenced at once as a result of a large-attended gathering in the city of London on Thursday, December 17th. This meeting was sponsored by Mr. W. H. Porter, editor, and Mr. Ernest Weld, publisher, of the Farmers' Advocate, and it was attended by Wardens, Agricultural Representatives, municipal officers and newspapermen from the following nine counties of Western Ontario: Essex, Kent, Lambton, Huron, Perth, Middlesex, Oxford, Elgin and Norfolk Counties. Messrs. E. J. Zavitz, R. S. Duncan, F. S. Newman and J. A. Carroll, representing the Ontario Departments of Forestry and Agriculture, were also present.

The meeting was a sequel to a previous gathering held under the auspices of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce in Simcoe, when the seriousness of the situation locally was discussed and when representatives of other counties expressed themselves as deeply concerned over the denudation of the land, the lack of moisture and shortage of water supply. The London meeting crystallized the opinions of men from all parts of Western Ontario who have given serious thought to the subject. It resulted in the formation of a Central Conservation Committee comprising three representatives from each of the nine counties, with a Provisional Executive comprising W. H. Porter of Middlesex as chairman, Monroe Landon of Norfolk as vice-chairman and F. S. Thomas, Elgin representative as secretary, together with six directors as follows: Angus McKenney, Essex; G. H. Wilson, Kent; Roy Downie, Lambton; R. J. White, Perth; Ian McGee, Huron; William Lampman, Oxford. It was decided to issue an early invitation to the remaining five counties of Western Ontario to join in the movement.

The Executive will meet in the near future to formulate a program of action and submit it to the Central Committee shortly after the New Year. One of the principal objectives will be to stimulate new interest in reforestation throughout this area of Ontario. It was pointed out that these are large tracts of submarginal and waste land that should be planted to young trees. One drawback has been that the land-owner in undertaking to reforest his land faces the prospect of increasing taxation. In this connection the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce has already asked for an amendment to the Assessment Act which would provide that land under tree growth should be assessed on a basis comparable with that imposed on neighbouring non-planted land of similar soil and site conditions. They ask that this amendment be made optional with the county and that it come into force only in such counties as would pass a by-law validating it.

The question of the farm woodlot received close consideration at the London meeting and a campaign of education among the farmers for scientific management of woodlots is in prospect. It was felt that every farmer should aim to maintain at least 10 per cent of his farm as a woodlot. The Government has already realized the importance of such a practice by granting exemption from municipal taxation for forced woodlots up to that amount. It was pointed out that a farm with a good woodlot is easier to sell and brings more money than when minus such a woodlot. It provides fuel for the home and lumber for buildings and repairs. It gives work in the winter, tending to relieve unemployment. In fact the scientifically managed woodlot area may be as profitable as any other phase of farm operations.

The indiscriminate cutting of young trees in farm woodlots was heartily deplored. This practice has grown to considerable proportions, especially in the tobacco-growing districts where fuel for kilns is required. The land is being denuded, streams shrivelling up and water wells going dry. The proposal of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce that legislation be passed to prohibit the cutting of any tree under 10 inches, two feet from the ground, without permission of a county forester, is likely to receive serious consideration by the new Central Committee. Drought conditions throughout Western Ontario in the last four or five years have made farmers and county officials attentive to the fact that continuous removal of our forests without proper replacement of young trees is imperilling the future of agriculture.

County councils will be asked to lend their active support to the new program, particularly in the way of undertaking to reforest land on their own account, as county councils of Elgin, Norfolk and Middlesex have already done. Norfolk has 1,000 acres of land owned and reforested by the county. It is felt that each county should purchase and reforest each year as much as 100 acres of land, until all available cheap land is taken up.

The Central Committee will also undertake to disseminate literature in the schools of Western Ontario in order to acquaint children with the necessity of forest conservation and planting of trees. Demonstration woodlots in connection with each rural school will be urged and essay contests on reforestation and conservation be issued by the Government and added to the curriculum in the rural schools of Ontario.

Emphasis was also laid by speakers on the importance of not draining land that is not suited to cultivation. These tracts often form moisture reservoirs intended as insurance against times of drought and it is important that they be left in their natural states.

Recommendations adopted at the London meeting included:

1. That existing county-owned farms not suitable for farming be reforested.
2. That a survey of river banks, swamps, hillsides and ravines be made to determine which lands were to be reforested.
3. That an educational program on conservation be circulated.
4. That an amendment be made to the Assessment Act whereby land under tree growth be taxed assessment valuation rather than on the basis of tree crop grown on it.

Frank Newman of the St. Williams Reforestation Station declared that approximately 12 million trees were planted in Ontario last year. "We are on the eve of a tremendous boom in reforestation," he predicted. "Naturally it will cost money to maintain all the plantations, but if you will visualize the profit and the work created for countless men by a comparatively small expenditure, you will see the necessity of such work."

E. J. Zavitz, provincial forester, declared that so-called waste land can produce a revenue of $5 per acre annually if tree-planting is carried on.

Ever since its organization in 1925 the Norfolk County Chamber of Commerce has had as one of its chief objectives, the preservation and conservation of the farm woodlot and the reforestation of waste land in the County.

1. The Farm Woodlot.

Except in unusual circumstances such as high priced land for garden or fruit purposes, every farmer should aim to maintain at least 10 per cent of his farm as a woodlot. This percentage of course will vary somewhat from farm to farm. The advantage to the state in maintaining this percentage has been recognized by granting an exemption from municipal taxation for fenced woodlots up to that amount.

Outside of the desirability of such a policy from an aesthetic standpoint, the many features of which are apparent to all nature lovers, we believe the policy a commendable one from an economic standpoint.

A farm with a good woodlot is easier to sell and brings more money than one without. It provides fuel for the home and lumber for the buildings and repairs. It gives work in the winter, tending to relieve unemployment. In fact the scientifically managed and properly cared for woodlot may be regarded as winter agriculture and the woodlot area may be as profitable as any other part of the farm.

2. Reforestation of Waste Land

This is an entirely different project from the farm woodlot. It involves buying up cheap land, planting it to trees, and waiting 20 to 25 years for a return on the investment. (Christmas trees may bring an earlier return.) Several Norfolk citizens have purchased land and have had it reforested. For their enterprise they find themselves penalized by an increased taxation due to the increased value of the land on account of tree growth.

The Assessment Act reads as follows:

1 (h) "Land," "Real Property" and "Real Estate" shall include: All tree and underwood growing upon land.

Under this clause a landowner contemplating the planting of forest trees (or orchard) faces an annually increasing tax which no other growing crop entails. The Norfolk Chamber of Commerce has for years been advocating an amendment to the Assessment Act which in effect would work out as follows:

Land under tree growth shall be taxed on an assessment valuation on a basis comparable with that imposed on neighbouring non-planted land of similar soil and site conditions. We have asked that this amendment be made optional with the County and that it come into force in such counties as would pass a by-law validating it. The Norfolk County Council has already endorsed this proposal.

Educational Work

With a view to inculcating in the minds of our children a love for trees it is our objective to have a small demonstration woodlot in connection with each rural school. This, of course, is only practicable where land can be secured at a reasonable price. The County Council has agreed to pay one half of the cost of additional land. Several townships have agreed to pay one quarter the cost and a government grant of $25 is available, on recommendation of the school inspector, for additional grounds.

The Norfolk Chamber of Commerce offered a prize of $5 in each Township for schools entering in 1936 for the best planted and cared for plantation. A similar prize will be given the same entrants in 1937. Also a grand prize of $25 for the best planted and cared for plantation in the County at the end of 1937. Judging will take into consideration the size of the plantation, variety of trees most suitable, care and cleanliness after planting, protection from animals and percentage of survival.

County Council Activity

The Norfolk Chamber of Commerce has supported the reforestation policy of the Norfolk County Council whereby 1,000 acres of land is now owned and planted by the County. We believe 100 acres should be purchased and planted by the County until all available cheap land is taken up.

Compulsory Legislation

Alarmed by the ruthless destruction of wooded areas in Norfolk purchased for the purpose of supplying fuel for tobacco kilns, and which is being completely denuded of all forest growth, the Simcoe Rotary Club held a meeting in November 1936 for the purpose of considering this question. A committee was appointed to draft a policy to cope with this situation and present it to the proper authorities. The committee has met and a draft bill is now being prepared embodying the principle of not allowing the cutting of any trees under 10 inches, two feet from the ground, without permission of a county forester.

While we do not like too much prohibitory and compulsory legislation, it would seem that the gravity of the situation demands some such drastic measure.

Seed Growers Plan Display

Delegates to several agricultural conventions to be held in Toronto February 9 to 12, will have an opportunity to get more than the germs of good ideas.

Members of the Ontario Seed Growers' Association are planning a seed display, which will be in position throughout the week. This exhibit will be quite different from those seen at fall and winter lots are shown. In contrast each sample in this display should be identical with commercial lots of similar quality for sale on the farms represented.

Prospective seedsmen and others interested in the highest quality of farm crop seeds will have an opportunity of inspecting the best available in Ontario and of contacting the farmers growers, many of whom are expected to be in attendance.

As good seed is the first requisite of a satisfactory crop, the members of this Association are to be congratulated on this progressive method of placing their products before prospective purchasers.

Mining in Canada, now second largest of the country's industries, gives employment to 80,000 workmen and has a production value of over $300,000,000 per annum.

As an accompaniment of this great and growing mining industry, Canada is building up a smelting and refining industry of world importance. There are now huge plants in Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Manitoba. These plants produce:

Copper • Nickel • Zinc • Lead • Cobalt • Iron
Ferro-alloys • Gold • Silver • Bismuth • Radium

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellar entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid, Mrs. V. Reid and daughter Rosa, on New Year's Day.

Mrs. J. M. Geen has suffered quite a severe sickness. Dr. Welch is in attendance.

Mr. B. D. Brough and son Arthur paid a flying visit to Mr. Fred Goodman at Meaford, Prince Edward County.

Mr. Leonard Collins had a close shave, just as near as a cat is to its whisker. While driving his car a stray bullet passed through the glass in the door of the car and went out through the other glass on the opposite side. We hope whoever is using a gun will be more careful in the future. Glass can be replaced, but a life cannot.

Master Gerald Osborne of Madoc, and Benson Kellar, of Moira, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kellar on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael McEvoy, of Western Canada are visiting friends in our burg. Michael is better known by his chums around here as (Mick), being one of ten brothers whose names were well known in the old school days as follows: Tom, Fan, Mick, Jim, Dan, Will, Dean, Phil, Joe and George, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McEvoy. All are living except Joseph who was accidentally killed on the railroad some time ago. All the boys have gone out into the world to make their fortunes. Phillip is still on the old homestead here. The joys and sorrows of other days are gone but not forgotten. No doubt some of the school boys and girls will remember the day the teacher caught one of the boys talking in school and put him on the spot as to what were and are you talking about. He confessed with knees knocking together "Sure and I was just after telling him who was at our bee the other day."

All right, the teacher said, go ahead and name them. So with trembling voice he started to name them as follows: There was Black Frank and Black Franks, Frank and Black Franks, Jim and Black Franks, Tom and Little Owen, Little Owen's Paddy, Little Owen's Sam, Big Owen, Big Jim and Big Jim's Jim, Big Jim's Paddy, Red Jim and Red Jim's Jim, Jim, Red Jim's Ned and Big Jim Collins; Big Jim's Jim, and kept going strong for in those good old days when they had a bee they could count on from sixty to seventy-five men to come. Many amusing tales were told and those happy days are not forgotten when those old forefathers and mothers were blazing the trail for the generations to follow. Amusing indeed would be the past history of this burg, if written true to life and not only amusing, but very instructive and interesting, of how our fathers and

TO THE VOTERS OF STIRLING

Thanks most heartily for your very true support of me at the polls last Monday.

In many ways it makes me feel good to be relieved of the responsibility, and while dropping out of public life for the present, I do so with the very best regards for everyone.

I am very grateful to you for your loyal support, the undivided trust and confidence you have entrusted in me as one of your public servants in the last eight years. I have given of my best and trust in you that it may have been appreciated.

While I intend to maintain my interest in the Public Welfare of Stirling and surrounding district, may I offer my hearty congratulations to all the elected public officers, and hope that during their terms of office they may enjoy the pleasures which have been mine in the past.

So here is hoping for Stirling that the 1937 Council will be far superior to any of the past, and wishing for them the best in success; also the support and co-operation of the citizens which any Council needs and deserves.

Again thanking you for past honours, I remain mothers wrought with their hands and a few tools hewing down the forests and building up well ordered farm homes training the boys and girls to make this place a better place to live. To us they threw the torch. Fellows, are we carrying out the high ideals they hoped for?

Yours truly,
WM. C. WEST

Remember boys how hard they fought. They toiled for us both day and night. They prayed that in the future we would trust in God and do the right.

Beckel acted as chairman and the following programme was enjoyed: solo: "The Wedding of Jack and Jill", by Bobbie Elliott; readings, Miss Laurene Scott and Mrs. P. D. MacMullen; solo, with guitar accompaniment, Miss Elda McMullen. Miss Helen Farrell then read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Preston — Dear Lauretta and Ted:

Your friends have congregated here this evening to wish you the utmost joy in your matrimonial excursion. Both of you have practically grown up in this community and have been very well and favourably known, so it is indeed a pleasure to learn that you have seen fit to continue life together in these surroundings.

Lauretta, you have always been an active and willing worker in our church, taking your place at the organ, in choir, in League or in Sunday School; always ready to do your bit with a cheery smile.

As for Ted, his friends all term him a "Regular Fellow."

And so as you embark together on the sea of matrimony may the great Pilot of all Pilots guide you safely and surely to the Port beyond the Plains. It is only natural that the sailing will not always be smooth and easy, but with a laugh on the lips and a song in the heart, the petty problems of life will soon be overcome.

Its curious what a sight of good a little thing will do.

How you can stop the fiercest storm when it begins to brew.

An' take the sting from what commenced to rankle when 'twas spoke.

By keepin' still an' treatin' it as if it was a joke.

Yell find that we can fill a place with smiles instead of tears.

An' keep the sunshine gleamin' through the shadows of the years.

By jes' laughin'!

With these few gifts goes the unalloyed and sincere wish of health, happiness and prosperity for this New Year just begun, and for many more to follow.

Signed on behalf of Bethel Community — Helen Farrell, Ray Sine, Laurene Scott and Lola Heath.

Both the bride and the groom responded, thanking everyone for their kind wishes and also for the many lovely gifts that were later opened.

Also inviting all to come and visit them in their new home.

HE DARED NOT MOVE IN BED

Nights were Torture Through Lumbago

Only those who have suffered from lumbago know how exceedingly painful it can be. And when they discover a remedy for this complaint they are anxious to pass on the good news to other sufferers. Let this man tell you how Kruschen brought his relief:

"I had a bad attack of lumbago. When I got into bed I had to stay in that position — I could not move for pain. I didn't know what to take or what to do. I was advised to try Kruschen Salts and I am very grateful I did so. After taking a few doses I felt relief, and after taking one large bottle, I am glad to say that my lumbago had entirely gone, and I have not had the slightest trace of it coming back."

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness, and so help to keep the blood stream pure.

Suggests Indian Control For Canada's Wild Life

Grey Owl and his wife, Annaharo, in front of their home in Prince Albert National Park, Sask.

The proper people in whose hands to place the care of wild animals, according to Grey Owl, famous Indian naturalist, is the Indian. Grey Owl, who spoke before a Book Fair audience in Toronto recently, viewed the Indian as a revived race, working in Canada, but not living for Canada.

"The Indian's place lies in work connected with the administration, protection and proper control of our natural resources, particularly in connection with wild life," he said. "At these," he continued, "the Indian is expert and his technical knowledge, accumulated through thousands of years of study, could be of immense value in helping to save Canada's wilderness country from destruction. At present they are suffering a great loss from lack of proper knowledge."

make excellent guardians of wild animals, a task he himself has personally undertaken in connection with beaver, and therefore would aid materially in their preservation. The excellent picture of Grey Owl and his wife with their forest home, shows how the Indian naturalist has retained the natural environment around his cabin.

"SON GROWS UP"

By Harry M. Moore

A STORY OF THE LUMBER CAMPS

CHAPTER TWO

With a shiver Tommy Benson awoke from a cramped position in the dimly lit coach which tagged the end of the logging train. Some were up in front, making bold attempts to drag the heavy train up a series of crooked grades, the light wood-burning locomotive barked and hissed importantly.

Tommy shaded his eyes and pressed his face against the steamed glass in the window. He saw dark blobs of patchy black on limitless patches of milky white — miles and miles of it. The Rapid River country! The first colours of approaching dawn were in the sky. Tommy looked at his watch. He couldn't be very far from his destination.

The car lurched suddenly as brakes set, an ox-shouldered conductor swayed out of the baggage car ahead. "Here you!" he intimated brusquely. "Better get ready to jump! We don't stop here."

When the time came, Tommy jumped. He pulled himself and his pack sack out of four feet of snow and followed the departing train with glowering eyes.

"Ugly devil!" he snorted. "He must hate himself. I'll — I'll report him! No — I won't either. Probably this is some of the experience that dad was talking about. Poor old dad! Like all men of a certain age he is so painfully positive he knows a lot... Well, standing here won't get me anywhere. Wonder where is that path they were telling me about? Eventually he found it — a crooked trail debouching from the railway track across a little beaver meadow, up a steep hill into the heavy woodland. Tommy followed the outlines of that silent trail with wondering eyes, then he squared his shoulders and set his face doggedly.

Two hours later, with the button at the back of his flannel shirt open, he broke into a large, square clearing and dropped his muscle-cramping load in front of a small log building. The word "Office" in crude letters was across the top of the door.

Tommy looked about him curiously. He heard raucous voices inside the office. Puzzled, he pushed the door open and stepped inside.

The small building, air putrid with the stale smoke of foul tobacco, was crowded with camp workmen. With the flat office desk between them, four men were engaged in a game of poker.

Players and spectators gave Tommy a casual glance of utter indifference, then turned to the game again. Tommy's eyes flashed dangerously. There could be no plausible excuse for this unseemly conduct of Benson Company men during working hours.

"Where's the foreman?" he flared. A man sitting at the end of the table nearest the door jerked a smug thumb over his shoulder. "Sleep-camp," he said curtly, almost snarling.

The door slammed behind him, in a dozen long strides Tommy crossed to the sleep-camp and stormed inside. He stopped. In a bottom bunk, snoring heavily, sprawled a man. One panther-like stroke and Tommy glared at him. The sleeper was a swarthy, hairy-chested giant, built on blacksmith lines.

Tommy reached down and unceremoniously grasping the sleeper by the collar of his red flannel shirt, jerked him to a sitting position.

"Nathaniel!" stormed the rudely awakened foreman, rubbing his eyes with a massive hairy paw. "Get away from me!" he commanded, and with an unexpected sweep of his mighty arm he bowled Tommy aside. "Now," he snarled murderously, "What's all this about — is this your birthday, or is the shack on fire — who are you?"

Tommy slipped out of his mackinaw and kicked it aside.

"You're going to find out who I am and what I'm here for," he stormed. "Something has been wrong at this camp for some time and from what I can see already, you're it. Get up out of that, you excuse of a man, you big tub of grease, you — you —"

"So you want fight, eh?" the foreman questioned sliding out of the bunk into his heavy boots. "You want fight, w-e-l-l my middle name's fight and it's going to be too bad what I'm going to do to some mammy's pet who has come looking for it."

Tommy Benson hit him. It was a quick left hand sock under the jaw. The foreman's head shot back, his feet shot up. Had it not been for the board dividing upper and lower bunks he might have turned a summersault.

Tommy stepped back and waited for him. The foreman righted himself and came out in a crouch. There was a look of surprise on his face which quickly changed to one of mixed uncertainty.

"You lucky young fool!" he growled and rushed, head down. Tommy jabbed his head up again, but the foreman's tremendous strength bore him inside Tommy's arms and an ugly up-hand swipe opened Tommy's left cheek. Had that blow found his jaw, Tommy knew that the fight would have ended right there.

Tommy tied up the foreman's arms. It was a battle of brains against brute strength and awkwardness. But back at the Y, Tommy Benson had had a good schooling against some rough customers and he had been in just as tough a place before. The foreman was too strong and heavy for him and he was dangerously awkward. He could hit from any angle and there was a painful jar in every blow.

Tommy Benson had taken several hard wallops before he realized that his only chance for victory was to keep the foreman off him with long straight jabs, paying particular attention to his eyes in the hopes that he could close them, and using his feet to carry him out of danger.

Tommy Benson won that fight. He won it on his nerve. He won it on the famous Benson spirit of never say die.

Almost blinded, the foreman began to hold on at every opportunity, breathing in gasps through open blood stained lips. He was a fit target for Tommy's carefully reserved right, and when he hurtled backwards to the floor, Tommy was on top of him. When the foreman failed to get up, Tommy shook himself.

"And that's that!" he panted. But Tommy Benson was not finished. Reaching down he jerked the badly battered foreman to his feet, pushed him to the door, opened it and put his heavy boot in his back. The foreman sprawled forward.

As he fell, the office spewed its poker crowd. Tommy watched them as they silently gathered around their fallen leader. Not a word did they utter. They appeared dumb with surprise, as indeed they were, for McCullister, the foreman, and a Glen-garry Scotchman, had never had to take it before.

Tommy watched them for a moment and then squared his shoulders.

"Benson Company men!" he began through puffed lips that made enunciation imperfect, "I want a word with you."

The men gave him an attentive hearing.

"You are being provided with lots of good food. Your working conditions are unexcelled. Your wages are on a par with anything paid on the Rapid River. It has been entrusted to you to make Camp Seven the best in the Benson system. But you have not kept your trust. Camp Seven is held up to ridicule as the worst camp in the logging country. And why? I'll tell you. You are disloyal to the man who puts his John Henry Hancock on your pay cheques."

It was the longest speech Tommy Benson had ever made in his life and he stopped for breath. "I'm Tommy Benson," he continued, "I'm the Big Boss's only son, but even if I weren't, even though I were only a mere clerk for the firm, I would consider it my duty to report what I found when I arrived here a short time ago. The very idea of you men playing cards and your foreman asleep at a time when you should have been at work is beyond me. But I'm not going to put the blame on you. I'm going to shoulder all the responsibility on the man who has been in charge here. You're not going to see him around here any more. He's leaving as soon as he packs his turkey and he won't come back. Where's the clerk?"

A weak-faced young man stepped forward timidly.

"What's your name?" Tommy snapped.

"Jackson, sir," the clerk answered.

"Well, Jackson, you must take your medicine. It was your duty to keep head office informed on what was going on here. But you didn't. Better throw your things together. It's a long walk from here to the flag station and the foreman may be needing your company."

Tommy turned to the men again. "Now listen to me, you fellows! Are you going to help me make Camp Seven the best in the system, or are you going to pull out and let me get a gang that will? I'll give you half an hour to decide. And when you do, you'll find me in the office."

He pushed past them to the office. The door slammed shut behind him.

CHAPTER THREE

Tommy Benson slumped wearily into the office chair. Now that all the excitement was over, he was muscle stiff and body sore. And to add to his discomfort, to his pain, he had a lousy mental problem that required immediate solution. What would the men do? Unquestionably there existed some sort of camaraderie between them and the foreman, in which case they would no doubt pack up and demand their pay.

But Tommy Benson was a determined man. What if they did leave him? Their places could easily be filled. The labour market was glutted — thousands of good, strong young men walked the city streets and appealed for bread. But a man in camp, ready to go to work at a moment's notice, was worth a dozen men two days' travel away. It would take no inconsiderable time to round up a gang and bring them in. And time just now was invaluable.

But the men did not leave Tommy Benson in the hole his imagination had already placed him in. Forty-five minutes after he had spoken to them they trailed into the office. They were cowed, sheepish and ready to pledge themselves to make amends if given another chance. But! There was one thing that must be clearly understood before they went to work. They wanted and demanded twenty-five cents increase a day.

"In heaven's name!" Tommy ejaculated. "What for?"

"McCracken pays it," the spokesman advised him.

"McCracken?" Tommy's memory was stirring. "You mean Donald McCracken? Very well. I'll stand for the raise, but remember, you guys, you'll do no more soldiering around here. As for this pelican McCracken I'm going to show him a few things before I'm through with him. Now then, men —" he came to the point. "I want a good foreman and I want him quick! Where'll I find such a man in this neck of the woods?"

The men consulted a minute.

"There's Frank Bellaire," someone suggested. "He's an experienced man. He's been with McLaughlin Bros. for several years."

"All right," Tommy cut in, "I'll look him up at once. Now that will be about all — get to work!"

As men and teams disappeared from view down the sleigh road, Tommy turned from the window and digging a mirror and his medical kit from his pack sacks, he set to work on his face.

"Now then, Mr. Frank Bellaire," he said to himself, when he had finished, "let's see if there are any strings on you."

A half-mile walk up a narrow winding path and he stepped on to the hard packed road.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

The usual overflow from the goose and turkey market was conspicuous by its absence on Saturday's Belleville Market, as the only fowl on the market were a few scattered chickens which sold at prices ranging from 60 cents up. There were no turkeys, ducks or geese available at an early hour.

Eggs, however, showed a marked downward trend over the holiday prices with "A" selects varying in price between thirty and thirty-five cents. One lady vendor with a supply of Lehigh eggs which measured in the vicinity of eight inches in circumference offered her stock at 35 cents the dozen. "A" mediums sold at from 29 to 31 cents with the pullet variety being quoted at 25 cents.

Farmers butter held firm at the holiday prices of 55 cents for two-pound rolls. Honey was quoted at fifty cents per five-pound pail, with lesser quantities selling at the same price scale. Whipping cream was firm at 15 and thirty-cents per half pint and pint respectively.

On the outside market staple winter vegetables dominated a slow moving market with varying prices being asked. One vendor set a flat rate of thirty cents the bushel lot for his stock of onions, carrots, turnips, parsnips and beets. Other vendors quoted their supplies in the neighborhood of from forty to sixty cents the bushel lot. Potatoes were scarce and commanded the holiday prices of $1.25 per ninety-pound bag. Winter cabbage was offered at five and ten cents the head, with small-sized winter squash being offered at the same prices.

THE BANKER'S ROMANCE

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

Banks thought he could manager. They had reached that point when he could tell anything and he thought she believed it all. One day they were amalgamated and their joint account looked promising. But she failed to keep cheque on him and he lost interest in her, and on that account she deposited the family on the door step and passed a sight draft on him. But he failed to come across and in searching the records she found his account was overdrawn and all cheques handed to her came back

MENTAL HEALTH

Unless progress is made in the prevention of mental illness it can be predicted that four children out of every hundred born in Canada will at some period of their lives be admitted to mental institutions as patients, writes Dr. C. M. Hincks, director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, in the current issue of "Health", organ of the Health League of Canada.

Fifty percent of mental disorders can be prevented, Dr. Hincks asserts, in his stimulating article, highlights of which follow:

"In the first place, what are some of the principles that are of importance in the art of living?"

"One of our fundamental needs in this connection is work. It is interesting to note that the surest way of preventing mental deterioration among mental hospital patients is work or occupational therapy."

"Now work to be of full value must make a pull upon imagination and initiative. It should not be characterized by monotony and drudgery. It should give us the satisfaction of worthy endeavour and achievement. In other words it should be a morale builder — giving us healthy ego satisfaction."

"We are indeed fortunate if in our forties, fifties and sixties we still know how to play. It is a habit to which we should cling from our youth."

"Yes, recreation keeps us young, and, in supplying our need for recreation, avocations and hobbies may be priceless. We all can recall instances where an avocation has completely changed the life of an individual."

"We all need intimates with whom we can share our joys and sorrows, our ambitions and successes, because the sharing of an experience with another multiplies its value ten fold."

"Another aid to the art of living is the possession of a robust philosophy of life."

"Religion attempts to satisfy this human hunger and for untold thousands, it furnishes anchorage and outlook that may be priceless."

"It is a strange fact, that while we are ready to study everything under the sun, we find ourselves reticent to examine ourselves — to examine our own lives."

"After we gain self knowledge our next step is the learning of self acceptance. This may be difficult if we find that our equipment appears to be modest."

"But I believe that everyone possesses an asset or two that is superior to that of his neighbour. And, if I am correct in this, there should be little reticence in taking the step of self-acceptance."

"The last hurdle is that of being ourselves. This constitutes the most significant element in the art of living. The individual who is aping others — who is attempting to do things as other people do them — who is hesitant to strike out on lines of his own — such an individual is failing to contribute effectively to the world's work and is failing to get the satisfaction that comes from natural living."

"Now, a reference to childhood. We can go far in guarding the mental health of the child if we pay attention to such points as the following: his facility in social contacts, his range of interest; his development in relation to the assumption of responsibility; his degree of self-confidence, of self-discipline, of happiness and love of adventure."

YOUR DONATION MAY SAVE A LIFE!

The use of modern health appliances and many other costly but vitally necessary items cannot be provided out of the Hospital's fixed allowances for needy patients.

Your donation makes sure that no child seeking a normal chance for health or escape from deformity will ever knock in vain at the door of this institution.

And it makes sure that no needed expense is spared when a little patient's future depends on treatment and attention costing more than is contemplated by the fixed grants made by Provincial and Municipal Governments. Remember, over 400 of our 420 beds are in Public Wards.

The Hospital receives no support from the Toronto Federation for Community Service because patients are accepted from all parts of the Province.

TRUDEAU FAMILY 100 YEARS ON THE JOB

What is probably at least a provincial record has been established by the Trudeau family, of Stoco. For exactly one hundred years the Trudeaus have served the district farmers as threshers and only recently Messrs Mitchell and Fred L. Trudeau completed their operations for this season. In 1837 Francis Trudeau brought the first open threshing outfit operated by treadles, into this district. It was shipped from Lower Canada to Belleville where it was transported on a wagon to Tweed. After each threshing it was loaded up and removed to the next farm. The family then invested in a sweep power machine, while a portable steam outfit followed. At the present time the brothers operate two steam power machines while they also have a clover-huller in their equipment. For the past four generations, the Trudeaus have taken care of the farmers' threshing needs in the Autumn and it would seem that this constitutes a record. The present operators have their own machine shop and any necessary repairs are rapidly made.

The Rawdon Circuit Official Board held their annual meeting in the Bethel United Church on Tuesday December 29th, at 2:00 p.m. with all three appointments represented. The reports showed that every effort is being made to balance the budget and it is hoped that the gifts to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund will be as liberal as last year. Assurance was given by the stewards that the minister's salary would be paid in

The Board concurred in the minister's plans for the "Evangelization of Canadian Life" and suggested that the special efforts be continued until the end of the Lenten Season. Mr. B. C. Tucker was re-appointed recording steward and Mr. C. U. Heath representative to Presbytery presented a very interesting report. At 4:30 p.m. the meeting adjourned.

THE CORONATION CHAIR

The chair in which Their Majesties will be crowned was made for King Edward the First. It is of oak and dates from the beginning of the fourteenth century. Originally it was brightly decorated with gilt and glass mosaic. The supporting lions are comparatively modern. Enclosed in the chair is the "Stone of Scone", on which the Scottish Kings had been crowned. Edward the First carried it off from Scotland in 1297, and on it has been crowned every subsequent King of England. This block of reddish sandstone from the west coast of Scotland is traditionally regarded as Jacob's pillow at Bethel, afterwards the "Lia Fail," or "Stone of Destiny", on the sacred hill of Tara, in Ireland. It is also said to have been the pillow of St. Columba in Iona. Only twice has the chair left the Abbey — when Cromwell was installed as Lord Protector in Westminster Hall, and when, during the Great War, it was placed in safety in the crypt below the Chapter House. The State Sword and Shield date from Edward III. (1327-1377).

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE TO OPEN
JANUARY 19TH

Premier Hepburn announced Monday that the third session of Ontario's Nineteenth Legislature had been called for Tuesday, January 19. The opening ceremonies, he said, would be stripped of all the usual formalities in order that the House might with the minimum of delay get down to the primary business with which it will be confronted — namely, special legislation whereby the Government will, it is understood, seek to establish the supremacy of the Legislature in respect to civil rights, and, in so doing, further protect the Province against any adverse Privy Council decisions which ultimately may be handed down in the present power-contracts litigation.

During the East Hastings by-election and repeatedly since, the Premier intimated an early sitting of the House would be required in order to effectively handle the power situation. He has now taken the plunge in that connection, although he refuses to reveal the definite nature of the Hydro safeguarding legislation which he contemplates bringing down. Not until the first caucus of the Liberal members — and that has been fixed, he announced for Monday, January 18, will he be in a position to reveal it in all its possibly drastic details.

The House, the Premier declared, might sit straight through to prorogation and again it might not. All would depend, he added, on the progress made by his special legislation. If that took a normal course, it would be possible, he felt, to adjourn for several weeks, and bring the final wind-up of the 1937 session closer to March.

Howdy folks!

Well, the smoke is cleared.

What little there was of it.

And we find the elections are all over for another year.

Someone once wrote "The old order changeth, making way for the new."

Os something.

We'd rather have that one that goes "Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever."

The writer of them there lines knew what he was talking about if he had only applied the words to a municipal council instead of to a babbling brook.

Yes Sir! We've got a new Reeve.

What was last year labelled "Councillor Cranston" is this year to sit in the driver's seat and be called "Reeve Thos. Cranston."

And don't forget the "Thos." part of it either.

It don't seem dignified to hear youse guys call our new Reeve just plain "Toke."

When a man gets to be Reeve he's "Some Potatoes" and commands respect 'n' everything.

And what used to be known as just plain "Frank" Stapley, is now Councillor F. Stapley, and nothing less.

You don't look at Mr. Stapley any more and say to yourself — "There goes the proprietor of the grist mill."

No Sir! You refer to him as one of the "Village Fathers".

He's now away past the stage where he'd even dare to take the hot water bottle to bed with him.

If he gets cold in the night now he has to just take it and like it, knowing that no man in his position could lower himself to a hot water bag.

Then too we have with us "Commissioner" Jeffrey. Formerly he was just plain "Walter".

But that's a thing of the past.

He has changed his ways. We don't know whether he still intends to sell you parts and supplies for your binder and mower or not. But if he does, it will be with an air of pomp and indifference.

He's looking after the welfare of the local Hydro situation now, and after all, little things like plow points won't mean half so much to him as pen-points.

And that leads us on to speak of another new face at one of the local governing Boards.

Not that it's a new face —

No we didn't mean it that way.

It's the same old face, but in a different setting.

Dr. Edmund A. Carleton, member of the Stirling Board of Education.

That's what he is now.

Don't pull any of that "Barney" stuff any more!

He's graduated.

You know, it's funny. We have never been able to see what anybody wanted to be a member of any of these bodies for.

You "do your darnedest" to get people to vote for you so that in a year or so they can give you a kick in the pants.

It doesn't matter how well you serve the electors, there'll come a day when they'd laugh if some body sat you on a tack.

Ever see that motion picture "King for a Day"?

Great fun while it lasted, wasn't it?

Not a cent of money do they get paid — couldn't even "bum" a meal off their neighbours — get "stuck" for everything that is at all inclined to come along and want a donation — fix roads — build sidewalks — raise the dikes with guys that expect the public to keep them, (relief, in case you don't know) — have to "hire" and "fire" people and in so doing make bad friends — have to lose sleep (and judging by the length of local council sittings it's no cinch) — help chase dogs all over town to collect their taxes — make arrangements for the harbouring of all drunks — see to it that if Ham Johnston got little red spots all over his bald head somebody'd nail a card on his door — etc., etc., etc.

And yet so many want the coveted position.

As we said before — we just can't see it for stumps.

But then, nobody cares much whether we can "see" it or not, so that's that.

Just the same, we'll add this — those that are out of it are better that way.

Those that are in it imagine they're going to enjoy it.

Everybody's satisfied!

Why worry?

But isn't it funny to stand and listen to a group of men on election night?

You hear so much about "Them good old days".

Then you'll hear somebody say: "I can remember when Stirling didn't owe a cent."

Those sure were "swell" days.

Stirling didn't "owe" anything nor "own" anything!

Them was the times when Bill Anderson either had to take a coal oil lamp upstairs with him or else catch his toe in his night shirt and tear the whole end out of it!

That was fun!

Nobody had waterworks, so the rest of us could "feel" so badly about it.

Yes Sir! Them was the days! If the neighbours didn't want you to use their pump, you got your daily exercise carrying a pail of water from a couple of blocks on down the street.

All of which was greatly enjoyed.

If your back shed caught fire you could either run down to the mill pond with a bucket or wait until somebody took time off to build a bon-fire under a steam engine to squirt a little trickle on the flames.

More fun!

When people came through the village they could look around and see enough poles on the streets to remind them of a British Columbia forest.

But that was in them "good old days" when Stirling didn't owe anything!

If a Church or any other organization wanted to put on a concert they could either wait till summer or put it on in a little two-by-four dump that would hold about half the folks that went to see it — and the rest either went home or got chilblains.

HIGH - FIDELITY - SOUND

In those glorious days motion pictures were next to unheard of locally, and if you wanted to see what was going on in the outside world you had to either read about it or take your neighbour's word for it.

And ten chances to one he had not even heard about it yet!

Readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic were all that was needed to have an up-to-date education. Perhaps if yuh was a bit snooty yuh could take in a little geogertty.

If you had any inclination to learn a bit of carpentry work or manual training "The Old Man" taught you all you needed to know about that, out in the woodshed with a buck saw.

The girls were taught how to sew amidst the quiet surroundings of a kerosene lamp and box stove.

Them was the times!

By Cracky! Teachers could live on three hundred dollars a year —

If the neighbours weren't too stingy with their soup bones!

When the parson called, you knew his horse was tethered to the gatepost!

If you wanted to get one of the "gals" married off he'd do the trick for a bag of potatoes and a dozen eggs.

And if the Stork made a call at the house he'd get sent away with a tin of Maple sugar, a leg of mutton and a bag of carrots — and probably think he'd got the best of the bargain!

Yes Sir!

Who wouldn't want them good old days?

Why you could go right out in your own back yard, and instead of cutting the grass, chop down enough cord-wood to put you well through the winter.

There weren't no "relief roll" in them days, By Jupiter!

In them times it wasn't a case of the stray chicken getting out of your neighbour's pen and getting into your flower bed —

It was just a dozen or so yearling heifers raising the devil in your corn patch —

Which was much better!

If you wanted to go for a drive you went out and hitched the old mare up on the democrat and took the family for a half-day's outing — up to the river and back!

Two hull miles each way!

Wasn't that fun?

Yes Sir! How we long for "them good old days when Stirling didn't owe a cent!"

You could have more fun than a picnic wading in the mud right on the main street! Gosh we had entertainment that was entertainment!

Probably we could go on for weeks elaborating on the nice times we had "them days" — but we've probably got a lot of readers a little "peaved" already, just thinking that we don't enjoy all the modern flummies that later Councils have bought for us and run in debt for.

It's too bad that those who enjoyed those good old days so well couldn't have "staked a claim" somewhere and kept it in line with their liking.

We just know it'd be nice.

But it's too late now!

Somebody's gone to work and plastered up the main street with cement!

Terrible!

They've gone to work and put in waterworks.

Ridiculous!

They've included more subjects in the school training and put the teachers' salaries at what used to support the neighborhood.

Plain foolishness!

They've got Hydro power all over town and the Village has bought the system.

Didja ever hear of anything so silly? They'll soon have us in the poorhouse!

They've built a Community Hall that can't be bettered in any village this size in the Province.

Utter foolishness!

And yet we've got people who like "them good old days".

Aw, Nerds!

We'll be seel' yuh!

PRINCE EDWARD COW ESTABLISHES RECORD

Leading the Dominion in the mature class, sub-division B, in October R.O.P. Report, Sylvia Payne Beauty, six-year-old cow owned by Huff Bros. of Bloomfield, has just completed her record of 20,061 pounds milk with an average test of 3.99 per cent; 801 lbs. fat equivalent to 1001 lbs. butter. She was milked twice daily for 365 days. This brings her total up to 51,435 lbs. of milk in three lactations. This cow was procured from Mr. O. H. Walter, of Port Perry, as a heifer, developed at Elmapple Farm and has also won several red ribbons at local fairs. She has a two-year-old daughter milking and her yearling son is being retained as junior herd sire.

INAUGURAL MEETING OF VILLAGE COUNCIL

COMMITTEES FORMED FOR THE COMING YEAR — NEW OFFICIALS ARE APPOINTED

The inaugural meeting of the Stirling Village Council, each member having taken his Declaration of Office at eleven o'clock on Monday morning, was held in the Council Chamber on Monday night, commencing at eight o'clock, with Reeve Cranston in the chair, and Councillors D. A. Burkitt, Jos. Whitehead, C. B. Rollins and Frank Stapley in attendance.

Preceding the opening of Council, Mr. R. W. Melkiojohn, Chairman of the Relief Board, briefly addressed the members relative to the relief situation in the Village, and reported a number of recent applications. A week's supply had been sent one applicant, pending the decision of the Board. An inspector of the Department had been in town and had had some criticism to make in regard to local conditions, which were considered unjust. He had given much time to the relief work of the Village, stated Mr. Melkiojohn, and if the judgment of the Board was to be criticized and overruled by the Department at Toronto, he didn't want the job. So far as he knew none of the women and children of the village had ever gone hungry if application had been made for assistance. He also spoke of several jobs that were open for men who were seeking relief, if they would take them. "Most of these fellows are too lazy to work," commented Councillor Burkitt. "It's not right that the man who works hard and tries to save a dollar has to give it to these lazy chaps." It was agreed that Messdames J. B. Belshaw and Jas. Lagrow would pay a visit to these homes where relief was being sought, and decide what action was to be taken.

In his inaugural address Reeve Cranston, after expressing an appreciation of the honour conferred upon him by the electors, struck an economy note when he urged his colleagues to keep the expenditures in their various departments as low as possible. "There is a lot of work to do," said the Reeve, "and only so much money to spend." He was sure that the members all realized their responsibility and asked for their support and co-operation throughout the year.

Communications were read from the Stirling Branch of the Women's Institute, requesting Council to purchase additional tables for the Community Hall; from the Stirling Citizens' Band, expressing the appreciation of this organization for the assistance and co-operation extended during the past year; from Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, urging that precautions be taken to keep the fire fighting system in efficient shape during the winter weather; from Canadian Fairbanks Morse Co., giving information on Echo clocks.

Written applications were received from the following citizens for Municipal offices:

Caretaker Municipal Building — W. Gravers.

Caretaker Cemetery — Norman Wagar, Thos. Tanner ($450.00), John Hamilton and Will Bowen. A Reid, the former caretaker, made a personal application.

Assessor — John McCaw, H. A. Wickett and Harry Potter.

Auditors — Mrs. T. E. McCaughen and F. R. Mallory.

Constables — S. W. Eggleton.

Milk Inspector — T. E. McCaughen. J. R. West made a personal application.

An application from Mr. W. C. West for the position of Clerk, was overlooked until after the passing of the bylaw appointing the various officers, and consequently was not dealt with.

On motion of Rollins and Burkitt the Clerk was authorized to subscribe for the Municipal World for each member of Council.

The following Committees were appointed:

Streets — Messrs Rollins and Stapley.

Property and Light — Messrs Burkitt and Whitehead.

"LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE"

Here It Is — There It Ain't — That's What Property Owners Think

(By The Office Owl)

Those of you what likes water will certainly enjoy this weather. Rawdon Creek hasn't got the mumps, but that isn't saying it isn't swollen.

Whatever has gone wrong with the weatherman — he ain't looking after things or following the schedule that was marked out for him.

He's probably gone south with Earl Bailey and Tom Montgomery for a month. January has gone screwy. No snow — no cold weather — nothing around that wouldn't make us think we were in the midst of March, today.

As we write this, there's more water coming over the dam all at once than took three months to climb over it recently.

The swimming pool looks like the base of Niagara Falls. The only thing that isn't there is "The Maid of the Mist" taking tourists for a ride in the rapids.

Harry Wickett's garden is so far under water it would take a deep-sea diver to estimate the condition of the ocean bed. His raspberry bushes are up to their ears in swirling pools. One more painful and his cellar would be full.

On down at the skating rink, Car-taker Tulloch has had to use a bathing suit to get his ice scraping equipment tied to the ceiling. There was ice in the rink last night. Today it's a grand place to hold the Olympic swimming tests. If Ham Johnston was at all wise he'd go down there and turn the lights on. He could sit up in the front row of gallery seats and fish for mudcats.

Clarence Clark had to send for the Hydro truck to come and get him to work. He couldn't face the bitter waters as they swirled across Henry Street, right across the road and sidewalk several feet thick. They just couldn't wait to go under the bridge like polite waters should.

Grant Potter says he had to walk out the Belleville road and up through Wannamaker's farm (on the highlands) to get home for his dinner. It ain't handy when you have to walk clear to Chatterton to get your noonday snack. That's a job for the new Council. They should have a ferry (Continued on Page Five)

COUNTY RATE MAY GO UP

Results of Assessment Equalization Are Announced

In the judgment delivered on Wednesday at Belleville by the tribunal consisting of Judge G. E. Deroche, Judge J. E. Madden and Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn, which has been sitting on the appeal made by Marmora and Lake Township and the Village of Frankford, against the equalized assessment in the County of Hastings, the assessment of the Village of Stirling was raised from $373,700 to $373,900, a difference of $200. While it is not definitely known what increase this will mean on the amount to be raised by Stirling for County purposes, it is believed that it will be in the neighborhood of one-half mill on the tax rate.

Rawdon Township was raised, from $1,823,300 to $1,935,300; Huntingdon from $914,500 to $984,300; while Sidney was lowered from $2,909,600 to $2,899,600.

GLEN ROSS IN FIRST PLACE

Large Crowd Witnessed Tuesday Night's Doubleheader

Glen Ross again climbed to the top of the heap in the Centre Hastings Rural League on Tuesday night when they took the Foxboro team into camp while West Huntingdon were puttin' the skids under the Bethel boys. On'tis-again there was a large crowd of far present from the surrounding districts, to witness two splendid games, in which the boys gave everything they had to gain a win.

Glen Ross vs. Foxboro

In the first game Glen Ross defeated Foxboro as their opponents and practice to take the lead on a passing play, by Robinson and A. Fraser, without the latter being the marksman. They continued to have the edge and scored their second goal when Dainard put the puck behind Sinfield unassisted. Their third goal came from the stick of Robinson, who batted it in from a scramble in front of the Foxboro net, while A. Fraser got the winning counter, A. Fraser, with two goals, proved the star for the Trent River Boys, but Robinson, Dainard and H. Hagerman were able assistants. Foxboro got a goal in each period, one by Lee in the first, and Bleechman in the second and third.

Glen Ross — Goal, Hagerman; defence, Brown and Armstrong; centre, Robinson; wings, A. Fraser and H. Hagerman; alternates, S. Dainard, P. Dainard, H. Brooks, McDonnell, Scott and G. Fraser.

Foxboro — Goal, Sinfield; defence, Guay and Walt; centre, Lee; wings, Romsy and Chapelle; alternates, Sims, Bleechman, Sharp, Hanna and Sunderland.

West Huntingdon vs. Bethel

Playing with a complete lineup for the first time for several games, West Huntingdon, last year's champions, defeated Bethel 2 to 1 and dropped them to second place in the league standing. The first line of Mott, Rodgers and Wright returned to their last season's form and were a thorn in the side of their opposition throughout the game, being responsible for both goals.

Rodgers got his in the first period to give his team a 1-0 lead at the end of the period, but Bethel came right back in the second to notch the count when R. Dickey, who has been his team's leading scorer this season, took a pass from Tappe to beat Saries. The third period saw the best hockey of the night with both teams having numerous chances to score, but were (Continued on page five)

It's Not Fair

Still they come. Night after night a number of the "Knights of the Road" are in town looking for a night's shelter. They stay over night and are on their way the next morning, but citizens are still complaining about being bothered by these fellows in search of a meal or some article of clothing. Council held its inaugural meeting this week, but the transient question was not discussed, probably due to the heavy agenda. However, this matter should be taken up by Council at its earliest convenience and some definite action taken. If the Council is not in favour of feeding them, the quicker it is known by the citizens the better. On the other hand, if they are in favour of having them fed, it should be paid for out of the public funds, and not have a few of the more generous citizens doing it all.

More Heat From Wood

Wood has always been an important fuel in Canada and is still largely used by our rural and to a lesser extent by our urban population. The annual consumption is more than eight million cords valued at over thirty million dollars.

Fuel experts claim that we burn our wood wastefully, that our stoves and furnaces are not designed for the most efficient use of this fuel. According to authoritative information, new types of slow combustion wood stoves used extensively in Europe have double the heating capacity of ours. They need to be filled only twice in twenty-four hours, give an even agreeable heat and produce little ash and no cinders. These stoves are designed for burning chunkwood of small but fairly uniform size.

If stoves of this type prove as efficient under Canadian conditions as they do under European they will greatly decrease the expense of fuelwood used in logging camps and will add considerably to the comfort of men living in the woods. More efficient use of wood for fuel should increase the demand on farms and to a lesser extent in towns and cities, and open up a more profitable market for the wood of "weed" species, defective trees and the waste from sawmills and other wood-using industries. A greater use of wood fuel would help to solve many of our silvicultural problems, facilitate forest protection and assist forest industries.

The adaptation of slow-combustion stoves to Canadian conditions is being studied with considerable interest.

Council To Have Busy Year

The inaugural meeting of Stirling Council for the ensuing year was held Monday night and from the various matters coming up for discussion it would appear that members of Council are in for a busy year's work. Reeve Cranston in his opening remarks pointed out that there was a great deal of work to be done and urged the various committees to exercise the strictest economy. With an increase in the County rate, over which the members of the local Council have no control, practically assured, and a number of projects under consideration within the village, an increased tax rate for this year appears inevitable.

The question of relief is one that is attracting no little concern on the part of the Councilors. In spite of the prevailing optimism throughout the country as a whole, the number on relief in Stirling is greater than last year, with the list gradually growing and every indication points to an increase in the expenditure in this department this year. This is something that is somewhat difficult to understand at a time when the trend should be the other way. In some cases we are informed that those seeking relief had work throughout the summer months at good wages, and saved nothing to put them through the winter. But apparently the municipality can do nothing but give relief in these cases at the expense of the savings of others. There are many cases where claims for relief are legitimate, and with them there isn't a ratepayer who will have any fault, but we fail to see the justice in any law that requires the municipality to give relief to big able-bodied men who loaf around the streets instead of getting out and rustling for themselves. The problem of procuring another source for the village water supply will also have to be faced by the present year's Council. Already a considerable sum of money has been spent for this purpose, without a sufficient supply being assured. The building of some new sidewalks and keeping the streets in repair will also take up considerable time of the Village Fathers, with the interior decorating of the Theatre also being discussed.

It is to be hoped that members of Council will be successful in carrying their proposals to a successful conclusion with a minimum of expense and effort.

Mr. Reginald H. Hopper, Secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, delivered a very instructive address on the work that is being done on behalf of the crippled children of the province at the monthly meeting of the Stirling Community Welfare Club on Tuesday. Mr. Hopper impressed upon his listeners the fact that this work was only made possible through the generosity of the 100 or more service Clubs of the Province and the skilled surgeons who give their services freely in order that the handicapped boys and girls of the country may be better able to take their place in the life of the community in which they live. No finer work could be undertaken than this and the speaker left his listeners with much to think over.

believed to have started from over-heated pipes in the kitchen. The house, on what is known as the Hugh Shannon Estate, was one of the first brick farm homes in this district. The fire did not spread to the outbuildings. Rev. Father McAuley drove Kelleher to Campbellford for medical treatment.

NO FURTHER EXTENSION FOR MOTORISTS

Announcement has been made that no further extension of time will be granted after Jan. 18th for motorists using 1936 license plates on their machines. After this date police will have orders to "crack down" on those still using last year's plates, it was stated.

COBOURG BLAMED FOR ICY SIDEWALK

Judgment for $3,500 and costs has been handed down by Mr. Justice J. Greene, in favour of Lillian Huycke, of Cobourg, who sued the Corporation of the Town of Cobourg for $10,000 last December in Supreme Court sittings. The presiding Judge reserved the decision at the time.

Miss Huycke fell on the pavement on King Street in February of last year, fracturing her hip. Mr. Justice Greene found that the pavement was covered with glare ice, was not sanded and was in a "dangerously slippery condition." There was evidence of "gross negligence" on the part of the town, stated his Lordship.

MADOC TOWNSHIP FARMER SENTENCED

Harry Harrington, Madoc township farmer, pleaded guilty to intoxication in police court on Monday at Belleville and was given 10 days "on the hill" by Magistrate Butler. On a second count of resisting arrest he was remanded for one week. Harrington appeared in court exhibiting a black eye, that Constable Hayes admitted administering when the man resisted arrest. It was stated he was using loud and profane language in a Madoc restaurant on Saturday.

For allowing gambling on his premises through a slot machine, Mike Maraskas pleaded guilty and was remanded for a week for judgment and sentence and Charles A. Payne, his counsel, asked that the machine be confiscated, until that time by the police. The Magistrate so ruled.

FRANKFORD MAN SENTENCED TO THE "PEN"

Patrick Palmer, 32, of Frankford, sentenced to three years in Port Arthur Penitentiary by Magistrate E. Butler on a charge of accusing his brother-in-law, Charles Brennan, of a pious offense with intent to extort. Palmer pleaded guilty to the charge, and was represented in court by Sidney Howell. Evidence disclosed that Palmer wrote a letter to his brother-in-law demanding $25 or he would be exposed. Another letter was supposedly written by his wife. In a statement given to Provincial Police, Palmer freed his father-in-law of guilt and stated that he had his wife write the note. "I only did it to keep my father-in-law away from the house," he said. Several children of Palmer's were made wards of the Children's Aid Society by Captain Tom Ruston following the sentence passed on Palmer.

SCRIP IS ABANDONED IN ORILLIA

With no dissenting voice, 1937 Orillia Council, at its inaugural meeting on Monday, did away with the town's scrip system. A by-law was passed rescinding the two by-laws which put scrip into being Nov. 20. Under terms of the by-law, no scrip will be issued in future and all that is out in circulation will be redeemed at the Town Office or at Orillia banks Feb. 1 at a discount of one per cent, or at any time after that date.

All unused or unissued scrip will be cancelled or defaced in the presence of the manager or accountant of the Royal Bank branch here and the Mayor or other members of Council. Following the defacing, scrip in the town's possession will be burned. The burning will also take place in the presence of bank and town officials. There is more than $3000 worth of scrip in circulation at present. On Nov. 20 scrip worth $1,150 was issued to relief recipients. The first date for redemption was Dec. 1. On that date $697 worth was redeemed. Further issues were made and $3,228 was redeemed Jan. 2, making a total of redemption of $3,925. On January 2 scrip issued totalled $4,960, leaving almost exactly $1,000 in circulation. Since Jan. 2 a further issue of $2,134 has been made. There is now in circulation a total of slightly over $3,000, most of which will be redeemed in February.

REPLY FROM WEST

In answer to a parcel sent in a bale sent to Western Canada from St. Paul's United Church, Miss D. Caldwell received the following letter on January 5th:

Shannavon, Sask.,
December 31, 1936

Dear Friend,—

I am writing to thank you for the nice present you sent. We had a very pleasant surprise. A good many hearts were made happy with the gifts and clothing too, that came from the East. I must say I was pleased with the towel and wash cloth, and although I am a married lady, I am not too old to use the powder puff, and we sure have no excuse for being dirty with that soap. My little girl got a parcel from someone in Stirling — her name is Helen Jeffrey, which she was very pleased with. We have had very hard times but this year was worse than ever. No crops at all, and very little feed for the stock. We usually have a little garden stuff, but this year we had no garden, not even potatoes. We live in town. My husband is janitor at the Bank. There are five of us in the family. It seems if the farmer has nothing, nobody has anything, because there are no industries. Beside being dried out we have had grasshoppers for three years. They are a terrible pest, but with all these drawbacks we have something to be thankful for, and that is a loving heavenly Father who put this kindness into the hearts of you eastern people. For we feel we are joined to the east in a bond of love and friendship, for not only this year but other years we have received vegetables and clothing from different parts of the East. We are English people who came to Western Canada 17 years ago. We belong to the United Church. My husband and oldest daughter and myself are in the Senior choir. I am the Secretary of the Bible Study Class in the week and also belong to the Bible Class in Sunday School; pianist for the W.M.S. and often play the organ at church. I think this is all, for we are having choir practice tonight and then a watchnight service at 11 p.m. Wishing you a very happy New Year; may we all grow more spiritually in the coming year, and may the spirit of peace grow in each individual heart toward each other until peace shall reign all the world over, is my prayer.

Thanking you again for your white gift I remain

Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) R. Royston

OFFICIAL APPOINTMENTS NEED ATTENTION

(Kingsville Reporter)

Shortages in the accounts of collectors and treasurers in municipalities all over the province, as revealed in checkups, emphasize the fact that there has been inefficiency, carelessness or deliberate fraud on the part of those officials and the local auditors. We believe that carelessness and inefficiency account for about nine-tenths of the cases, and that fraud seldom enters into the picture. This would indicate that more care should be exercised by municipalities in the selection of all its officers. Any man who is deficient in mathematics is not fitted for the responsible position of auditor, collector or treasurer, and if such an individual is appointed, trouble is sure to develop in time.

Municipalities need to be alert when appointing officers, if they wish to avoid unpleasant complications and losses, as well as heavy bills for special audits.

SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP FARMER BURNED

Joseph Kelleher, Seymour Township farmer, was badly burned about the hands and face on Monday when he tried to enter his burning home to save $150 in cash he had hidden in an upstairs room. Kelleher was in the barn when he noticed the smoke and flames. He tried to enter by the door, but he was met by a wall of flames. Neighbours rushed to his assistance and hastily formed a bucket brigade to fight the fire, but it raged out of control. Only two chairs and a table were recovered from the house. The loss was estimated at $3500 and was said to have been partly covered by insurance. A valuable collie dog was burned to death when trapped in the house. The fire was

Magistrate: "You broke into the same store three nights running?"

Prisoner: "Yes, sir, I stole only one dress for my wife, and she made me change it twice."

Maid: "What sauce do we have with lamb cutlet?"

Mistress: "I have told you before that must work out your own crossword puzzles!"

Neighbour: "But Jackie, why are you playing here? Surely you should be at school?"

Jackie: "There! I knew there was something I'd forgotten."

"Where is the manager's office?"

"Follow the passage until you come to a sign reading 'No Admittance'. Go upstairs till you come to the sign 'Keep Out'. Follow the corridor till you see the sign 'Silence', then yell for him."

Mother had just given Marjorie and Bobbie each a helping of dessert with meringue on top. Marjorie looked at Bobbie's dish and then protested. "Well, mother, you put more suds on Bobbie's pudding than you did on mine."

"Here's something queer," said the dentist, who had been drilling into a tooth. "You said the tooth had never been filled, but I find flakes of gold on the point of my drill."

"I knew it," moaned the patient. "You have struck my back collar stud."

The bulky truck driver leaned out of his cab and soundly abused the young man in the stalled car. The girl stood it as long as she could:

Girl (protesting): "Jack, surely you are going to say something to that burly lout."

"Jack: "You bet I am. Just wait till I get the car started."

A witness in a case started to pour out all he knew in a perfect torrent of words. The judge pulled him up, telling him he must first take the oath.

"Now," said the judge, "tell me what you have to say."

"Well," said the witness, "after the limitations you've imposed on me, I guess I've nothing to say."

A merchant sent home to his wife a very clever parrot. It arrived just before he himself was due and on the same day his wife had gone out, ordered a chicken, and told the cook, "There is a bird coming for tonight's dinner. Cook it."

The parrot arrived first, and was cooked. Then the husband arrived. "What's this?" he asked at dinner. The parlourmaid explained the cook's mistake.

"This is awful," said the merchant, "why, this bird could speak eleven languages."

"Then why didn't it say something?" asked his wife.

PLASTIC "GLASS"

NEW DISCOVERY

A new plastic material which may replace glass to some extent has emerged from the laboratory. One virtue of Pontalite, recently shown by the du Pont company, is its toughness; it is practically unbreakable. Pontalite weighs about half as much as glass and has a peculiar brilliance like that of rock crystal. It is suitable for windows because it admits ultra-violet light, which causes sunburn.

Wherever there is not too much alcohol or heat, the new clear resin will probably be found. Like some other thermoplastics, it softens in hot water, so it probably won't be very popular for table glassware, in spite of its sparkle. It is better suited for fine bowls, vases and accessories, since it can be molded, pressed, turned, cut and etched. Artificial flowers (unfortunately) can be cast into Pontalite blocks.

The properties of Pontalite were described to the New York Electrical Society by A. E. Pitcher, general manager of the plastics department of the du Pont company. One property is phosphorescence. If a rod of the resin is held before an ultra-violet lamp for one minute and the light is turned off, the rod will glow blue-green for perhaps ten seconds. Another peculiarity is that it transmits light around a bend. If a rod is tied into a knot and a beam of light is admitted at one end, the other end glows brightly, showing that the light has gone through the knot.

The property which makes this plastic interesting to most people who have heard about it — its clarity — has meant five years of laboratory work by 24 technicians. Chemically it is methyl methacrylate, a by-product of ammonia manufacture, a liquid which has a solid form. Commercially it comes in rods, tubes, sheets and a granular powder for molding under heat and pressure.

TRENTON BOY KILLED WHEN RUN OVER BY TRUCK

Crushed between a truck and a gate in the driveway of a house belonging to a Mr. Gardner on Guelph St., William Burley Labelle 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Labelle of Alberta Street, Trenton, died of injuries on Friday night shortly after nine o'clock. The truck, which was owned by Frank Taverna, Trenton contractor, and driven by Mary Thompson, was proceeding up the driveway when the accident occurred. It is alleged that young Labelle was playing in the driveway and could not get out of the way in time. Dr. W. J. Johnson rushed to the scene of the accident, but medical aid was unavailing and Labelle died fifteen minutes after the accident occurred.

Dr. Walter Crowe, local coroner, held a preliminary hearing on Saturday afternoon and postponed inquest until a later date. Police stated that no charges would be laid, pending the finding of the coroner's jury.

APPOINTMENT MADE TO THE SENATE

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced the appointment of J. W. DeB. Farris, of Vancouver to the Senate.

Appointment of Mr. Farris fills the Senate vacancy created by the death last summer of Hon. Charles McDonald who held his seat for less than a year. It also reduces to two the number of official vacancies in the Red Chamber. Both are in Quebec. A potential vacancy exists in the Alberta seat of Senator Pat Burns, who has been ill for the last two years and unable to attend sessions of the Upper Chamber. It was believed likely, however, the Senate will disregard Senator Burns' absence this year at least.

Appointment of Mr. Farris makes the party standing in the Senate: Conservative 62, Liberal 32, vacant 2.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE UNSEATED

A group of Bowmanville citizens brought action to have John Hatley, a member of the Public School Board of that town, unseated for selling goods to the Board while a member. The case was tried by His Honour, Judge O'Connor, in his chambers in Cobourg. It was charged that contrary to section 135 of the Public School Act, Mr. Hatley sold rubber hose and other goods to the School Board while a member. The section of the Act under which the unseating petition was made reads as follows: "A Trustee shall not enter into any contract, agreement, engagement or promise, either in his own name or in the name of another, and either alone or jointly with another in which he has any pecuniary interest profit or promised or expected benefit with the board of which he is a member, or have any pecuniary claims upon or receive compensation from the board for any work, engagement, employment or duty on behalf of the board, and every such contract, agreement, engagement or promise shall be null and void, and a trustee violating the provisions of this section shall ipso facto vacate his seat."

The Judge rendered his decision unseating Mr. Hatley and the latter stated at the nomination meeting that he would not be a candidate for the coming year.

TWIN CALVES ARE SOLD AT KINGSTON

The first sale of purebred twin calves was made on Thursday in the Kingston district, at the farm of Gordon Wagar, and his son, Grover. A pair of five months old twin heifer calves, of pure-bred Holstein registered stock, was sold to Percy Hudgin, R.R.1, Selby.

Survival of twin calves in a dual birth is considered rare. In many cases one or both the calves dies, and sometimes the mother also.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT TORY ASSOCIATION

Harry Rollins was re-elected President of the Belleville Conservative Club at the annual meeting in the clubrooms on Friday evening. Over 200 persons crowded into the clubroom to hear Dr. Harold E. Welsh, Conservative victor in the East Hastings by-election last Dec. 9th, who was the speaker.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IS FOUND TO BE THE BEST

The Leonard Refrigerator Company of Detroit, will increase its advertising appropriation for 1937 by 50 per cent over its expenditures for 1936, according to Walter Jeffrey, advertising manager. The bulk of Leonard advertising will be devoted to newspaper space, it was stated. "We have found," said Mr. Jeffrey, "that newspaper advertising definitely attracts prospects into the show-rooms, linking the local dealer with the product in a manner that is impossible in other ways."

COL. T. A. KIDD TO BE PARTY WHIP

Col. Thos. Ashmore Kidd, veteran member for Kingston and former speaker of the Ontario legislature will succeed the late James F. Hill as Conservative Whip at the coming session. It was announced on Friday by George S. Henry, Conservative leader. It was also confirmed that Mr. Henry would continue to lead the opposition despite rumours that he would be replaced in view of Hon. Earl Rowe's election to the Conservative party leadership.

PICTON RELIEF COST HIGHEST SINCE 1933

In spite of the many stories emanating from Prince Edward County that the "Garden County of Ontario" has hit Ole Man Depression a crushing blow, and that prosperity is once again in the ascendant, figures just released by a Picton newspaper state that the cost of relief for that town during 1936 was the greatest since 1933. The 1936 relief costs total $20,382.81 as compared with $11,586.72 in 1933, according to the figures published by the newspaper.

HEALTH LEAGUE NEWS

Every woman who is about to become a mother should have pre-natal examination. Every baby will be a healthier child if the mother sees that it gets the regular well-baby medical supervision. The pre-school child, if kept under regular observation, and given remedial care, will require less attention as a school child. Medical inspection of school children will ensure a more vigorous college student and business person.

Such is the important advice given by Dr. F. C. Middleton, Director of the Division of Communicable Diseases, and secretary of the Saskatchewan Cancer Commission, Department of Health, Saskatchewan, writing in the current issue of "Health," organ of the Health League of Canada. "Mortality statistics indicate that after 35 or 40 years of age the disease of degeneration begins to appear," Dr. Middleton writes. "These diseases often come on stealthily and may take complete possession before their existence is known, when their presence is announced by a general breakdown. Premature old age and premature death frequently result, all of which could be postponed by periodic examination."

Dr. Middleton continues: "In respect to diphtheria, we know that the cause of the diphtheria bacillus; that if the disease is treated early and with sufficient diphtheria antitoxin, practically no deaths should occur; also if children over one year of age are protected against diphtheria with diphtheria toxoid none of them would take the disease. In some large cities where most of the pre-school and school children have been so protected by toxoid, no diphtheria and of course no deaths from the disease have occurred for several years. This is one disease therefore against which we have a known protection."

"It is well established that vaccination against smallpox will protect against this disease, which, in the days before Jenner, was the cause of so many deadly epidemics. Through the protection of our water supplies and the use of typhoid vaccine, typhoid fever is being reduced to a minimum."

"For those diseases against which we have a known protection, the most favourable time to be immunized is of course when there is no epidemic. If protected, an epidemic need not be feared."

"Although there is no specific cure against Tuberculosis, this disease is being checked by getting the cases under treatment early, and by hospitalizing the open cases which are the spreaders of the disease."

"Heart disease which heads the list of disease causing death and accounts in Canada for about one in every six deaths, could often be detected in a regular check-up, and by following the doctor's advice, many years of useful life could be added."

"The second disease in the list of diseases causing greatest mortality and which accounts for about one in every ten deaths in Canada, is Cancer. The malignancy of Cancer, if not discovered at the beginning, is now so well known that it is only necessary to further emphasize the need for early diagnosis if satisfactory results are to be expected from treatment. The well named periodic "Birthdays examination" is in reality a health barometer, indicating signs of disease before it actually arrives, and showing warning signals which should be heeded. It is the most important factor in gaining "positive" health, that feeling of being absolutely fit and well, thereby making it possible to actually live each day fully and abundantly."

LIFE, DEATH AND TUBERCULOSIS

Scores of thousands of people have died of tuberculosis in Ontario during the last thirty-five years, most of whom might have been saved if treated in time. In a little over three decades the deaths from tuberculosis in Ontario have been reduced from about 160 for each 100,000 living persons to 37 at the present time. In fact, your chances of dying of tuberculosis are less than one-third of what they were at the turn of the century. More than 4,400 men, women and children will celebrate Christmas with you and me this year who would have died of tuberculosis in 1936 if this disease were killing to-day at the same rate as in 1900, when the work of the National Sanitarium Association was just nicely getting under way.

But in spite of all that has been done and in spite of the continued decline in deaths from tuberculosis, it is sad to note that 1,303 people died of this disease in Ontario last year. It is doubly sad to learn that more than half of the 6,500 active cases of tuberculosis in this Province right now, and what is more to the point, more than half of the people who died of tuberculosis last year and of those who are now sick, are young people in the prime, productive ages of life, between fifteen and forty-five. Sixty out of every one hundred deaths from tuberculosis occur in these ages.

Early youth, the years between fifteen and twenty-five, is an especially dangerous time for the development of tuberculosis. It is at this time, when young people are in school, college or just entering into industry, that tuberculosis takes its greatest toll. Because it is not discovered until the disease has become a foothold and becomes fatal in as many as eighty young people out of every 100,000 living there are about five to twenty-nine. If all young men and women between fifteen and thirty could be given a proper chest X-ray examination, if those found to have the disease could be given proper care, and if all the sources from which they are infected could be found, tuberculosis could easily be brought under control. These three "ifs" are difficult but not impossible to attain.

In fact, this is the goal of the tuberculosis campaign of the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives and the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives. Any contribution you make toward the work of these hospitals will help to conquer tuberculosis. Please send your gift to National Sanitarium Association, 223 College St., Toronto.

BRIDE AND GROOM HONOURED

About one hundred neighbours and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McCrory, Ridge Road, on Thursday evening, January 7, in honour of the marriage of their son, Mr. N. Heath acted as chairman for the evening and called the gathering to order. He explained the object of the gathering and called upon Mr. Volney Richardson who read the address on behalf of the community, and a lovely bed couch was presented to the honoured couple. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCrory made fitting replies to the address and all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows". The ladies then served a very dainty luncheon and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing and cards.

Stirling, Ontario.

Dear Myrtle and Andy—

We your friends and neighbours have availed ourselves of this opportunity to gather at your home and to extend to you our heartiest congratulations. All the world loves a lover, and the Ridge Road loves a wedding. So all are eager to give this happy couple a real expression of their friendship in this substantial way. Last year being leap year we rather expected more opportunities of extending the hand of friendship. However, we are happy to think that Mrs. McCrory has led the way and it was too late. We have brought this gift and ask you to accept it as a token of our esteem and in the future may it remind you of your Ridge Road friends.

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to Heaven above.
Signed — Laird McGee, Harry McGowan and John McIntroy.

WE NEED YOUR HELP— THIS YEAR! EVERY YEAR!

Needy children from all over the Province are treated regardless of race, creed or financial circumstance.

This policy has been continued for over 60 years in the firm belief that everyone who understands the facts would want this great work to continue . . . would agree that no Ontario child should be denied a chance for health or escape from deformity if mere money makes the difference.

Over 95% of our beds are in Public Wards.

The Hospital receives no support from the Toronto Federation for Community Service because patients are accepted from all parts of the Province.

We must therefore appeal to a humane and generous public to take care of an annual deficit . . . this year it is $68,000.00.

• Please mail a donation to the Appeal Secretary, 67 College Street, Toronto.

The thanks of little children will be your reward.

The Hospital for Sick Children

Every morning in the year famous surgeons come to our operating rooms to donate their services. More than 8,000 operations are performed annually. But there are many extra involved in the maintenance of this necessary service is very costly.

Since 1928 the service rendered by the always-overworked Out-Patient Department has more than doubled. Last year 24,414 individual treatments were given. This service costs a small revenue—but not nearly enough.

THE DOUBLE-BARRED CROSS

International Symbol of the Crusade against Tuberculosis

As armies march across the pages of history, fighting for their rights or their wrongs as the case may be, one custom seems to have been common to them all: each carried flags and banners on which appeared the emblem of the cause.

Good or bad, the cause was always blazoned forth in terms of heraldry which gradually became a highly specialized study. After the dawn of the Christian era the cross became a tremendously popular symbol and with this emblem upon their banner, many a doughty knight rode forth to do battle for his principles and to save or reclaim the Holy Land from the Infidel.

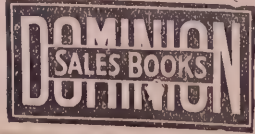

Crosses of all shapes, sizes and ornate decorations have been used by innumerable families, cities, orders, guilds, nations and causes. The Spaniards found a religious symbol among the Aztecs which was very similar to our cross. The Swastika of Hitlerism is an old symbol made of several crosses. Thus the habit of choosing emblems has carried over into our modern civilization and clubs and such peace-time associations still follow that age-old custom.

It was therefore quite the natural thing that as the war against tuberculosis gathered momentum, and nations after nations took up the cause, that some international emblem should be chosen which would be symbolic. The matter was given careful consideration for it was important that the symbol should be internationally accepted and have a universal appeal, and yet it should be decidedly distinct from any already adopted international symbols such as the Red Cross.

It would seem that the tuberculosis campaigners of the eighteenth-nineties or thereabouts, deliberately went out after a symbol that would have something like the significance and universal acceptance of the Red (Geneva) Cross, and yet be quite different from it. They had to avoid not only the Red Cross, but those of the various saints, George, Anthony, Andrew and so on. They had also to avoid the Celtic, the Greek, the Maltese and the Papal. In the words of Dr. D. A. Stewart, "After that, it would seem that what they thought they might require was a symbol and took." And so we have the patriarchal cross, the Lorraine cross, the two crusades, and now a symbol in every land of a new popular, enthusiastic and successful crusade against entrenched tuberculosis, a new crusade to win back for all the people of the world the Holy Land of Health.

This is the banner under which the Quakers, the Toronto and the Queen Mary Hospital for Consumptives have marched these many years—the banner under which they and other humane and tuberculosis workers' organizations in the Province have won such marked success.

But victory can only be won with the continued effort and the financial support of the people at large. Your contribution to National Sanatorium Association, 223 College St., Toronto will be greatly appreciated.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Friends of Mrs. Mary Caldwell are offering their congratulations on this her eighty-eighth birthday.

STORE BURGLARIZED

Some time during Wednesday night Bateman's store, at Springbrook, was broken into and a large quantity of cigarettes and some clothing stolen. The thieves gained admittance by taking the glass from a small window at the rear of the store, and the burglary was not discovered until Mr. H. Mumby opened the store this (Thursday) morning. Provincial Police were notified and are carrying out an investigation.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT ST. ANDREW'S

The service at St. Andrew's on Sunday morning last was of a unique nature in that the children of the Sunday School took a leading part. The attendance was exceptionally good with the children sitting in a body in the front centre seats. After the devotional exercises, Margaret Wilson, one of the Primary Grade, in a very clear voice recited "The Reason". Four little girls, Shirley Montgomery, Dora Rodgers, Mary Agnes Fox and Jean McIntosh, gave an illustrated exercise "Your Aim in Life." The entire school sang as a chorus "Carry Your Bible with you." Six Junior Girls, Mary Tulloch, Shirley Ormiston, Geraldine McLeaming, Jean McIntosh, put on an exercise "The Everyday things of Life." The school sang two choruses. Rev. J. A. Koffend gave a concise talk on "Watches" and set forth in a very graphic manner many useful lessons to the children and adults as well. During the service the presentation of awards for faithful attendance during 1936 took place. The following diplomas and seals were presented:

Diplomas: Marilyn Eggleton, Eileen Gibson, Bobby Koffend, Donald Jandrew, Charles Jandrew.
Second year seals: Margaret McIntosh, Shirley Montgomery, Dorothy Montgomery, Marjorie Gay.
Third year seals: Doreen Fox, Dora Rodgers, Margaret Wilson, Doras Jandrew.
Fourth year seals: Jean McIntosh, Grant Montgomery, Lillian Matthews, Mary Agnes Fox.
Sixth year seals: Earl Dafee, Glen Eggleton.
Seventh year seals: Shirley Ormiston, Donald McIntosh.

BREAKS LEG

Alex, young son of Mr. and Mrs. "Sandy" McCurdy, Ridge Road, suffered a painful accident about noon on Tuesday. He, along with a number of other pupils of the Ridge Road School was playing hockey on a pond in the vicinity of the school during the noon hour, and he struck a stump, injuring his left leg. He was assisted to his home and medical aid summoned, when it was found he had sustained a double fracture of the left leg, about three inches above the ankle. The injured member was placed in a cast and Alex will be confined to his home for some weeks.

STIRLING W. I.

Mrs. Perry Bronson was hostess to thirty members of the Women's Institute on Jan. 8th. The President, Mrs. Wm. West, conducted the opening exercises. Mesdames West, Rollins and Matheson are the visiting committee for one month. The open meeting is to be held on Thursday, Feb. 4th. The members decided to buy a number of chairs to be placed in the Community Hall. Mrs. E. Munro gave the topic on "Legislation." Mrs. Nora Westcott gave the current events of the day. The proceeds left from the Mother and Daughter banquet are to be used for the benefit of the Junior Girls of Hastings County. Mrs. Joe Wilson gave a demonstration on home dyeing. The meeting closed in the usual manner. Lunch was served. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess.

The busby truck driver leaned out of his cab and soundly abused the young man in the stalled car. The girl stood it as long as she could:

Girl (protesting): "Jack, surely you are going to say something to that surly lout."

"Jack: "You bet I am. Just wait till I get the car started."

A witness in a case started to pour out all he knew in a perfect torrent of words. The judge pulled him up, telling him he must first take the oath.

"Now," said the judge, "tell me what you have to say."
"Well," said the witness, "after the limitations you've imposed on me, I guess I've nothing to say."

WORRIED BY PIMPLES AND ECZEMA

Complexion Unblemished after Six Weeks of Kruschen

"For the past two years," writes a woman, "my face was covered with hard pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my neck and forearms. I tried lotions, creams and ointments, without the slightest effect. I was so worried. Fortunately I decided to give Kruschen a trial, and without any exaggeration, within six weeks my face was without a blemish and I have not had a sign of eczema since. I take Kruschen regularly every morning, and would not be without it." — (Mrs.) J.A.

Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood — irritant poisons which sluggish body organs are failing to expel from the system. Kruschen Salts help to keep the body organs functioning normally and healthily, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood.

BREAKS RIBS IN FALL

Constable S. E. Eggleton is suffering from three broken ribs as a result of an accident which occurred last Friday night, about eight o'clock. The Constable was on his usual round of inspection and was crossing North Street, in front of Dr. Demorest's residence, when he slipped on the icy road and fell, with the above results. Although suffering intense pain, Constable Eggleton remained on duty after receiving medical attention.

Mr. Lowrie, who is a veteran of the Great War, referred to several of his experiences in the front line as a private. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting. The February meeting will be held at the Rawdon parsonage.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Strickland was the scene of a well-arranged event on Friday evening, when the family of Mr. William Fitchett tendered him a surprise party on the occasion of his birthday.

The evening was spent in euchre and other games, following which a dainty lunch was served, including a birthday cake suitably decorated for the occasion.

After lunch all enjoyed dancing until midnight, when the party broke up, all wishing the guest of honour many more birthdays.

STIRLING HIGH SCHOOL AND MADOC TIE

Playing in the Stirling Arena Wednesday night, before a large and enthusiastic crowd of fans, the local High School team and Madoc battled to a tie 3-3, after ten minutes overtime. Butler, in the first period, Reid in the second, and Ward in the overtime, were the scorers for the locals.

Harry Conley handled the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

On Friday night last, the local school played Tweed at the latter place, with the result being a 0-0 tie.

WELFARE CLUB HOLDS SUCCESSFUL MEETING

In his opening remarks Mr. Hopper stated that the work of the Society for Crippled Children in restoring to health the thousands of children who are born crippled or become crippled by accidents or from the ravages of disease was only made possible through the interest of the 100 or more service clubs throughout the province, and the doctors who give their services free. Pictures showing scenes at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and at the summer branch at Thistleford, Ont., and the various treatments given these handicapped children in order to restore them to health and happiness were particularly interesting and left an indelible impression on the minds of those present, of the great work that is being carried on and the opportunity it presents for social service by citizens and organizations. Mr. Hopper urged parents to take all precaution against infantile paralysis, which was a common cause for children becoming crippled. Tuberculosis,rick-otts, and accidents were other contributing factors in selling their number. In closing the speaker empha-

"SON GROWS UP"

By Harry M. Moore

A STORY OF THE LUMBER CAMPS

THIRD INSTALMENT

The tote road, used by all the Rapid River camps, was the only connection by team with the village and station, several miles away. Heavily loaded sleighs crawled past him and he stepped aside for them, but there was no sign of a team going his way.

After a long hike, Tommy knocked at the door of a log house. A woman opened the door partially and peered at him out of black, piercing eyes. "Mr. Bellaire home?" Tommy asked. "No," she replied, "he's gone to work."

Tommy was surprised.

"Where?" he enquired.

"For Donald McCracken," she answered him.

With a groan Tommy turned away. Donald McCracken was starting in early to make things interesting for him. McCracken must be a power to be reckoned with in the Rapid River country, Tommy pondered as he returned slowly along the tote road. Tommy's jaws snapped. McCracken might be in power all right, he might carry things along to the detriment of others, but he would soon learn that there was one man on the Rapid River now who would never bend a knee to him.

Tommy grinned crookedly. He had learned already that McCracken's men were the best housed, the best fed, the highest paid, the most contented, in the big sticks. All very well. But wait until Camp Seven struck its stride!

Tommy plugged along, head down, battling with his latest disappointment, when his ear caught the music of sleigh bells. He jerked up his head suddenly, wheeled around and stepped out of the way of a little brown horse in cutter shafts. The horse pulled past him, a woman's voice enquired:

"Going far?"

Tommy raised his cap and looked into the face of the lone occupant of the cutter. Bundled up in a wealth of furs, a girl! An entrancingly beautiful girl!

"Jump in!" she invited, moving over and making room for him.

Wondering who she could be, Tommy squeezed into the seat beside her. At a single "click" from the driver the horse, a rangy animal, was away. Tongue-tied, Tommy found the girl's gaze upon him and he shifted uneasily. With one eye just a few hours from being black, a cheek with a long cut up the side, lips and nose split and swollen, he knew he was not a fit object for the female eye.

"A stranger here?" the girl asked suddenly.

"Yes," he made a painful effort to smile. "Just came in this morning and — and as bad luck would have it I had a slight misunderstanding with a certain person. I'm afraid, Miss my face."

"Do you mean to say you've been in a fight," she asked boldly.

Tommy nodded.

"Guess it was all of that," he confessed miserably.

She eyed him disapprovingly.

"Fighting is brutal," she said coldly. "It's degrading. Surely there was some other way of settling your differences with this — person."

"Maybe there was," he agreed, "but arguments take time, and time with me just now is money."

"Did you win the fight?" she asked, after a long space of rather frigid silence.

"Certainly," Tommy answered. "I simply had to you see."

There was another silence as she skilfully drove her horse off the road to pass a heavily loaded sleigh ahead.

"I must confess to a slight disappointment," she admitted when they had regained the beaten path again.

"I thought when I picked you up that you were young Tommy Benson."

"And what makes you think I'm not?" he asked curiously.

"Oh?" she explained, with a disdainful shrug. "Tommy wouldn't fight anybody. He's too easy-going a sort of feather-bed critter."

"Then you know this — this Tommy Benson?" he interjected.

"No, and yes," she replied. "I've never seen him, but I've heard a lot about him — from dad. Dad says he's a real mammy's pet — a sissy."

She brought her gauntleted hand down on the robe with a lusty slap.

"I detest a sissy! Don't you?"

"I sure do," Tommy admitted. He would have given all he owned right there and then for one good hearty laugh, but he was helpless. Even to grin was to bring a tinge of pain to his lips.

"Does your dad live here?" he questioned curiously.

She nodded.

"Yes. We live up the river."

"May I ask what his business is?"

Please, don't think me too inquisitive," he pleaded.

She laughed, a merry musical laugh.

"Dad's a tree cutter," she said.

"I suppose you know everybody hereabouts," he ventured.

Her laughing eyes sought his.

"Indeed I don't. But I know quite a number. Why?"

"Perhaps then, you know Donald McCracken?"

"Maybe," was her non-committal reply.

"And his daughter?"

"Oh, yes, why?"

"I understand she's a humdinger," Tommy ventured. "Flery red hair, freckle faced, and dangerous — dangerous as T.N.T."

Again the girl's gauntleted hand slapped the robe.

"Oh, dear! oh dear!" she laughed, "that's the limit! I'm sure Miss McCracken would be flattered by your description of her."

They had long since passed the spot where the path from Camp Seven met the road. They had reached a fork. Tommy put out his hand.

"I'll get out here, please!" he said, suiting action to word, but dropping a detaining hand on the high back of the cutter.

"Before you go, I'd like to know your name," he ventured curiously.

She appeared to think.

"My name is Betty — Betty Jones," she informed him. "And now, what is yours?"

"Tom — Tom Megan," he lied. I hope to see you again, Miss — Miss Jones."

The lines tightened in her hands.

"No great reason why you shouldn't Mr. — Mr. Megan, if you stay around here long enough," she smiled over her shoulder.

Tommy Benson stood in the middle of the road and watch the cutter out of sight.

"If she's Betty Jones, I'm a liar," he summarized, "and yet, she can't be Donald McCracken's daughter, for she hasn't a freckle, brunettes are not red-headed, and I'll bust any guy on the becker who says she's the least bit dangerous. Now, I wonder who she is?"

Tommy Benson was to find out in good time.

CHAPTER FOUR

Eventful, fruitful days in the life of Camp Seven on the Rapid River followed in rapid succession. Tommy Benson's battle cry of "Fight It Through!" had not only earned him that sobriquet, but had turned an otherwise prosaic lumber camp into a hive of industry.

Unable to secure a foreman, Tommy looked his men over carefully and selected Jim Waddell, a strapping big chap who had cut his wisdom teeth in the big sticks, as foreman. There was no ceremony about it. Just a lusty slap on the back and instructions and information in a few crisp sentences.

"Jim, from this time on, you're foreman here," Tommy blurted, before Waddell could find an opportunity to decline the honour. "Allow nothing to stop you. You'll meet with obstacles, but I want you to know that David Benson and The Benson Lumber Company are powerfully strong for the man who will give his best, and who'll stick under any and every trial and circumstance."

Nor had Tommy's faith in Jim Waddell's ability been misplaced. The men liked the upstanding Waddell. What is more, they respected him. And Camp Seven settled down to business. Tommy, whose duties involved book-keeping, answering all correspondence, with occasional jaunts to the limits and, to the tote road — remarked early on the wonderful improvement in Camp Seven over what had obtained the morning of his unexpected arrival.

But such a condition of progress and contentment in the camp was to have an unexpected upset. Donald McCracken was cunningly underhanded when he willed. One of his agents cleverly poisoned the minds of Tommy's teamsters. And Tommy's teamsters, being decidedly human, threatened to quit unless they were given a substantial wage increase. On the face of it, this wasn't bad. But back of it was the fact that the teamsters owned the horses they drove, and when they quit, Camp Seven would be forced to shut down. Which would be a pity with the end of the hauling season so close to hand.

Jim Waddell had been stamping furiously up and down the office floor for the better part of an hour. Tommy sat with feet on desk, eyes staring stonily at the wall. Suddenly he wiggled his lips, his feet struck the floor with a resounding crack.

"I've got it, Jim!" he shouted, springing to his feet. "I've got it. Bill Frost told me the other day about a jobber named McArthur on the south branch who has gone busted and he has some dandy teams doing nothing. They can be bought for a song if anyone can beat the sheriff to them. I'm going to do that very thing, Jim."

"But what'll I do if the teamsters decide to quit while you're away?" Jim asked with blank face.

Tommy Benson dropped an assuring hand on the foreman's shoulder. "Just fight, Jim! Fight like hell to keep 'em going till I get back. If I can buy those teams, I'll bring 'em back with me, and we'll show this bird McCracken and our pretty gang of pikers that there's an odd scrap in the old dog yet. In the meantime, Jim, don't stand there and scratch your head — use it!"

He ran out to the stable, grabbed a horse blanket, folded it and strapped it across the broad back of the only horse in the building. Who owned that animal or why it was in the stable never caused him a thought. Five minutes later he shot past the office window. It was ten miles to McArthur's camp and the afternoon was about half gone.

Dusk was settling down over the timber country when he dismounted. No one was to be observed around the camp. He opened the door of the office. Several men were sitting by the stove. One of them offered him a chair, but Tommy declined. "I'm looking for Mr. McArthur," he stated.

"I'm McArthur," an elderly man acknowledged quietly.

"Understand you have some horses for sale?" Tommy came to the point.

"Is that so?"

"Possibly," the other answered, rather diffidently Tommy thought.

"I've come to buy them — if they suit me," Tommy stated quickly. "How many of them have you?"

"Eight teams," McArthur said. "I expect another man along here any minute to look them over."

Tommy squared his shoulders.

"Unless you've given the other man an option," he explained, "it shouldn't matter to you who gets them as long as you get your price. May I see the horses?"

"There's no option," McArthur admitted, plucking his cap from a nail over his desk, and leading the way to the stables.

Tommy ran his eyes appraisingly over McArthur's teams. They were big strapping animals, in the pink of condition — just what he required to teach his teamsters and Donald McCracken that Camp Seven had no intentions of being wiped off the map for some long time yet.

FULLER

The mild weather seems to have caught a severe cold and has again brought forth muffers and mittens.

On Wednesday at the Public school owing to the icy conditions, two kiddies were hurt. One, Master Douglas Kellar, fell and cut his tongue, necessitating three stitches.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mitts and Mrs. Frank Kellar went to Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. Samuel Vardy is nursing a very bad cold and says it's brand new yet. Latest report is that he is getting better.

About fifty of the neighbours were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis on Tuesday evening.

The annual business meeting of the Fuller United Church was held at the Church on Friday evening. The following were elected to the different offices: Secretary, Clayton Rutter; Treasurer, H. R. Burke; Trustees, Frank Kellar, Sylvanus Mitts, B. D. Brough and H. R. Burke; Stewards, Frank Palmer, Sylvanus Mitts, B. D. Brough and H. R. Burke; Elders, J. M. Geen, Levi Rutter and Archie Jones; Caretaker, Mrs. Roy Mitts. Officers for Sunday School were: Supt. Archie Jones; Asst. Supt., Clayton Rutter; Secretary, Frank Brough; Treasurer, Levi Rutter; Organist, Mrs. Joseph Kellar; Teacher of Bible Class, Clayton Rutter; Teacher of Teen-age Class, Mrs. Curtis, and teacher of Primary Class, Miss Bessie Hollinger. It may be of interest to know our Sunday School was organized 72 years ago.

Mrs. M. J. Hallett was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Burke recently. Albert Mitts has a bad attack of quinsy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Geen and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irvine spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Sherry, Thomasburg.

Mr. Fred McCauley is real smart after his recent illness. Mrs. I. J. Brough visited at Mrs. Owen McEvoy's on Tuesday.

Many were the visits made in the old days when the ladies would take along with them their knitting and by so doing kept up with their work. The memory of those good old days will never be forgotten. The writer can well remember getting in on some of those visits to play with the boys, and how we enjoyed those boyhood days. Some of the boys are gone today, but their memory lingers still. Very few of the older generation are living today, just Mr. and Mrs. William Gay, Mrs. Owen McEvoy, Mrs. Julia McEvoy, Mrs. I. J. Brough, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ray, Mrs. Haslett, Mr. and Mrs. George Post, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Wright, Mr. Felix Doran and his sister, Mrs. Donahue (Lizzie Doran) of Belleville, and Mr. John Morland. Nearly all of these have passed the four score mark. Mr. Morland will have reached the Century mark on February twentieth of this year. Although his health is failing, he is still quite strong. Many a time we have seen Mr. Morland driving the old red oxen.

We have heard from friends who have moved to other parts of Canada that take the News-Argus to get the home news, for they say it is like getting a letter from home. If there is any special news the Old Boys and Girls ho have left this burg would like, or something about the old home, just write the News-Argus and they will notify the writer. CANADA TO MAP EASTERN ARCTIC

Aerial Photography Will be used to survey islands

By JAMES MONTAGNES
Central Press Canadian Writer
Plans are now under way to air-map the islands which make up Canada's eastern Arctic. Preliminary work was started this past summer when Geodetic Surveyors C. H. Ney and Joseph Courtright established ground points at various ports of call on the annual cruise of the Nascope, supply ship to the far north.

By means of astronomical observations, radio time signals from the United States naval station at Arlington, Virginia, and use of survey instruments, longitude and latitude of ground points were recorded. This information will form the basis for future aerial photographic flights, the ground points being the starting and finishing lines for each set of aerial photographs. From the whole a correct map of the islands can be drawn.

Sees Mineral Possibilities
The two surveyors did more detailed mapping and charting in the Ungava Bay district of northern Quebec, bringing maps up to date in a district which to-day sees some aeroplanes and some ocean freighters.

Behind the aerial mapping plan is the possibility that aerial prospectors will repeat their mineral strikes in the eastern Arctic as they have done in the western northland. What little prospecting has been done has shown a certain amount of mineral wealth and some coal deposits. The territory is, however, less mapped and less settled than even the western Arctic, and the presence of vast glacier fields makes flying extremely hazardous, therefore good maps will have to be used by pilots on the search for minerals. Photographs will also aid in determining mineral possibilities as aerial photographs under a stereoscope come to life, showing height, rock formations, dykes and other geological formations from which miners engineers can determine to some extent the possibilities of certain mineral deposits.

Will Take Years
While the aerial mapping may not be started for a year or two yet, work in the eastern Arctic must be done on a long range basis. Only a few months of summer allow photographic flying and ground operations. Gradually, enough ground points will be established to enable airmen to photograph northern Quebec and Baffin Island. It is the intention of the government planners to move slowly but surely in the work of mapping the eastern Arctic, and work is laid out for some years in advance. Very little mapping has been done since that of the early explorers in the eastern Arctic, and the interiors of practically all the Arctic islands are unmapped. The nearer islands are expected to be air mapped by the time aerial prospectors are ready to invade these remote areas in search of more northern minerals.

of the programme closed with the singing of the hymn "Saviour again to Thy Dear Name we Raise", with Miss Calow playing the violin and Mrs. H. Moore at the piano. The final number was a Motor Romance contest directed by Miss Nita Cranston, in which the Khaki division gained first honors. This interesting meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

FRANK SPRENTALL NOMINATED FOR DIRECTOR
Among the results of the primary for 1937 for Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities to be elected at the convention being held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on Feb. 2nd and 3rd, in conjunction with the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association as revealed in the report of the scrutineers show following Belleville and district men nominated: For Vice-President, O. H. Scott, Belleville, and 16 others. Directors: O. H. Scott, George A. Reid, Belleville; Central District Directors: F. A. Sprentall, Stirling; R. O. Quick, Brighton; Frank Smith, Madoc, and many others.

Say You Saw It In The News-Argus

Canadian government surveyors, seen leaving their base in a coastal schooner (BELOW), began this year to chart the Ungava Bay district preparatory to an aerial mapping of the eastern Canadian Arctic. One of the administrative residences built by the government as starting points for the expeditions is at Lake Harbor, Baffin Island. A view of the building is shown at TOP.

THROUGH THE OFFICE WINDOW

BY The OFFICE OWL

Howdy folks.

Well, another week — another column —

I've regusted.

Like Vesuvius — we're almost ready to bust forth into eruption

Or something.

Week after week for the past five years there has been, with a few exceptions, a column headed "Through the Office Window", on page eight of this sheet.

When that column started A. E. Dobbie was the chief push around this office.

He knew his onions as far as his end of the work here was concerned — thought we knew ours, and never once did he censor the contents of copy intended for this mess.

Later the present editor took it over.

He too, we believe, is doing well with his section of the paper (it's all his as far as that goes) the only thing being that he writes nothing that is headed "By the Office Owl".

Nor has he undertaken to censor any of the copy intended for this column.

If the weekly edition of the stuff that comes out under the heading "Through the Office Window" has been a failure, then we know just who to blame. If it has enjoyed any measure of success, that's the same thing.

Let it be understood, says we, that when this column doesn't go to press the way the writer intended it to go — it doesn't go at all.

So when a friend came to us over the week-end and told us of murmurings on the part of a certain individual to the effect that he's surprised the Editor lets a lot of our stuff go through the News-Argus — that burns us up!

When anybody else but the present writer undertakes to fill this column or say what does fill it, there will be no column bearing the same heading.

We're grateful for the co-operation of both the editors with whom we have worked on this paper.

We believe they thought we could do this much by ourselves, and left it at that.

So when this particular reader undertakes to burst forth in surprise in future, we'd like him to understand he's not to blame the Editor, who had nothing to do with what has or will be written so long as the column appears.

That's that off our chest.

Now we feel better.

Because we've only had about half a dozen complaints in five years which keeps the "batting average" up fairly well.

Well the hockey teams are going pretty good hereabouts.

All practicing regularly and, according to reports, doing well.

The rural league games are beginning to pack in the customers down at the arena.

The High School team has had preliminary practices and held the Tweed crew to a tie in the first game.

We hope they do as well this season as they did the year they took the championship of the league.

If they don't, it isn't a lack of material that's holding them up.

For any school that has a rugby team such as the locals put on the field last fall, certainly has any amount of what it needs for material on a hockey team.

They've got just as much or perhaps more weight now than they had the year Ackers coached them to a championship.

But changes have been made this year, so we don't just know who the duties of coach will fall upon.

We do know this — the lads will need support.

Material and coach mean very little to a team if they're not receiving support from the fans.

They can't get far without it.

Throw the odd dime across the wicket and see these boys in action.

Well, we dropped in to see the new Council in action on Monday night.

Not that they couldn't get off to a good start without us, but the thought struck us that maybe we'd get a line on something for this week's column.

There they sat, as we entered the Council Chamber.

A long business-like appearing table.

At one end of this piece of furniture camps The Reeve, the Chief Magistrate, Admiral of the local Fleet, General of the Army and chairman of the meeting.

On his left sits Councillor Burkit, second mate on the ship; alderman of the Exalted Music and official yes-man.

Next is Councillor Whitehead. Job sits very silent, as if in deep thought. He'll have to think deep in company like that. Mr. Whitehead acts as despatch rider.

Hands papers from the Reeve to the Clerk (who sits at the other end of the table).

Across the table from Mr. Burkit sits one of the other ministers of State — C. B. Rollins.

"C. B." ain't the Conservative Whip or the Liberal Whip. No, he's just in between there somewhere.

It's his duty to stir things up, hurry the motions through, find chairs for the visitors, offer advice and supply the cigarettes for the crowd.

Also on Mr. Rollins' side of the table is Mr. Stapley.

This member does all the figuring. He has his pencil and paper at a point which is within easy reach, and subject to immediate call. He asks the questions.

At the end of the table opposite the Reeve (at a safe distance) sits Mr. Geo. Luery. He's the time-keeper, book-keeper and letter-opener.

In some places they'd call him the Clerk.

His duties are varied and numerous.

He looks after the health and pleasure of the assembled war lords.

He puts the window up if it's too hot. Puts it down if it's too cold. Opens the stove door if the fire is too frisky. Reads applications for jobs; complaints about roads; the price of water and electricity; and finally a letter stating that a family on relief is out of soda biscuits. That's only part of his duties. He's the only member of the troupe that gets paid.

Off up at the other corner of the table sits a quiet-looking soul. Doing a modern Houdini mystery act — knows all, sees all, says nothing. Mr. H. R. Tompkins, of your local news-sheet. There to serve the news out of all happenings of interest which bloom forth as a result of concentrated efforts on the part of the ambassadors of something or other that are assembled under the never-swinging guidance of Chief Principal Cranston, D.E. (doctor of everything).

That's the set-up.

No preliminaries (not even community singing). They just go at the problems at hand like a steam shovel in a stone quarry.

And how things fly!

For about ten minutes.

Then the pace slackens.

They're not in condition. They have to slow up for breath.

But not for long. Then they take fresh aim and fire.

Let the shots hit where they may!

It looks as if the Village will weather the storm alright for another year.

The boys get down to business right off the bat and they've got their committees all appointed for the next year's work.

Due to past experience with a grader, Councillor Rollins will be chairman of the roads committee.

He'll be assisted by Mr. Stapley.

Any time you don't want to get out and shovel your snow just call Mr. Stapley and it's up to him to borrow a shovel and clean off your sidewalks.

We shouldn't have mentioned that because he's going to be busy most of the time on a couple of the walks in front of properties not so far up West Front Street.

Well then Messrs Burkit and Whitehead are on the property committee.

We don't just know what this pair has to do, but we take it for granted that if you want to borrow the village step-ladder you'll have to speak to Mr. Burkit about it.

Being a member of the property committee will probably mean that Joe Whitehead will have to grease and polish the fire engine, and keep the bell in shape.

Messrs Stapley and Burkit are the Cemetery Committee.

It's probably up to Mr. Burkit to see that the grass gets cut, and Mr. Stapley to chase the cows and things away. He'll help water the flowers if it don't rain.

If you see Frank headin' up the hill with a shingle in his hip pocket you'll know he's going to plug a hole in the vault.

Then there's the Relief committee

If Earl Ormiston applies for relief he's going to be in a mess.

The whole darned Council and two ladies of Stirling, and Mr. R. Meiklejohn will go up to his residence, search the place, and if they find a can of beans in the pantry they won't give Earl no relief until the next day.

The beans will tide him over.

If Bill Anderson asks for help they'll all go up to his house, go through the clothes closets and if they find Bill has an extra pair of pants for his good suit, they'll make him sell one pair before he gets any grub from the Council.

At the end of the year Harry Hulin and Maurice Bell (the newly-appointed auditors) will add up the figures compiled by the Council, Reeve, Treasurer, Clerk and Janitor.

If said figures ain't right, they're supposed to make up the difference — or something.

Constable Sam Eggleton has also graduated.

Along with the rest of his duties he's Weed Inspector, Sanitary Inspector, School attendance Officer —

And "Cowboy"!

Whatever that is.

From the sound of it though, we expect to find Mr. Eggleton out with a pair Persian Lamb Chaps, riding the top deck of Archie McGee's horse; with might and main yelling "Yippee!" and prodding the animal in the ribs with a set of spurs.

"Headin' fer the last roundup".

Chasing Ernie Munro's cow up the C. N. R. tracks towards Anson.

Admission 35 cents.

They've also appointed a new caretaker for the cemetery.

Why — we don't know. We haven't figured that one out — at least not quite.

We figured Acie was doing the work all right, and Mr. Rold rather needed the job.

HIGH - FIDELITY - SOUND

The main object for the change seemed to be tenders that "cut in" and chiselled the salary down $50.00.

Which is poor business!

We'd resent having anybody meander in here with a bunch of promises and an inclination to do our work for two cents less on the hour.

So would any member of that Council if their job were affected.

The new man must shovel the snow around town, right after it snows. Sand the ice where it's needed. Clean the winter flakes up from around the Memorial Plot, etc., etc.

A full-time employee of the village — Sundays included if it ever snows on Sunday (which it has been known to do).

As the Councillors were so particular to emphasize — "A Full-Time Employee" of the town.

Some punkins eh?

That makes ten hours a day for 365 days a year —

Not counting Leap Year. That's all thrown in sort of gratis and big-hearted like Kind of adds up to 3650 hours.

At $450.00

The dignified, pompous, extravagant sum of 12 cents an hour!

Gosh that's too much!

Before, men who wanted relief shoveled the snow in some cases.

Now, the bidder for the Cemetery caretaking job offers to do it all and do it for $50 less!

Bargain Day!

That kind of puts what have been recently termed "our working boys" on the spot.

The guys that want relief will still get it.

What for?

Ask them that knows!

It's a nice system though.

There are a lot of people up on the hill now who never dreamed of such a thing.

If you haven't made your last will and testament yet, you can be awful generous.

When you come to the part where you leave a stipulated number of "berries" for the purpose of having the cemetery caretaker plant the odd blade of grass on what earth is holding you down, just word it this way:

"Grass, $50.00; petunias, $4.47; sunflowers, 25 cents (they go a long ways); shovelling snow on village sidewalks, $77.61.

That'll be your good turn for the day.

And particularly easy too, seeing as how it all goes with the one job now.

You'll know you've done yer duty, and done it good.

Yes Sir! The new man will be expected to do everything now except conduct funeral services. Acie hasn't got his papers for that job so it's just as well, maybe, that he's out of it.

The old caretaker has lived in this neck of the woods for years. Paid taxes here. Raised a family sent them to school here. In fact we've heard about Acie being in Stirling quite a long time without bad marks on the register.

Several other applicants also have been here a long time, contributing to the village funds.

Can the same be said of the new caretaker?

Our opinion ain't worth a darn to the Council, the ratepayers, or anybody else — but it's bad business to cut down on salaries that are already too small just because somebody else will "cut in" and try to "exist" on $450 a year.

And don't blame the Editor for that statement — he doesn't even know it's here!

Guess maybe we done like somebody has said — got up on the wrong side of the bed this morning.

But we still maintain there are better ways of saving money than cutting salaries.

Especially since "relief" has become so stylish.

The guys that make a little (be it ever so humble) are the ones that have to pay it, some way or other.

There's an old saying "All the world loves a lover."

Here's one of more recent vintage — "All the world detests a wage whittler."

If salaries are a thing of the past and everybody should work for as little as isn't too disgraceful — let's be in line with the times, and with those who are more fortunate than we are, and all go on, relief.

It wouldn't be so hard to figure out and then we'd all be getting the same.

We could get together at a sewing party (if anyone cared to sew), and talk our financial difficulties over together. Most of us could learn something from them that's enjoyed it so long.

And some day we could have a picnic — lemonade, sandwiches —

Wouldn't that be fun?

And it wouldn't cost much.

If so —

ODDFELLOWS WERE HOSTS

Over Eighty Present at Social Evening and Programme Enjoyed

The spirit of brotherhood and good-fellowship prevailed at the Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday night when the officers and members of Stirling Lodge, No. 239, entertained their friends at a social evening. The event which was held in commemoration of the birthday of the founder of the Order, Thos. Wilding, was most successful and more than upheld the high reputation enjoyed by the Stirling Oddfellows as hosts. Over eighty were in attendance and enjoyed the evening's programme.

The gathering was called to order about 8.15 by Mr. W. L. Anderson, and was immediately turned over to Mr. Harry Tullin, chairman of the Programme Committee, who presided throughout the evening. The guests were welcomed by Mr. W. L. Anderson, followed by community singing of several old favourites, led by Bill Jones, with Maurice Bell presiding at the piano. In a brief address Mr. Harry Tullin outlined the origin of the Society and its formation in the city of Baltimore on April 26th, 1805. Since that time its teachings had been implanted in the hearts of over ten million persons. While a religious institution, Oddfellowship avoided all connection with any sect or political party, and today was accepted by every organization in the world. In conclusion he stated that the social evening was being held in commemoration of the birthday of the Founder of the Order, Thos. Wilding.

The first part of the programme consisted of a number of instrumental and vocal selections, interspersed by reading by the members and guest artists, as follows: Instrumental duet by James Armstrong and Bill Jones, guitars and harmonicas; reading, "Casey at the Bat", by Chas. Carter; vocal solo "Goin' to have a big time tonight", Douglas Richardson; harmonica solo, C. A. Wells, accompanied by Bill Jones on the guitar.

Rev. J. E. Beckel was the guest speaker of the evening and delivered a very instructive and inspirational address on the three great principles of Oddfellowship, namely Friendship, Love and Truth. The practising of the Spirit of friendship meant a great deal in the life of any individual, especially if he were a stranger in our community. Since coming to Stirling he had found it to be one of the friendliest communities in which he had ever resided, stated the speaker, which was probably due to the spirit of friendship practised by the members of the Oddfellow Order in the community. Wars and rumours of war would soon cease if international affairs were governed by friendship.

Turning to the second principle of Love, Rev. Mr. Beckel reminded his hearers that the hardest thing for a man to do was to love his neighbour. A true Oddfellow must practise love. To know the truth of things was a great achievement, continued the speaker. We have reached the stage when we know the truth about nationalism and we should seek to get rid of our selfish views in this regard. The truth about politics was also known and citizens should remain from being partisans, but should exercise their franchise for the betterment of our country. The truth about work and education was also briefly outlined by the speaker, showing the difference between education and intelligence. An educated man knows what others think, while an intelligent man thinks for himself and acts accordingly, stated Mr. Beckel. In conclusion he reminded his audience that religion was not a creed, but a life to live. This was a very appropriate address and was given close attention by those present.

A second group of musical selections and readings included an instrumental duet by Jimmy Armstrong and Bill Jones; reading, "The Irish Philosopher", Alex. Park; piano solo, Don McIntosh; reading, J. B. Thompson; vocal selection, D. Richardson. Dainty refreshments were served by the members of the lodge, following which Mr. Tullin acted as toastmaster and the following toasts were honoured: "The King"; "Our Guests", proposed by Mr. G. L. Thain, and re-

DISTEMPER HITS DOGS

An epidemic of distemper is prevalent among dogs in Stirling and district, according to a dog owner of the Village, whose pet is a victim of the disease. The unusually mild weather is blamed for the outbreak, but so far no deaths have been reported.

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF HYDRO BOARD

At the annual organization meeting of the local Hydro Commission held on Monday night, Mr. T. W. Solmes was elected chairman for the ensuing year. Mr. F. Sprentall was again appointed to the office of Secretary-Treasurer and manager of the local system. The newly-elected Commissioner, Mr. Walter Jeffrey, and Reeve Thos. Cranston were welcomed to the Commission by Mr. Solmes, who expressed the wish that the same co-operation might exist among the members as in the past.

Mr. Frank Stapley addressed the Commission relative to the rate paid for power at his chopping mill, but no definite action was taken in the matter.

With encouraging reports from the various organizations; the Missionary Apportionment for the Parish paid in full for 1936; and a small balance in the Bank, the annual Vestry Meeting of St. John's Church was held in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening, January 18th.

Mr. Wm. Dunn was re-appointed Vestry Clerk and the various financial reports presented and discussed. The nomination of Dr. H. H. Alger as People's Warden met with the unanimous approval of the meeting, while the appointment of Mr. J. B. Belshaw by the Rector, to be his Warden for the coming year, was enthusiastically received by all those present.

Those appointed to the Advisory Committee are as follows: Mrs. H. H. Alger, Mrs. Chas. Vance, Mr. F. Kent, Mr. E. A. Morrow, Mr. N. A. Heath, Mr. Walter Wright, Mr. Edgar Morrow, Mr. John Stiles, Mr. A. Strickland, Mr. Jas. McDonnell, Mr. H. P. Ellis and Mr. Chas. Fairies Sr., will be in charge of the sidesmen while Mr. N. A. Heath and Mr. Edgar Morrow will act as Auditors for the coming year. The Hall Management Committee consists of the Rector, Mr. Earl A. Morrow, Mr. J. B. Belshaw, Dr. H. H. Alger and Mr. H. P. Ellis. Mr. Ellis continues as Treasurer of the Building Fund and brought in a most encouraging report showing the continued interest in the undertaking, both on the part of the congregation and by many citizens of the community at large.

Votes of thanks and appreciation were expressed to all individuals and organizations who had assisted in the work of the Church during the past year, and a vote of appreciation for, and confidence in the work of the Rector, Rev. A. S. McConnell, and in which was included his wife and mother, was warmly received by everyone present.

There was a wonderful spirit of fellowship shown throughout the whole meeting and the meeting came to a successful conclusion with the pronouncement that 1936 was the most successful year in the history of St. John's Church.

After the Rector had pronounced the Benediction, the members of the A. Y.P.A. were hosts to the congregation serving a light lunch during a social hour.

Spoken to by Mr. J. L. Good and Rev. W. J. Scott.

The thanks and appreciation of the lodge to the guest artists were expressed by Chairman Tullin, following which eulchre was enjoyed by those who wished, until a late hour.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Encouraging Reports Given at Well Attended Meeting — New President

Stirling Agricultural Society held its annual meeting in the Agricultural Rooms on Tuesday afternoon, with President E. J. Pyear in the chair and a good representation of the directors and members in attendance. Those present were Messrs J. E. O'Donnell, Sec.; F. R. Mallory, J. M. Carl, H. Henth, Jos. Wilson, E. Carlisle, H. Farrell, J. B. Thompson, C. McGee, Wm. Fitchett, A. Scott, G. Thompson, Treasurer; S. Holden, A. Wannamaker, H. P. Ellis, C. U. Heath, Hector Whitton, C. M. Sine, Thos. W. Solmes, Arthur Duncan and H. R. Tompkins.

Following the adoption of the minutes of the last annual and subsequent directors' meetings, the financial statement of the Society was presented by Mr. G. Thompson, and read by Mr. J. E. O'Donnell. This report showed that in spite of prevailing conditions, the Society had made some progress in lowering the outstanding indebtedness, as well as meeting all of its financial obligations in connection with the past year's fair, which was spoken of as one of the best in the history of the Society.

Mr. Jos. Wilson reported for the auditors and complimented the officers on the excellency of their work. Communications were tabled from the Central Ontario Fairs Association in relation to its annual meeting to be held in Belleville on Thursday, January 28th, and from the Ontario Association of Fairs, relative to its meeting in Toronto on Feb. 3rd.

Mr. Harry Heath, Supt. of the Horse Dept., spoke of dissatisfaction among the exhibitors in this class because the prize list didn't include a separate class for agricultural colts. At present this type of colt is being shown in competition with the heavy draught class and owing to their size the latter usually got the preference from the judges. Mr. J. B. Thompson also spoke in similar vein, and stated he thought that unless a change was made owners of the agricultural colts would not compete. This matter was left for the new board of directors to consider.

In reporting for the Poultry Department, Mr. William Fitchett stated everything had been satisfactory at the last fair and the number of entries were increasing each year.

Mr. Arthur Scott, Superintendent of the Cattle Department, suggested that the grounds be levelled off to permit the cattle to be shown to better advantage. This will be attended to by the grounds committee.

Mr. H. P. Ellis gave a detailed statement of the "Jollies" which was staged in aid of the Society and at the conclusion of the report a vote of thanks was unanimously extended the entertainment committee for their work in the interests of the Society.

It was decided to again affiliate with the Ontario Association of Fairs, the annual convention of which will be held early next month.

The election of officers was the next item of business and Mr. E. J. Pyear, in calling for nominations for the office of President, stated that he had held the office for the past eight years and was not a candidate for reelection. He had appreciated the honour conferred upon him, also the splendid co-operation given him throughout the years by the directors. During the coming year he would lend whatever assistance he could to the new officers and directors. The Society had been operating under heavy financial obligations, which was embarrassing to any organization, but nevertheless had made considerable progress. The following officers were elected:

President — J. B. Thompson.
1st Vice-Pres. — Ben Blecker.
2nd Vice-Pres. — Thos. W. Solmes.
Directors — Messrs C. U. Heath, C. F. Linn, W. H. Heath, J. C. McGee, C. M. Sine, W. H. Patterson, F. M. Ruthenford, William Fitchett, A. Scott, E. Carlisle, Geo. Weaver, S. Holden, W. H. Farrell, F. R. Mallory, H. R. Tompkins, H. P. Ellis, J. B. Belshaw.

HIGH SCHOOL DANCE

A dance, under the auspices of the Athletic Association of the Stirling High School, will be held in the Community Hall here, on Thursday next, January 28th. Music will be supplied by Jack Grant's Aces and those who attend are assured of a good evening's entertainment. The committee in charge wishes, it is understood, that dancing will commence at nine o'clock sharp.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue an article appeared which gave the judgment delivered at Belleville by the tribunal which has been sitting on the appeal made by Marmora and Lako Township and the Village of Frankford, against the equalized assessment in the County of Hastings and so far as Rawdon township assessment was concerned, an error in the figures occurred. Rawdon township was raised from $1,923,300 to $1,935,300, a matter of approximately $12,000 instead of $112,000 as appeared in last week's report.

WORTH A TRIAL

The collection of taxes in any municipality during the years of depression has been a difficult problem for those in charge of this work, and municipal Councils are continually faced with the problem of arrears of taxes. While the percentage of taxes collected in Stirling has been quite high, there is still a large amount of arrears and the collectors' rolls for several years back are still incomplete. This is a condition that is prevalent in a great many municipalities and one that taxes the patience of the municipal officials. As a result of arrears of taxes loans are necessitated to cover current expenses and the amount of interest charges frequently reaches a high mark. Various plans have been tried in different municipalities, among them being the sale of prepayment tax receipts during the early months of the year, when borrowing is usually the heaviest. This scheme allows the ratepayer, who is financially able, to prepay all or any portion of his taxes at a slight saving. The benefits of this plan are mutual—the taxpayer making a saving in the amount of his taxes, and the municipality in turn saving a little in the amount paid for interest on money borrowed to meet current expenditures. In Stirling the taxes are collected twice yearly, in July and December, but no discount is allowed for payment in advance, although there is a five per cent. penalty imposed if taxes are not paid on the date specified. If an inducement were offered the taxpayers there would no doubt be some who would pay all their taxes at the time of the first payment. In view of the fact that a rate of five and one-half per cent. has to be paid on loans made from the local bank, we believe that the members of the local Council could well afford to offer some inducement to the property owners to pay their taxes early. Such a plan should at least be worth a trial, and we believe there would be a good response from the taxpayers. Last year the amount paid for interest on loans was considerably over the two hundred and fifty dollar mark, in a year when expenditures were cut as low as possible. If Council contemplates any great expenditure of money during the coming year, the interest charges will mount accordingly. There is no doubt that an opportunity to save on the tax bill would be greatly appreciated by those who have to foot the bill, and besides the problem of financing the municipality would be made a little easier.

SHOULD BE AMENDED

Last week the decision of the tribunal relating to the equalized assessment for Hastings County was handed out, resulting from the appeal of Marmora and Lake Township and the Village of Frankford. In each case the municipalities won the appeal and had the assessment lowered, while other municipalities were raised. On the whole the changes were comparatively slight, with the exception of a few municipalities. Seven municipalities were lowered, thirteen were increased and six remained the same.

In the case of Stirling the members of the tribunal saw fit to raise the assessment one and two-fifths per cent., which amounts to five thousand two hundred dollars, and will mean about half a mill increase on the county rate. This in itself is not a great deal, and there can be little fault found with the result so far as Stirling is concerned. It does seem, however, that the expenditure of large sums of money for a competent tribunal, together with lawyers' fees, and other costs, might all have been avoided, if the members of County Council had used better judgment and settled the matter among themselves. We understand that such a settlement was practically completed at one time during the dispute, but one or two members of Council refused to compromise and as a result the County was forced to spend thousands of dollars which might easily have been saved.

While the matter has been settled for the present year, there is nothing to prevent the County being put to the same expense in another year. In fact already there are murmurings of dissatisfaction with the decision of the tribunal and it is stated that one of the municipalities that had its assessment raised considerably will launch an appeal next year. If this is done Hastings County may find itself faced each year with an assessment dispute which, in the end, will run into large expenditures of public money.

Under these conditions it would be a wise thing for the County to take some steps to have the present act so amended that once the assessment had been settled by the court it would be impossible to open the question again for a term of years and then only upon the representations of a number of the municipalities. Unless something is done, the municipalities of the County might be put to a yearly expense that is not warranted.

CURRENT COMMENT

While Monday was the last day on which passenger automobiles could be driven with the 1936 markers, one may still see the odd car sporting the old license plates. The Minister of Highways, Hon. T. B. McQueen, has announced that there will be no further extension of time, so the owners of these cars will have to procure their licenses at once or suffer the consequences.

One by one the municipalities which experimented with the cash relief system are returning to the voucher system. Deseronto is the latest to make the change because, as the Deseronto Post points out, the relief recipients have been abusing the privileges afforded by the cash system. Under this system there is no way of confining the spending of the money in the municipality providing the relief, while criticism is frequently heard of those on relief spending the cash for unnecessary articles. Stirling Council used good judgment when it stuck to the voucher system.

The decision of the Dominion Government, as revealed in the Speech from the Throne, to reduce the age at which those afflicted with blindness will receive a pension to below seventy years of age is a most commendable one. While the age at which the pension is to be granted is not mentioned, the general impression is that it will be somewhere near the fifty-year mark. Efforts to bring this about have been made for a number of years and the Government's action will be welcomed by those interested. Persons afflicted with the loss of sight are under a distinct handicap so far as providing for themselves is concerned, and we are sure that the citizens as a whole will be in hearty accord with the Government's action.

The greatest fire loss in Canada, last year, over $2,780,000 was caused by 4,800 fires traced to defective or carelessly handled stoves, furnaces, chimneys, boilers and pipes. During the past few weeks the Stirling Fire Brigade has been called to different homes to extinguish chimney fires, all attributable to carelessness in not having them kept free from an accumulation of soot. Due to the particularly mild season many residents are burning wood instead of coal as fuel, consequently the pipes and chimney should be cleaned frequently to offset any chance of a blaze. Pipes passing through a roof, wall, floor or ceiling should also be protected by a metal collar surrounding them, in which there is an air space. Take all precautions, blazing chimneys are a fire hazard.

When over seven hundred inmates of the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph rioted on Sunday afternoon last it marked the first major disturbance to occur in a penal institution in this province since the one in the Kingston Penitentiary a few years ago. The failure of the authorities to distribute Christmas gifts and unsatisfactory food are the reasons advanced for the outbreak which left the interior of the institution practically a shambles. The Ontario Government has instituted an investigation to ascertain the cause of the outbreak, but whether or not the investigation will reveal the true cause of the trouble at the institution remains to be seen. Certain it is that there must be some underlying cause for these all too frequent upheavals in the penal institutions in our country.

After weeks of uncertainty hockey enthusiasts in Stirling are assured of a chance to support a local intermediate team in the Trent Valley League comprising entries from Marmora, Tweed, Madoc, Belleville and Norwood. The first home game will be played in the local arena next Monday night, when Belleville will be the visiting Club, and every red-blooded hockey fan in Stirling and community is urged to be on hand and give the locals their support. Last year the local entry in this league was successful in winning the championship and while this year's aggregation is lacking some of the stars of former years, once the youngsters gain a little experience they should make it interesting for any team in the League. It is only by encouraging the younger players that hockey will continue to flourish in the community, so be sure and be present next Monday night to do your part in supporting good, clean, wholesome sport in the community.

The unusually mild weather is playing havoc with the activities at the local arena. Not only has skating been curtailed, but it has been necessary to postpone several hockey matches scheduled in the different leagues, and still there is no indication of any lengthy period of severe weather. Unless cold weather comes soon it will be almost impossible to complete the scheduled games. In the rural league the teams play two nights a week now, and the addition of several postponed games will make it necessary to play three or four times a week. In addition there are the Trent Valley League and the Interscholastic League, in which local teams are entrants, to be accommodated. Not only has the mild weather been responsible for less sport in the community, but in the long run it may mean quite a large financial loss to the local arena company, which has been barely meeting expenses even in good years, as well as to the individual clubs, which have been called upon to spend substantial sums in equipment. We hope for their benefit that weather conditions will be such that none of their games will have to be abandoned.

What Others Say

Campbellford Herald — One of the troubles of the country today is that too many people want to make the relief roll into a loaf.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)
What does it matter who suggests plans or ideas for the betterment of this town? We don't see any monuments erected around the burg to the memory of anyone who probably did more for Trenton than many of the present generation added together. If a man cannot do something for his town without expecting his fellow citizens to rise up and say "He did it," such a man lacks the proper spirit. Many of the best things that this or any other town ever secured was the work of men who never courted publicity, never had their pictures in the metropolitan papers. These men are the salt of the earth and poor copy for the space writers.

NICE GOING

A Missouri woman advertised for a husband. She got one at a cost of two dollars. He enlisted in the army and was killed. She got $3,000 in insurance and will get a widow's pension as long as she lives. Yet there are those who say advertising does not pay.

GOVERNMENT TRAVELLING EXPENSES UP $398,829

Travelling expenses cost the Federal Government $3,278,217 in the fiscal year 1935-36, the report of the Auditor-General tabled in the House of Commons showed. This was an increase of $398,829, or 13.9 per cent., over the previous years.

WELLINGTON RAISES LABOUR WAGE RATE

Workmen labouring for the village of Wellington in 1937 will be paid at the rate of twenty-five cents an hour according to a motion laid down at the inaugural meeting of the 1937 council held last week. This constitutes a raise of five cents an hour and is the first of its kind since the bally days preceding 1929. As the rate set down by the village council is usually followed by the various industries of the village, residents feel that prosperity after all may be hovering around the corner.

DOMINION GOVERNMENT WILL 'AID AIRPORTS

Due to progress in aviation, the Federal Government will extend financial assistance to cities on the trans-Canada airway for building and improving airports. Transport Minister Howe announced Saturday the larger and faster airplanes being used necessitated extension of airport facilities, and the Government is permitted to contribute one-third of the cost of new airports or improvement of existing airports if it deemed necessary. A general Order-in-Council has been passed making this possible, he said. It will be applicable, to be inaugurated next summer, and hangars and buildings do not come within the Order-in-Council.

REMEDY FOR PNEUMONIA

A reader forwards the following cure for pneumonia.
"Six to ten onions, according to size; chop fine, put in a large spider over a hot fire, then add about the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar, enough to make it a thick paste. In the meantime stir it thoroughly for five or ten minutes, then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs, and apply it to the chest as hot as the patient can bear. When it gets cool apply another, and thus continue by heating the poultices. In a few hours the patient will be out of danger. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient; continue always until perspiration starts freely from the chest. This simple remedy has never failed in this often fatal malady. It was formulated many years ago by one of the best New England physicians."

MARMORA TAKES MADOC DOWN 2 TO 1

The first home game of the local interscholastic schedule was played in Madoc January 18, Marmora defeating the homeesters 2-1. Owing to the warm weather the ice was in poor condition, making combination plays virtually impossible, and as a consequence play was slow and ragged, settling down into an individual contest. For Madoc the outstanding players were K. Martin, who turned in a stellar performance in goal, and Pete Parks, the alternate right wing. For Marmora N. O'Neill and Kouri were the best.

LARGE OWL SHOT

There have been some huge Great Horned Owls shot down recently in Prince Edward County but Bernard Cole now lays claim to having bagged the largest of them all.

The Gazette learned Bernard Cole, local express driver, shot down the great bird on Macaulay's Mountain this week. He was accompanied by William Hayes of Port Burwell who is visiting in the district. Cole was carrying a shot gun and brought down the bird on the wing. When measured its wing spread was found to be 57 inches. — Picton Gazette.

CLAIMS BUT FEW MUNICIPAL AUDITS MADE CORRECTLY

"Less than fifty per cent. of municipal audits in Ontario show a true picture of affairs in words and figures of how the taxpayers' money is being accounted for," said H. L. Cummings, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, in a three-hour address and round-table discussion with Huron County Council at Goderich.

Mr. Cummings appealed for improved accounting and auditing, and answering questions put to him by various Reeves of the county's twenty-four municipalities.

"Contrary to the general belief, audits are made so ratepayers may see that Council and other officers are conducting affairs properly, and not for the Council itself," said the Deputy Minister. "They should be such that the ordinary man on the street can understand them."

"I am not saying that you must appoint skilled men to do your accounting and auditing, but I say to you, if reports and audits are not properly done, I will send them back and they will have to be done all over again, and done properly."

Mr. Cummings said he proposed to visit every county in the Province in his campaign to improve the conduct of municipal affairs. It was not fair to anybody to ask men not equipped to keep or audit books, he said. "It is like asking a man who never had a plow in his hand to plow a ten-acre field," he commented.

PREMIER HEPBURN TAKES ENFORCED HOLIDAY

Illness has forced Premier Hepburn out of action on the eve of one of Ontario's most important legislative sessions.

Ordered by physicians to a southern climate in the hope of shaking off the complication of ailments with which he has been beset for the past ten days, Mr. Hepburn left Saturday for Arizona. "From 'two to three weeks' is the indefinite rest period that has been prescribed for him. Close friends are doubtful if he'll be able to return for this session at all. Ministerial associates are said to be pressing him to remain away until completely recovered, fearful that prolongation of his sickness will mean in actuality his once-announced retirement from public life, and his abandoning of the Premiership and leadership of the Liberal Party.

Dr. R. N. Irwin, who with Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, has been attending the Premier, issued the following statement at 5.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon:

"The Premier has suffered an acute flare-up of bronchitis, complicated by rising blood pressure from his kidney affliction. I have ordered him to a southern climate at once for a two or three weeks' rest period, hoping this will allow the bronchitis to subside and avoid further complications."

Lawyer: "Get my broker, Miss Jones."

"Yes sir, stock or pawn?"

"Oatmeal, oatmeal — every day oatmeal!" lamented Willie.

"Yes," said Fred, "no wonder they call it a serial."

"I'm in an awful predicament."

"I've lost my glasses and I can't find them until I've found them again."

Foreman: "Why are you leaving?"

Riveter: "Oh, I don't mind hammering rivets all day long, but the next man to me hums incessantly."

Diner: "Waiter, look at the ends of this sausage."

Waiter: "What's the matter with them?"

Diner: "They're very close together, aren't they?"

"There goes a fellow who seems to take the worst possible view of everything."

"Is he a pessimist, then?"

"No, an amateur photographer."

"So he is a reckless driver?"

"Reckless? When the road turns the same way as he does it's just a coincidence."

Good afternoon. Were you wishing to consult me?"

"No. That's all right doctor. I have just called to read the serial I started last week."

Father: "So you've been fighting again, have you? Then you go to bed without supper, young man."

Farmer Brown complained that he could find no old clothes to put on the scarecrow.

"Well," said his wife, "our George said I could give away his plus-four suit, as he's got a new one. Why not use that?"

"Don't be ridiculous woman," said the farmer. "I want to scare the crows, not make 'em laugh!"

During the first evening of a visit to her daughter at the seaside an old woman who had never seen the sea before was found intently watching the lighthouse.

"What infinite patience sailors have," she said.

"Why?" asked her daughter.

"Well," she replied, "the wind has blown that light out 35 times since I've been watching, and each time they relighted it."

CANADIAN CATTLE FOR UNITED STATES

Under the Canada-United States Trade Agreement the duty on cattle imported into the United States from Canada was lowered from three cents to two cents per pound, but the number of cattle weighing 700 pounds or over to enter under the two-cent rate was limited to 155,799 head, after which the old rate of three-cents per pound was to apply. Nearly 90 per cent of the imports of the United States of this class of cattle came from Canada, as has been the case in previous years, and by early October, 1936, the quota of 155,799 head had been filled. During 1936, imports to the United States of cattle weighing less than 175 pounds came principally from Canada. The rate was reduced under the agreement from 2 1/2 cents to 1 1/2 cents per pound, but a quota on this class of cattle was set at 51,933 head and was filled in the early part of August, 1936. Since that time the full rate of 2 1/2 cents per pound has applied during the remaining part of the year to cattle under 175 pounds.

DECISION GIVEN IN COUNTY ASSESSMENT APPEAL

Judgment was delivered on Wednesday last by a tribunal consisting of Judge G. E. Deroche, Judge J. E. Madden and Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn, relating to the appeal made by Marmora and Lake Township and the Village of Frankford against the equalized assessment in the County of Hastings. A. B. Collins, K.C., appeared for the appellants in the action Marmora and Lake Township and Village of Frankford, while Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared for the County of Hastings.

C. A. Cameron appeared for Tyndinaga, I. D. Corcoran for Hungerford, George A. White for Madoc Township, R. J. E. Graham for Sidney; T. Y. Wills for Rawdon, C. R. Bastedo for Stirling.

The tribunal found that the appellants had succeeded in their appeal for a more equalized assessment of the county and stated the figures for each township which to the tribunal would appear a fair equalization. The judgment in detail follows:

"Having read and given full consideration to the various sections of the Assessment Act pertinent to this matter, including sections relating to property assessable and modes of assessment and valuation, and to all court decisions to which we were referred.

And having considered carefully the sales in the different municipalities for the previous three years and the assessment relating thereto,

And having also taken into consideration the personal valuations made of the several properties in the different municipalities by different valuers,

We find it necessary to make some changes in the equalized assessment of the majority of the municipalities, and have reached the following conclusion as to what the equalized assessment of each municipality should be, as follows—

Sidney Township 2,839,600; Thurlow Township 3,634,800; Tyndinaga Township 1,646,000; Rawdon Township 1,935,300; Huntingdon Township 984,300; Hungerford Township 1,822,800; Marmora and Lake Township 547,200; Madoc Township 1,222,900; Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Township 280,100; Tudor and Cashes Township 103,500; Wollaston Township 87,900; Limerick Township 65,100; Faraday 74,600.

Dungannon $81,000; Mayo, $63,100; Carlow $34,800; Montego $164,000; Bangor $113,800; Deseronto $375,000; Stirling, $378,900; Madoc $392,800; Marmora $239,200; Tweed, $600,000; Bancroft $209,700; Frankford $261,200; Deloro $170,100; Total $18,302,800.

It will be observed that the increases or decreases, with the exception of a few municipalities, have been very slight, and as to these few we did not feel we could do any better than we have done from all the evidence submitted.

To illustrate — we made deductions from the following municipalities: Sidney 2 1/2 per cent; Tyndinaga 4 1/2 per cent; Hungerford, 4 4/5 per cent; Marmora and Lake 12 per cent; Madoc Township 5 per cent; Deseronto 6 1/4 per cent; Frankford 12 per cent.

And we have added to the following municipalities:

Thurlow 7 per cent; Rawdon 3 1/2 per cent; Huntingdon, 7 1/2 per cent; Limerick 5 per cent; Faraday 2 4/5 per cent; Dungannon, 5 per cent; Mayo 1 1/2 per cent; Carlow 2 1/2 per cent; Montego and Herschel 1 4/5 per cent; Stirling, 1 2/5 per cent; Madoc Village 2 1/5 per cent; Tweed 1 1/5 per cent; Bancroft 50 per cent.

All of these percentages are in the rough of course. And in the remaining municipalities no changes have been made.

On the question of costs. The appellants Marmora and Lake and Frankford both being reduced, are entitled to their full costs of appeal. And since we have found it necessary to change the assessment of so many municipalities we feel whose costs of the appeal might well be borne by the county, and thus each municipality pays its proportionate share.

The costs as to the appellants at least should cover costs of personal valuations and witness fees, and indeed we think the costs might well extend to all valuations and witnesses. There will be included, of course, the amount to be paid the Registrar of Deeds for his carefully prepared lists of sales, and will also include counsel fees of the various counsel attending.

We feel the whole question of the amount to be allowed to the Registrar the valuations and witnesses and to counsel might well be left with Mr. Payne, solicitor for the county. If any disputes should arise the matter may be spoken to before the Equalization Board or a majority thereof.

Dated this 12th day of January, 1937.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Livestock Meetings

Dates for annual meetings in Toronto of Canadian and Ontario livestock associations have been announced by L. E. O'Neill, of the livestock branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Ontario Swine Breeders' Association will hold their annual meeting February 1 and the Canadian Swine Breeders' Association the following day. Ontario Large Yorkshire Club, Ontario Berkshire Club, Ontario Tamworth Club and dual purpose Short-horn clubs also will hold meetings on February 1.

February 2, the following annual meetings will be held: Canadian Jersey Cattle Club, Canadian Shorthorn Association, Canadian Hackney Horse Association, Canadian Pony Association and the Canadian Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association.

Meetings scheduled for February 3 are: Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, Canadian National Poultry Record Association, Canadian Standard Bred Horse Society, Ontario Hereford Breeders' Association, Ontario Sheep Breeders' Association, Ontario Clydesdale Club, Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society and Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association.

On February 4 the Canadian Shire Association, Clydesdale Horse Association of Canada, Ontario Percheron Club and Ontario Horse Breeders' Association will meet and February 5, the Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association will meet.

Winter Brooding of Chicks

The poultryman with proper equipment can handle chicks in mid-winter with as little mortality as with April chicks. He may not get as high percentage hatch as later on, but even the hatchability of eggs is being controlled by the feed. January chicks will cost more as eggs are higher priced to start with. Then it will take more time for looking after the chicks there may be less disease and mortality broilers will catch a high market, and pullet should be laying early in the fall or even in late summer when egg prices are at their peak. Of course, if many started hatching all their chicks in January the higher prices for broilers and eggs would be wiped out, and chicks hatched at some other season would find the best market. Brooder houses unsuited for prolonged zero weather and the higher price of chicks will limit the number going in for January chicks. Nevertheless there should be good returns for the few who do, and they can prolong the use of their equipment, as those who have January chicks usually have another batch in the spring so as to have pullets coming into production at different seasons. January chicks will go on to range early in the season, or they may be raised indoors until ready for the laying pen.

Farmers' Account Book

The Canadian farmer may be absolved from the accusation that in taking stock of his farm business at the present time he is only following the futile fashion of making good resolutions for the New Year. It just so happens that the seasons of the year when good resolutions are popularly supposed to have a special virtue coincides with that period of the year which affords the farmer the best opportunity for making a detailed survey of his business, past and future.

Today, farming is more of a business proposition than ever before, and the farmer who does not know the exact state of how he stands with reference to every item connected with the farm is at a disadvantage with the farmer who does. Something more than a rough and ready method is necessary.

A record of each department of the farm business should be kept because it is the only way of finding out which part of the farming pays and which does not. To assist the farmer in this very important matter, the Dominion Department of Agriculture issues a very simple and useful little account book which may be obtained from the King's Printer at a nominal price of 10 cents. No special knowledge of accounting is necessary and a record of transactions can often be made in less than one hour per week.

Alsike 17c per pound for No. 1 grade, 10 to 15c for country run. Timothy 6 to 7c per pound for No. 1 grade, No. 1 (sealed) 6 3/4 to 7c, 4 to 5c for country run. Sweet clover 6c per pound for No. 1 grade, country run 4 to 5c. Timothy-alsike mixtures (50 per cent. alsike) 6 1/2c per pound for country run seed.

Supply: 224,000 lbs. of red clover scattered throughout district but main supply in Ottawa Valley; 97,000 lbs. of alfalfa mainly in St. Lawrence counties and Kingston to Oshawa district; 150,000 lbs. of alsike almost entirely in the Kingston to Oshawa district; 1,682,880 lbs. of Timothy in Prescott and Russell counties and St. Lawrence sub-district; 105,000 lbs. of sweet clover confined almost entirely to St. Lawrence sub-district and Kingston to Oshawa area and 100,000 lbs. of Timothy-alsike mixtures in Northern Ontario.

Demand: A very keen demand has developed for red clover. Shipments are going forward to the United States and in some instances farmer buyers are bringing trucks and cars over to do business direct with Canadian farmers. It is expected that the entire available supply of red clover will soon be out of farmers' hands.

Very little information available in regard to the demand for alfalfa. Timothy is moving more freely than at any time during this crop year. Alsike continues to move but the best quality of seed is already gone. Sweet clover has received very little attention to date but seed is now moving to the seed cleaning plants to be cleaned.

Western and Southern Ontario

Prices: Red clover 21c per pound for No. 1 grade, 15 1/4 to 17c for country run. Alfalfa 17c for No. 1 grade, 11 to 14c for country run. Alsike 16c for No. 1 grade, 8 1/4 to 13 1/2 for country run. Sweet clover 7 1/2c for No. 1 grade, 4 to 6c for country run. Timothy 6c for No. 1 grade, 3 to 5c for country run, and Canadian blue grass 8c for No. 1 grade.

Supply: Red clover 318,750 lbs.; Alsike 387,000 lbs.; Timothy 1,156,100 lbs.; Alfalfa 425,375 lbs.; Sweet clover 153,225 lbs.; Canadian blue grass nil. It is estimated that there are some 450,000 lbs. of alfalfa seed more than reported previously.

Demand: The buying by our merchants for their spring requirements and for their export trading is resulting in a good demand for the three clovers and alfalfas at good prices. Very little interest is being shown in regard to timothy. Red clover and alsike are in brisk demand, while alfalfa has softened somewhat in comparison with last month.

CHEESE PATRONS' ASSOCIATION ASSURED GOVT. CO-OPERATION

Following an interview with the Honourable Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture it was announced on Saturday by Mr. S. L. Joss, Secretary of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association that a promise of full consideration has been given the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association in their efforts to secure some of the rights it had under the now Inoperative Natural Products Marketing Act.

Mr. Joss headed the deputation which met the Minister of Agriculture at Queen's Park. The meeting was the result of resolutions passed at annual meetings of the cheese factory patrons of the Province. Under the Marketing Act the Association had collected five cents on every hundred of cheese manufactured.

The Secretary of the Association Mr. S. L. Joss, stated that at annual county Association meetings held during the past two months the cheese factory patrons had discussed the question of legislation which would give the Association the power to have all cheese sold through the medium of organized cheese boards, and to collect a toll not exceeding five cents per hundred pounds on all cheese produced in Ontario. This was the foremost question at all of these county meetings and in practically every case it was unanimously decided that the Provincial Executive should take immediate action in an effort to have such legislation passed as would insure the permanency of the organization.

Mr. Joss stated that at all meetings the work of the overseas representative, coupled with the increased volume of cheese sold through the old established cheese boards and the five new boards that have been opened in 1936, was commented upon favourably.

REACHING THE GOAL

Consumption, as tuberculosis of the lungs is commonly called, is a wasting ailment; stubborn to master, requiring treatment and care over a long period of time. It can seldom be cured at home. Then, too, it is a communicable disease, especially dangerous to young children.

This was fully realized by the founders of the National Sanatorium Association, when forty years ago they erected the first hospital in Canada for the treatment of this disease.

This venture met with much opposition and even ridicule for at that time it was firmly believed that tuberculosis was incurable. It was just one of those things which had to be, so why bother about it.

However, it was not long before the regimen of this small hospital began to show results—people were actually being cured—going home and talking about it.

Such was the small beginning of the Muskoka, the Toronto and the Queen Mary Hospitals for Consumptives, which now provide for more than one thousand patients.

The progress made and the change in outlook is reflected by these and the many other fine sanatoria throughout the Dominion, and by the large number of public and private organizations which to-day are sparing no effort to overcome tuberculosis.

Then again, when thousands upon thousands have been given a chance to get well, who but for hospital treatment, could have been saved without hope, and the mortality from this disease has been reduced by 75%.

With tuberculosis ousted from the premier position to seventh place as the cause of death, there is cause for congratulation, but there is also the danger of the feeling of self complacency and the slackening of effort to reach the goal in sight, this would indeed be a calamity, for tuberculosis will not halt its advance unless it is forced to do so. This can only be accomplished with the continued co-operation of the public at large.

The Trustees of the Muskoka, the Toronto and the Queen Mary Hospitals for Consumptives are determined that, so far as lies within their power, no one who suffers from tuberculosis shall be denied a chance to get well. If you would help in this great life saving work, please send a gift to National Sanatorium Association, 225 College Street, Toronto.

WE NEED YOUR HELP— THIS YEAR! EVERY YEAR!

Needy children from all over the Province are treated regardless of race, creed or financial circumstance.

This policy has been continued for over 60 years in the firm belief that everyone who understands the facts would want this great work to continue . . . would agree that no Ontario child should be denied a chance for health or escape from deformity if mere money makes the difference.

Over 95% of our beds are in Public Wards.

The Hospital receives no support from the Toronto Federation for Community Service because patients are accepted from all parts of the Province.

We must therefore appeal to a humane and generous public to take care of an annual deficit . . . this year it is $68,000.00.

Please mail a donation to the Appeal Secretary, 67 College Street, Toronto.

The thanks of little children will be your reward.

The Hospital for Sick Children

Every morning in the year famous surgeons come to our operating rooms to donate their services. More than 8,000 operations are performed annually. But there are many extra hands and the maintenance of this necessary service is very costly.

Since 1928 the service rendered by the always-overcrowded Out-Patient Department has more than doubled. Last year 24,414 individual treatments were given. This service yields a small revenue—but not nearly enough.

CHANGING OUR SYSTEM OF BUSINESS

After 50 years of doing Credit Business we find that owing to so many outstanding accounts we are compelled to make a change, and do only a strictly Cash business.

We have to pay cash in 30 days, and we cannot carry on if we do not get cash for our Goods. We appreciate the large patronage we have been given and ask for a continuance of the same under the new system.

We guarantee our prices will be as low as Quality will permit, in comparison with any in the County. We have never sacrificed Quality for Price. We ask your co-operation in carrying out the change.

Dear Mother and Father,—

We, your children and grandchildren, have come here this evening to celebrate an occasion that few of us reach in married life. Knowing that at any time we are welcome, but tonight we come in memory of your forty-fifth anniversary. The years have rolled on very swiftly till forty-five have passed. God has been good to spare you both so well in health and we hope you will have many more happy and prosperous years.

This gift we bring to you Dad and Mother, as a token of our love. Long may you live and health enjoy for many years to come.

Signed on behalf of your children and grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas thanked the children and friends for so kindly remembering them. They were presented with a handsome Davenport. They also received other gifts from relatives. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows." The remainder of the evening was spent in a social way.

ADDRESS GIVEN BY J. B. BELSHAW

The following is a copy of the address given at the annual meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society, by Mr. J. B. Belshaw, president:

Again this Society closes another year in the History of Horticulture in this district and community, and as the years have come and gone, we can look back and recall in the early years of this Society that there were very few shrubs, bulbs and flowers in the surrounding homes or in public places. I have been connected with this Society for some 25 years, and President for 15 years, and I wish to express my thanks to the officers and members throughout these years, for their co-operation in the work of this Society.

Twelve members took the magazine as part of their Premium and five paid their own subscriptions. We distributed: Boston Ferns, 7; Shrubs, 2; Hydrangeas, 2; Dahlias, 246; Hyacinths, 72; Plants in Boxes, 370; and we have on hand about five dozen tulips which may be used in any manner the Society may choose.

The work at the cement wall along the pond was well under way through the generous offer of the Women's Institute and assistance of the Council, but owing to the lateness of the season, we felt it not wise to undertake the building of the wall on account of frost, and laid it over until Spring, when I hope it will be resumed.

As District Director I feel I should mention our District at Gananoque in July. While only four attended the meeting, I must say those who failed to attend missed a pleasant day as guests of the Brockville Horticultural Society. The trip down the St. Lawrence, which took a couple of hours, was grand and the scenery was gorgeous. After visiting several beautiful gardens and listening to addresses by Mr. Spencer, of Ottawa, President of O.H.A.; Mrs. Boucher, of Kingston; Mr. Patterson and Mr. Thomson, we were entertained at Mrs. W. V. Bullock's summer home on the River Front, where tea was served to one hundred guests. I wish to thank all for their hospitality.

May I mention the passing of a member of our Society, Mrs. M. W. Sine, Past Sec.-Treas., and worker of the Society. On behalf of the Society I express our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Also we lost a faithful worker in the O.H.A., Mr. C. A. Hesson, of St. Catharines. I think he was the first Treasurer of the Association, and last year was the first meeting he missed.

Society.

In 1936 our membership reached 110 members, the largest membership in years. We held eight Society meetings, including directors' meetings.

Our exhibit at the Stirling Fair was about on a par with those of past years. I take this opportunity of thanking the judge, Mr. Banford, of Belleville, for his interest, and coming to Stirling at no cost to the Society for his work. The Flower show was also successful. Members exhibiting were 24 non-members, 8, making a total of 32. Total number of entries, 122. Donations in cash for show amounted to $12.00; also fifteen articles and several plants and bulbs and rosebushes. The cash income from all sources for the year was $43.33; expenditures, $37.38, leaving a balance of $5.97. I want to thank all committees in charge of the show, especially Rev. Mr. Nicholson and Dr. Paul, of Twced, who acted as judges.

Also I wish to thank all persons who donated money or articles as prizes; Mr. Wm. Whitty for allowing the use of his window to exhibit prizes; the Village Council and Community Hall Committee, for making it possible for us to hold this show and allowing the use of the Community Hall; and Mr. J. Wilson for the use of this room for holding our meetings. I thank all the officers and directors, canvassers, and especially our Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Foley, for his work.

"SON GROWS UP"

By Harry M. Moore

A STORY OF THE LUMBER CAMPS

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

Tommy turned to McArthur who stood in the door.

"They're just what I want," he said. "What's your price?"

McArthur considered a minute. "They're worth $175 a team of any man's money," he observed, then with a nod of his head, "Here's that other man now!"

Tommy stepped to the door to see a heavy set individual swagger towards the stables. The stranger shook hands with McArthur and then fixed a pair of cool, calculating eyes on Tommy.

Tommy gave him glance for glance. He realized it was time for quick action. He fixed his eyes on McArthur. "I'll give you $175 a team and take the whole lot," he intimated, slipping over to a feed box to write out a cheque.

"If it's horses you're talking about Mac," intimated the stranger whom McArthur had called Billings. "I'll pay more than that — say $185."

Tommy Benson wheeled around. "Are you bidding on these horses?" he demanded hotly.

"You heard me the first time," Billings leered, "I want 'em."

Tommy shot an appealing glance at McArthur. The jobber appeared to be at a loss to know what to do. Tommy's jaws snapped. If this man Billings wanted McArthur's horses Tommy decided he would make him pay a sweet price for them.

"You'll have to raise your bid another ten," Tommy baited him.

"At so?" Billings stormed, "Well, let me tell you something — I can put another ten on top of that and not feel any pang in my conscience."

Tommy Benson's eyes narrowed. He rubbed his chin reflectively with the ball of his thumb.

"Would it strain your boasted conscience any to throw another ten on the heap?" he asked soberly.

"Not at all! Not at all!" Billings snapped.

Tommy dropped the cheque book into his pocket.

"Take 'em!" he laughed, "They're yours. I need horses, but not so badly that I'm willing to pay more than they're worth. Best o' luck partner!"

When he was mounting his horse some moments later, he looked back to the stables. McArthur and Billings were in the midst of a heated argument.

Back in the office, hours later, Tommy and Jim Waddell exchanged afternoon's experiences.

"But what beats me, Fight It Through," the foreman exclaimed, "is how you tumbled to this man Billings as being one of McCracken's agents?"

Tommy grinned.

"Call it intuition," he reflected, "I can't explain it. Struck me that he was overly anxious to out-bid me no matter what I offered for those teams. Guess if I'd said a thousand he would have made it two. McArthur made more than tobacco money this afternoon But what about the strikers, Jim?"

"Oh, they haven't quit yet," the foreman smiled. "I gave them a long spiel about you having teams in the city all ready for shipment on receipt of a telegram and I told them you had gone out to send a wire —"

"But, they didn't believe that?" Tommy asked incredulously.

"Well, they didn't believe it," the foreman chuckled, "In fact, there was no argument at all, much though I expected it. And believe me, Fight It Through, they horsed the logs to the dump this afternoon."

Tommy breathed easier. "That's the stuff, Jim," he ejaculated. "Keep up the good work. We've got to get this stuff out quick. Spring will be on us in no time now."

His face hardened suddenly and he dropped his fist in his palm. "This guy McCracken couldn't have been so mean when he was growing up, Jim," he said.

"Why?" Jim asked curiously. "Why?" Because he'd never been allowed to live that long. I'd just like to —" he ground his teeth.

"Steady, lad, steady!" Jim warned him. "Better be careful! This bird McCracken is a real bad 'un."

CHAPTER FIVE

Foreman Waddell's advice to the teamsters that Fight It Through didn't care much whether they quit or not, now that he had teams ready to ship in at a moment's notice, had a salutary effect on them. They accepted the information quietly and without argument. And peace once more reigned at Camp Seven. The sun was riding high in the sky and the buds were beginning to show on the trees.

Once again it was apparent that Donald McCracken's underhand efforts to wipe the camp off the map had been completely frustrated.

And it was well for Tommy Benson's peace of mind that it appeared that way. For Tommy was a busy man — much too busy, in fact, to spare any attention to his arch enemy, an enemy he had never seen, but of whom all the reports were the same — "McCracken's a bad 'un!"

Tommy was hitting his stride. The office work was always right up to date; the foreman never lacked advice nor encouragement; progress in the limits was rigidly checked up; rapid-fire correspondence between the big office and Camp Seven was handled expeditiously and yet, despite the multitudinous duties imposed on him, Tommy made possible an occasional meeting with Betty.

Tommy could be afforded to be a trifle chummy about his progress. In all phases of his duties, official and unofficial, he was showing rare speed for one, who as his father put it, would never set the world afire as a junior clerk in the big office. Tommy was proud of himself. His right ear had not grown close enough to his head to hold a pen handle; his big square shoulders were made for something more important than pushing an office stool around. He was built on broad lines substantial lines. For the great out of doors. And that was that! He was now grateful that he had failed in a clerical capacity, he was pleased that his father had sense enough to kick him out. For that was practically what his father had done. He had found out not only that Camp Seven was a financial flop, but the reasons for it. The draw from the cut to the water was too far. He had bested the foreman, the hardest man in the Rapid River country, in hand to hand combat; he had so far frustrated all efforts of Donald McCracken to blot out Camp Seven. And he had met Betty.

Betty Jones! Charming, vivacious Betty! Tommy believed he could detect a slight note of skepticism in the manner in which Betty accepted him as Tom Megan. He thought she showed a veiled contempt for him when he berated Donald McCracken and his daughter. For Tommy, no matter what he did, could not dismiss from his mind and his outspoken thoughts, these two individuals whose devilry was breaking out at such unexpected intervals. Further than this, David Benson never penned a line to his son without adding a postscript of caution and warning against the McCrackens. And this kept Tommy's blood at the boiling point.

It was shortly after the receipt of such a warning letter from his father that Tommy sought Betty on the tote road one afternoon. He wanted an explanation of something that only she could explain.

Betty pulled up her horse and he slipped into the cutter beside her.

"I suppose you've got something more to tell me today about Donald McCracken and his daughter?" she remarked caustically.

Tommy gasped. That was the very subject that was on his mind. So setting his jaw he asked abruptly:

"Miss Jones — Betty! Will you please tell me — is your father Donald McCracken?"

Surprised eyes full upon him, she turned around.

"I would scarcely call him that," she answered rather mysteriously. "Why do you ask such a thing?"

Tommy sighed his relief. "I was honestly hoping you'd say that," he confessed. "I was afraid you wouldn't. Because I'm going to put a permanent wave in his whiskers," he said savagely, "And I wouldn't care to do that, if he was your father, y'see!"

Betty turned an alarmed face on him. She reached over and dropped her free hand on his clenched fist.

"You — mustn't —" she said catchingly. "Promise me you won't."

Tommy thought he understood what she meant. Betty had told him that fighting was brutal, degrading. "Let's drop the subject," he suggested, the tenseness leaving his face, "And talk about something else."

They were passing the point where the Camp Seven path joined the tote road. "That's the path into Benson's camp," Betty explained. "Dad says there's been trouble there lately over the teamsters."

"Let's talk about something else," Tommy suggested dreamily.

"What else is there to talk about, Mr. — Mr. Megan?" she asked demurely.

"Please call me Tom," he pleaded. "We've known one another for a long time now — several weeks, I believe —"

"Know one another?" she laughed. "Why except that you've told me that you're some kind of combination road boss and clerk — and I don't quite understand that — for I've met you so often lately poking around the forks in — in working hours —"

"Easily explained," he interrupted her. "Easily explained. Y'see the man who employs me doesn't mind my absence from camp as long as I don't neglect my work. Now won't you be a good girl and tell me something?"

Tommy slipped his hand down Betty's arm.

"Dear," he spoke gently, "Can't you see how I love you? Won't you try to like me a little?"

The horse had brains. It stopped. Betty Jones' head was on Tommy Megan's shoulder.

"And I — I like you, too, Tommy," she murmured.

CHAPTER SIX

It was well for Tommy Benson that he had been enabled to devote the time to the conquest of Betty's heart and hand on the tote road on that memorable afternoon. Work piled up on him and for days he never saw beyond the narrow confines of camp and limits and dumping ground. Which was perhaps just as well for he wanted to confess to Betty that he was the misunderstood son of the lumber baron and he required time, much time, to figure out the proper way to go about it.

As days passed swiftly and he had odd moments for more mature reflection, he decided that the best plan and the easiest would be to make good first and then to explain, if explaining were necessary, afterwards.

To make good with a vengeance, was Tommy's sole ambition and he was aware that to do this he must put Donald McCracken into his place. Indeed, he would not feel that he had reached anywhere until the timber pirate had admitted publicly that he had been whipped by a better man. And when McCracken did that, Betty would come to know all about it. Everybody would know all about it. And everybody, including Betty, would realize to the full that Tommy Benson was more than the puffed-off spring of a rich man to whom he depended for promotion, for position.

His mind fully made up that he was going to cut McCracken's claws so that he could do no more harm, Tommy carefully considered the best way to go about it.

INMATES OF GUELPH REFORMATORY REVOLT

Not since the Kingston penitentiary outbreak in October 1932, has a riot flared so ominously behind the walls of any penal institution in the province, as that which occurred at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph on Sunday last. Nearly all of the 700 inmates housed in the reformatory broke loose in a demonstration that lasted from mid-afternoon until 10 o'clock before it was quelled by the guards and police called from nearby cities.

Windows were smashed and smoke rolled from the reformatory into a dreary, rainy night as the screaming prisoners, bent on destruction, milled about the dormitories. Scores nimble scaled roofs and scurried away in the darkness. At one time it was reported as many as 150 were missing.

Inside the buildings the rioting went on, unchecked for hours. Tables and beds were wrecked and pieces of the broken furniture wielded as clubs by the frenzied mob.

The rioters surged through dormitories, chapel, library, kitchen, hospital and recreation room. Furniture was smashed to kindling. Matches were set to bed clothing and mattresses and flaming masses were tossed through the broken windows.

Library books were piled on the floor and burned. Pieces of tables and chairs were fed to the flames that could be seen by hundreds of watchers gathered outside. More than a dozen fires blazed at one time, with flames shooting from windows of both wings of the main building.

The prisoners could be seen dashing about like dervishes, shouting in derision at guards and police.

There were no serious injuries in the few brief clashes between officials and rioters.

Sergeant A. T. Maguire, Chief Custodian Officer, was reported to have been mobbed by 40 prisoners. He suffered a severe cut when struck over the head and was knocked unconscious but returned to duty shortly afterwards.

Provincial Constable L. T. Keller was struck with a baseball but was not seriously hurt. One convict suffered a fractured ankle when he jumped from the kitchen roof in attempting to escape.

Damage to the institution was placed unofficially as high as $100,000.

At the height of the disturbance 13 influenza patients in the reformatory hospital were taken to safety when smoke and flames threatened them with suffocation.

Fireman from Guelph were called and sent tons of water streaming into the buildings. They said if the building had not been of high fire-resisting construction many lives would have been lost. The seventy-five guards of the institution, the full complement, carried no arms, the usual practice. Police had guns and truncheons but did not use them.

After the uproar died down many of the prisoners talked freely, keeping a wary eye on guards. They said the trouble arose over poor quality of food and because they were not allowed delivery of parcels at Christmas.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, called from Toronto, at the first outbreak of trouble, denied that dissatisfaction with quality and quantity of food caused the disorder.

Launching his investigation even before daybreak, he called the disturbance an outbreak of "youthful exuberance."

Prisoners told newspapermen that trouble had been brewing for several weeks. At lunch time, they said, 25 prisoners refused to accept food on their trays and stalked out of the lunch room to the dormitories.

Guards followed them and took away four of their number, the convicts related. In protest the remainder began breaking up furniture and setting fire to bed clothes. The insurgent spirit spread quickly to all sections and the guards on duty were helpless to restore order, but they did nothing, officials said, to aggravate the rioters.

THE RECOUNT

In the Municipal Election, of 1936, Thos' an error in counting we were in quite a fix.

For when the poll closed on Election Day

The crowd that gathered heard the Clerk say

That Bush over Lott a victory had won

And that Sam had defeated our friend Clem by one.

The announcement was made with a sigh of relief

By the Clerk — for it was his belief That had he been called on to break a tie

To a lot of his friends he must needs say Good-bye.

But should this be the case he thought of a way

To hold these friends to a future day. And his plan was this — with the crowd's consent, He'd decide the case by tossing a cent.

Now Clem was thinking — I surely believe —

It should be my turn to be Deputy-Reeve.

So he without any signs of dejection Made up his mind after due reflection.

That 'twas in his power to upset the election.

So he brought the cash and left his deposit

In the hands of the Clerk, saying — "Begorra here goes it."

I'll give it a try whether I win or lose it."

Then he appealed to the judge to set a day

In which to decide in no uncertain way Which one was to go and which one to stay.

The judge called the Clerk and stated this fact, And named a day on which he could act.

"For," said he, "there is no time for delay

As I have already named a day When I will pack up and be on my way

To spend the winter in Florida." But when the day came it was bitterly cold

And the Clerk complained "I am growing old,

At present I have a very bad cold, And would rather not wander away from the fold.

The roads are piled deep with a recent snow, And I really am very reluctant to go."

Then to the judge he made this suggestion That 'twould be all right, without doubt or question

To have Clem and Sam come down together In this stormy inclement wintry weather,

And each of them could watch the other And thus save the Clerk a lot of bother.

His Honour the Judge, he kindly agreed And arranged for a recount with all due speed.

Then Clem phoned Sam, "If it's all the same

We'll have that recount," said Sam, "I'm game.

Just hitch your cutter to your old bay mare, And in a short time I'll surely be there."

So down they came to Nobes' store, And the Clerk waited there with boxes galore.

He loaded the cutter with boxes of tin,

"Till there was no room to get their feet in.

And away they went, a jolly pair, Sam and Clem and the old bay mare, Armed with fur coats and a big wide shovel,

To dig thro' the snow banks and end the trouble.

And when 'twas all done and they'd ended their labours

They shook hands and came home as old friends and neighbours.

And those who attended the judge's court,

Were compelled to say that Sam was a sport.

And as for Clem, an old saying I'll use,

'Twas fair, yes 'twas fair, "Give the devil his dues."

W. H. Nobes, Clerk

BELLEVILLE MARKET

A steadily rising potato market with a new all-winter high of $1.75 for ninety-pound containers with one vendor pricing her stock at $2.00, with the seventy-five pound lots quoted at $1.50, featured an active Belleville market on Saturday morning, as clear, cold weather brought in a large number of vendors with a fairly good display of farm and dairy produce.

For the first time since the holiday sessions the inside market was filled to capacity with buyers and sellers. A delectable display of chickens, fowl, butter, eggs and other dairy products brought out a busy selling reaction on the part of early morning shoppers with prices remaining fairly stable and all products moving briskly in spite of good competition.

Egg prices fluctuated although buyers' prices remained firm. The majority of vendors quoted their stock at twenty-seven cents the dozen for "A" selects although some were offered as low as twenty-five cents and high as thirty cents. Mediums and pullets varied according to the price quoted for the better quality.

Butter was plentiful with the majority of sellers offering at fifty-five cents for two-pound rolls. A few vendors quoted at thirty cents.

Chickens and fowl were also plentiful with the former selling well at from fifty cents to one dollar each and fowl moving slowly from sixty-five to eighty with an extra fine quality going at $1. Whipping cream remained firm at fifteen and thirty cents for half-pints and pints respectively.

Staple winter vegetables and fall and winter apples featured the outside market with trading being brisk in spite of the cool winds which blew across the square. Bushel lots predominated with carrots at 60 cents, turnips at 50 cents, parsnips at 75, winter cabbage at 40 and 75 cents, according to size and quality, and onions at $1.25 were some of the prices noted.

Fall and winter apples in many varieties also stood out with Winter Bannanas at $2.00 the bushel, apples at $1.75 for selects and $1 for the cooking variety; Cranberry Pippins at $1.75; Ben Davis at $1.00; McIntosh Reds at $2.00; Stark at $1.00 and $1.25, and Tolman Sweets at $2.25 highlighted these offerings.

Quarters of beef were also in evidence with the front quarters at 6½ to 7 cents the pound and the hind-quarters at 8 and 9 cents.

A good variety of fish greeted lovers of this food with mudcats quoted at 15 cents the pound, Red Salmon at the same price, while pickerel and winter caught whitefish were offered at 18 cents the pound. Flounders were sold at 15 cents the pound.

FIRE LOSSES IN CANADA SHOW INCREASE OF $13,250

Fire losses in Canada during the seven-day period ended Jan. 13 were estimated at $632,100 by The Monetary Times. Fire losses from January 1 to 13 totalled $674,100, compared with $660,850 in the corresponding period last year.

RIGHTS ON TRENT GIVEN TO THE PROVINCE

Agreements reached verbally six months ago between the Dominion and the Province of Ontario over water power rights, which have been disputed for 7 years were given final documentary touches in Ottawa on Friday after a two-day conference between Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of Transport, and Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Ontario Attorney-General and members of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

The agreements involve the Trent River, the Welland Canal and Decew Falls, near St. Catharines. On the Trent River the Hydro Commission now operates about twelve small developments producing a total of about 50,000 H.P. including three Canada Cement power plants taken over last year. Under the agreements, the Hydro Commission is given authority to develop the river, to increase the reserve of water and also to increase the power production. No new installations are contemplated for the near future, Mr. Roebuck said.

ANY DAY A FISH DAY

How often we hear the remark "Health is the first consideration." We seem unanimously to agree that this precept should guide us in all the ordinary affairs of life. Yet in one important particular, the selection of our diet, do we consistently observe that rule?

Take, for example, the matter of sea-foods.

It has been proven conclusively that these foods, properly prepared, have unusual health-giving power. Palatable and easily digested, they help the human body to resist disease and they promote the growth of children. They possess a great deal more protein than either chicken or beef and provide the best balanced flesh foods available. As to the cost — they are relatively inexpensive.

Nevertheless it is said that the average Canadian family is content with perhaps one meal of fish a week. Our leading dietitians deplore this apparent blindness to the intrinsic value of fish foods. For this reason we heartily welcome the present press campaign to encourage the consumption of fish inaugurated by Hon. J. E. Michaud in his capacity as Minister of Fisheries at Ottawa.

Deep sea fishing is a hazardous calling. Our Canadian fishermen imperil their lives day after day in order to make available a constant supply of whole-sale and delicious sea foods. These hardy and courageous men form a highly important element in our population. For their sake for your own sake, for the sake of your family, patronize their products. Serve more sea fish and remember that every day may be fish day.

Howdy folks!

Caesar or somebody that was in business during his time, once said "To be or not to be. That is the burning question."

Evidently poor old Julius had his troubles too.

Right now, as is usually the case about this time of the week comes to us the same thought:

"To write or not to write. That is the foolish question."

If so, what about?

We can't think of anything to make up any yarns about.

And we're like Harry Hulin.

Harry says he's better than George Washington.

When we asked him why, he sticks out his chest and utters:

"George Washington couldn't tell a lie. Well, I can, but I won't."

And we're like Harry.

Maybe not any better than our old friend George, but just as good anyway.

But speaking of first Caesar and then George Washington, that takes us back too far.

We don't know anything about either one of them and if we brought them into the conversation at all, it wouldn't be long before somebody found out that our education in astronomy was sadly neglected.

We'd end up like Tom Solmes did the other day.

We'd end up with a black eye and a cracked beak, just because we started to meddle with something we didn't quite understand.

Any of youse guys that saw our good friend Tommy all sort of "bunged up" a week or so ago, don't need to figure a cow pushed in on his map. No Sir.

Tommy was merely doing his duty when he got that poke.

He and Mr. Baker were undertaking to remove a few of the stop logs at the local dam.

Somehow or other, the logs are attached to a crank of some sort.

Well Tommy got a bit rough with the handle on the windlass and the thing resented it.

Result: It started swinging its arms in numerous directions all at one and the same time, and Tommy forgot to "duck".

But he's all better now, we're pleased to note.

Well, we heard of a peculiar accident that happened yesterday.

In connection with said accident there were several items—

One was a truck, another was a bone, still another was a dog, and last, but not least, Alderman Ackers.

Between the whole works of them, the plate glass window in the front of McJee & Lagrow's store — the one next to the Chinese Cafe — got busted.

We can't tell you the proprietor's name, any more than it's George.

Ever since we came to Stirling "George" has been the manager of the cafe.

And there have been five or six different managers.

And at the same time there have been five or six different "Georges".

If the first customer calls the new manager "George", well that's the new manager's name until a replacement is made.

Ennyhow, that has nothing to do with the accident we were about to mention.

Who busted the window?

Well, it wasn't the dog.

It was George's own dog any-how, and he'd know better than to bust a window in a store right next to his own place of abode.

It wasn't the truck.

It never left the road, wasn't moving at any faster a rate than probably four miles an hour at any time, and wasn't within six or eight feet of the window.

Needs a good detective to figure this out.

It wasn't Ackers, because he nearly lost his life or something.

He was just passing by the spot at the time.

You guess it was the bone?

Well, you're right.

And here's how it happened.

George's dog, like most other dogs, likes bones. Mother Hubbard didn't give it to him.

No Sir. He's the independent type of dog that gets his own bones!

Well, anyway, he had a bone. He wanted to get into his place of residence, so he laid the bone down, just at the side of the road, and went up to knock on the front door, or something.

Carelessly, he laid the bone on a piece of ice.

A truck that was parked in the immediate vicinity, started up, and the front wheel sort of ran over the end of the bone, squeezing it down on the piece of ice.

That wasn't so good.

Mr. Ackers saw something coming straight at him, and ducked. Which was fortunate for him.

It might be a bit complicated, but that's how it happened.

And George, being a bit upset like anyone would be, if their pup had been so thoughtless

Gave the bone a trimming and threw the dog in the ash can.

Serves them right!

But funny things like that will happen.

We heard one just today that was just about as peculiar.

It seems that two cars, driven by Messrs. Mason and Ashley got into a little argument, but before they got far the owners put a stop to it, and very little damage was done.

But, nevertheless, insurance is insurance, and the agent and the valuator or the inspector or whatever they label them guys, had to look the situation over.

So the agent, being Mr. Arthur Wilson, Reeve of West Huntingdon, and the valuator went over to Bailey's garage to iron the difficulty all out nice and smooth.

Well, on the way out, the agent happened to remark "Now after this, you boys look where you're going."

With that he got into his car, started down town, and before he had got fifty feet ran into a car parked nearby and tore the bump-off it.

Just to show the boys that they weren't the only ones that could run into things.

Needless to say, the boys in the first two cars had a little laugh, and according to reports, they're trying to sell Arthur a bit of insurance.

Well friends, that's about the limit for this week —

But speaking of "friends" — that sort of reminds us of something.

And worse than that, we feel a verse coming on:

Does it ever sort of strike you That this world's a funny thing? That you never can rely upon The tales that people bring?

Did you ever stop and wonder Just how many that you meet In your dully course of travel Up and down the village street

Who smile and make an effort To greet you with good cheer, And make you feel that after all You're glad you're living here —

But when they meet another, they Will curse you black and blue; They cannot think of dirt enough To throw all over you!

Most folks like criticism, If it's the constructive kind, No man can get so far ahead If to his faults he's blind.

But the dog that is the coward, And of fear will show no lack, Will wag his tail to greet you, And bite, behind your back.

So those that have the most to say And tell you that you're "swell", When you've gone by will tell those left

They hope you rest in —

They're backbone's where their wish-bone Was really meant to be — They haven't got the courage And one can plainly see

That those who try to "get you", Are just a bunch of fakes — They're afraid to face you with their grouch —

They haven't what it takes.

So after all, why worry? For those who'll be your help, Are not the ones who smile at you And then turn 'round and yelp.

But those who say just what they think And then can find the grace To come to you and "air" their views

Before your very face!

What do you think?

We'll be see'n' yuh!

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

St. Andrew's Guild held their regular meeting on Monday evening, January 18th, in the basement of the church, with the president, Rob Juby, in the chair. The meeting was under the direction of Miss Lenora Ward. After the devotional period, William Demyer presented a very pleasing solo "Life's Railway to Heaven". "Jesus the very thought of Thee" was then sung, after which Betty Hulin gave a very humorous reading "Animal Crackers". The topic of the evening was taken by Arthur Duncan, who gave a very interesting and helpful talk on the "Writings of Life". He spoke of how the Young People of today have a great chance to take the leading part in this great world of ours, more than they ever had before. Mrs. Elgie gave a reading "Give them the flowers now." The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction. The group then took part in a Bible Contest, very ably put on by Lenora Ward. A meeting of the executive of the Guild was held to discuss ways and means on improving the meetings for the coming year.

STIRLING AND BELLEVILLE TIE

Robinson, Local Centre, Performs Hat Trick in First Home Game

In a game that included everything from good hockey to fistfuffs the Belleville Yacht Club and the Stirling Intermediates pried off the lid in the Trent Valley League at the local arena, on Monday night, before a fair crowd of enthusiastic supporters. The final score was a four-all tie, with B. Robinson, the hard working centre of the locals, proving the star of the game, with three goals. The Belleville team had all the appearances of a fast aggregation and the locals who are minus several of last year's stars, were given little chance of defeating the visitors. However, the younger players on the team gave a splendid display and there is no doubt that once they become accustomed to each other's style of play they will provide strong opposition for any of the League teams.

Play opened with both teams playing cautiously, trying to solve the tactics of the other, and it was some minutes before either goal was tested. Robinson, S. Dainard and G. Fraser were the starting line for the locals and the former two made the first dangerous sortie, when they broke past the defence, but lost the puck when it was shot too far ahead. Belleville were unable to get started, with Robinson giving a dazzling exhibition of sweep-checking at their blue line to break up their rushes before they really got going. Belleville's second line came on and turned on the pressure to give Fox, in the Stirling net, a busy time, but finally Robinson broke away and when bodied at the Belleville defence managed to retain the puck, and shooting from an almost impossible angle, beat Hinton cleanly for the first score. Ethier, Belleville defenceman, was given a penalty for charging Reid, and Stirling put on the power play to shower Hinton with rubber, but failed to score. The players started mixing it up and Robinson had to be carried from the ice when he was handed a butt-end. Play had scarcely started again when A. Fraser and Ethier tangled with the latter dropping the stick to take a few punches at Fraser. This was the signal for a general fight and both spectators and players crowded the ice in search of trouble. Fraser and Ethier each received a major for fighting and the first period ended with the score 1-0 for Stirling.

In the second period Stirling suffered two penalties shortly after the start when first G. Fraser and then Bob Jones went to the cooler. Taking advantage of the odd man, the visitors tied the score on Harvey's tally, and took the lead when a shot by Goyer from the blue line eluded Fox. Shortly after Robinson secured the puck from a Belleville offensive, and blasted a hot one from the defence, which Hinton partially blocked but failed to hold, to tie the score. Play alternated from end to end, with both goalies pulling off some miraculous stops. Once again Robinson gave Stirling the lead, when he stick-handled his way through the Belleville team, and then fooled Hinton with a drive to the corner of the net. The second period closed with the score 3-2 for the locals.

Coming out in the third period the locals laid back to protect their lead and allowed the visitors to carry the play to them. Belleville sent four men up and gave Fox in the Stirling nets some anxious moments, but despite a penalty to McGowan, the locals held them off until his return. Goyer finally tied the score, when he was left uncovered in front of the net. The Stirling defence were being hard pressed at this point in the game, but a penalty to Ethier relieved the pressure. It was Stirling's turn to gang, and "Friday" Fraser again gave the locals the lead when he took a pass from his brother Gerald, and beat Hinton with a shot to the left hand corner. Belleville again sent every man up and after plenty of skirmishing around the locals' net, Howie got hold of a loose puck when Fox was slow in clearing and banged it home to again tie the score. With only seconds remaining in the regular time, Ethier went after Robinson with

INJURES ANKLE

Mrs. Alton Hadley suffered a painful injury on Friday last when she tripped while coming down the stairs in her home on Mill St. Mrs. Hadley was carrying the baby at the time, and in her endeavours to save the child from injury severely twisted her ankle, which was found to be fractured, upon medical examination. Although still quite painful the condition is improving nicely.

A LARGE EGG

Mr. Roscoe Wright, of town, is the owner of a fine flock of Black Minorca hens, but there is one "biddy" of which he is particularly proud. On Saturday last he exhibited at this office a large egg which this particular hen laid, measuring 9 x 6 1/2 inches and weighing four ounces. Now Mr. Wright is wondering what can be done to induce the prize bird to continue her fine work.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

On Sunday Mr. Jos. Reid, one of Stirling's esteemed citizens, celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his natal day quietly at his home on Emily Street. Mr. Reid, although not enjoying the best of health, takes a keen interest in all public affairs. A dinner party was held in honour of the occasion, with Mrs. John Craighead, Mr. Archie McGee Sr., and Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan being guests. With his many friends the News-Argus joins in wishing Mr. Reid many happy returns of the day.

GOOD REPORTS FOR PAST YEAR

Encouraging Reports are Presented By Various Committees

The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in Wednesday night, and was well attended. Rev. J. A. Koffend opened service with a Scripture Lesson and prayer. After singing some familiar hymns, meeting was turned over to Chairman C. N. Baker, and general routine business followed. Mr. Roy Eggleton was appointed secretary for the evening, after which the different organizations presented their reports of the year's activities and finances, as follows:

Young Men's Bible Class — Roy Juby.
W. M. S. — Mrs. Nolan.
Choir — Mrs. Nolan.
Sabbath School — Mr. H. Rollins.
Mission Band — Miss Gena Spry.
Budget — Mr. J. M. Magee.
Ladies' Aid — Mrs. W. L. Anderson.
Young People — Mr. Duncan Montgomery.
Session — Mr. T. McGee.
Service Com. — Mr. A. Duncan.
Board of Managers — Mr. C. N. Baker.
New Business — Rev. J. A. Koffend.
Treas. Report — Mr. E. Ormiston.
Each report was very ably given, with reports of finances being very encouraging. Three new members were added to the Board of Managers as follows: Mr. Lewis Rodgers, Mr. Lawrence Munro and Mr. Tom Ward, with Mr. E. Ormiston being re-appointed.

The main discussion of the evening was the matter of finances which was ably dealt with by Treas. E. Ormiston, and Chairman C. N. Baker. The reports were placed on the blackboard and each item carefully discussed.

A number of very enlightening speeches were given by Mr. R. W. McKeljohn, Mr. H. Rollins, Mr. T. McGee, A. Duncan, Tom Ward, Duncan Montgomery, Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Rev. J. A. Koffend, Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. L. Rodgers and Mrs. J. M. Magee. After discussions were concluded it was moved by R. Eggleton and seconded by R. W. McKeljohn that a hearty vote of appreciation be tendered Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Koffend for their splendid service during the past year, to which Mr. Koffend most ably replied. The evening closed with Benediction by Rev. Mr. Koffend, after which the ladies served a lunch.

TAKES COLD DIP

A large number of Stirling citizens lined the banks of Rawdon Creek at two-thirty on Sunday afternoon to witness a swimmer taking a plunge in the chill waters of the swimming pool. The "Human Seal", as he is known, created quite a thrill among the spectators when he rolled about on the snow-covered ground, clad only in a pair of swimming trunks, and seemed to enjoy an ice cream cone. The swimmer, whose real name is Krikor Heikimlam, is an Armenian, and comes from Hamilton, where he is employed as a life saver during the summer months. During the winter months he goes about the country giving exhibitions of swimming in frigid waters. To keep in condition this 182-pound swimmer takes a dip every morning and on Sunday offered $25.00 to any of the spectators who would go in with him and stay in as long as he did.

He has performed a number of daring feats such as swimming the Niagara River between Niagara Falls and Lewiston, a distance of 1800 feet, in five and one-half minutes. In 1932 he was one of the entrants in the Canadian National Marathon but failed to finish.

PLAY AT TWEED

Tomorrow (Friday) night, the local Intermediates go to Tweed to play a scheduled game in the Trent Valley League. The locals have a tie and one loss to their credit and will be out to break into the win column tomorrow night.

ST. PAUL'S Y. P. S.

St. Paul's Y. P. U. met as usual on Monday evening with the devotional period and opening exercises under the direction of the President, Mr. Don Williams, recently elected to this office to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Mary Hulm who has accepted a position in Toronto. The meeting opened with the singing of the theme song and a brief song service of familiar hymns, followed with prayer by Miss Mae Currie. The Secretary read a communication, received from Dollard, Sask., the stricken area of the Western Provinces, gratitude for the gifts received from the Stirling organization. Miss Ruth Murray read the Scripture Lesson, taken from sixth chapter of St. John, verses one to thirteen. The remaining part of the program was under the supervision of the Citizenship department led by Mr. Clarence West, who ably presided as chairman. Jimmy Armstrong delighted the audience with selections, playing the harmonica and guitar at the same time, for an encore he gave a vocal solo, "Now I lay me down to sleep," accompanied by the guitar. Rev. W. J. Scott, who was the speaker of the evening led in open forum the subject "The Christian Family at Worship," carefully analyzing Christianity, Heathenism and Paganism. In reply to this question "How can we lay claim to being a Christian Nation?" The speaker pointed out that leaders in our Governments recognized Christ as their leader ever since the founding of the first Christian Church in the Seventeenth Century by the Jesuit Fathers. Christianity has gone forward successfully. We as a Christian nation send missionaries into other lands. Through the discussion period it was revealed that Buddhist Temples and Temples teaching the beliefs of Confucianism existed in Vancouver and the only way to combat such teaching is to create stronger

RECEIVES LETTER

At a recent meeting of the officers and members of St. Paul's Y. P. U. a very impressive service and dedication of gifts to be sent to needy families in the stricken areas of Western Canada, was held. Following is a copy of a letter of appreciation received by Mrs. N. Wescott:

Dollard, Sask., Jan 16, 1937
Mrs. Nora Wescott,
Stirling, Ontario.

Dear Friends: I found your addressed envelope in a box of clothing which I was helping my husband distribute. In behalf of the recipients I wish to thank each and every one who has contributed toward our need in these trying times. The continual strain has been very hard on many people who have heretofore been in good circumstances. The government food allotment is quite good here this year, but so many families have had to scrimp on clothes and bedding for several years now and the allotments toward such help was very inadequate and any fairly usable article has been greatly appreciated in many homes. Thanking you again for your help and kindly thoughts of us.

Sincerely yours,
Frances T. Johnson,
Dollard, Sask.

UNDERWENT OPERATION

Miss Marie Fitzpatrick was taken to Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Monday, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. Her many friends will be pleased to learn that she is making good progress towards recovery.

SOCIAL EVENING

A social evening, under the auspices of St. John's A.Y.P.A., was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday, Jan. 20th. Progressive euchre was enjoyed during the early part of the evening with the following players winning prizes: Ladies — 1st, Mrs. Don Donohoe; 2nd, Mrs. Claude Tucker. Gents — 1st, Mr. Ernest Cain; 2nd, Mr. Wm. Dermody. Novelty prize — Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh.

Refreshments were served by the young ladies, following which dancing was enjoyed.

The regular meeting of the Guild was held in the basement of the Church on Monday evening, with Arthur Duncan in the chair. The meeting opened with a Devotional period dedicated to the people in the stricken area to the south of us. The business part of the meeting was conducted by the President, Roy Juby. Plans were made to bring the Burnbrae Young People here in the near future to present a play "All in the Family." Chas. Dracup presented a very fine reading which was enjoyed by all. Everybody joined in a short period of community singing, followed by a group of test periods conducted by Arthur Duncan. The meeting was closed and a lunch was served.

ties of worship within our homes. A truly Christian family should be a different family even in the days of Christ's time on earth. The difference of his influence was seen in the lives of his disciples. Each member of the organization was greatly indebted to Rev. Mr. Scott for this timely address, and the discussion which was conducted in a most capable manner. The final number was a contest staged. Mrs. James Palmer read, white and khaki sides gaining equal honours. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

ANNUAL CLASS PARTY

"Cheery Classmates" of St. Paul's United Church held their annual class party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Drewry last Thursday evening. About twenty class members and visitors are all enthused over the trip out (in Mr. Roy Woodbeck's truck); the splendid program of songs, readings, contests and stunts arranged by the committee in charge; the gorgeous lunch, also arranged for by the said committee, and last, but not least, the hearty welcome which Mr. and Mrs. Drewry gave to all and sundry. Each class party is better than the last, so there is no hesitation in saying this was the best yet.

A Proverb contest, directed by Mrs. H. Donnan was the opening number of a very pleasing program. Mrs. Hayton contributed two readings, which were greatly enjoyed by all. A contest, a Railroad Trip, prepared by Mrs. A. Weaver and directed by Mrs. Nora Wescott, proved very instructive as well as entertaining. Rev. W. J. Scott rendered a baritone solo, followed by an "Observation" contest directed by Mrs. Nora Wescott, and community singing led by Miss Mae Curry.

At the conclusion of the programme the hostess, assisted by several of the ladies, served a very delectable lunch of home-made ice cream, sandwiches, cake and tea.

CLOSE CONTESTS RURAL LEAGUE

Standings Changed Considerably By Recent Games

A doubleheader in the Rural Hockey League was staged at the local arena on Tuesday night, when West Huntingdon, last year's champions, took the measure of Glen Ross, the league leaders, in a closely-fought game by 2 to 1, and Foxboro defeated Bethel by a 7 to 3 score. The ice was in splendid shape and the players on the different teams gave all they had in an effort to win.

Foxboro — Bethel
Foxboro, with their shifty front line of Lee, Ronsky and Hannah gave a great display of smooth combination and their brilliant passing plays were a treat to watch. Bethel were weakened considerably by the absence of Parks, their centre man, and injuries to Ray Dickey, who is one of the league's leading goal-getters. Ronsky, and Lee went through several times before they got Dickey's measure and literally poured the shots in after that. Lee got the first counter on a pass from Ronsky and Ronsky nipped the next two unassisted. Fox finally broke away to beat Sinfield on a clever shot to the right corner and the period ended 3-1 for Foxboro.

Starting with renewed speed in the middle period Foxboro run their score up to six with three fast ones. Sims got the first and Don Lee the next two. Hannah made it seven on a lone rush in the last period when they had a decided edge on the play, cutting down that big lead by two goals with the credit going to E. Dickey and Fauch. Final score Foxboro 7, Bethel 2.

Bethel — E. Dickey; defence, Fauch and Sills; centre, Caverley; wings, Culhane and Lupinette; subs, R. Dickey, E. Dickey, Tappes, Guay.

Second Game
In the second fixture West Huntingdon played up to their last year's form when they toppled the League leading Glen Ross crew in a closely-fought battle by a score of 2-1. Robinson, flashy centre man of Glen Ross was absent, along with Friday Fraser, but this was offset by the absence of Rodgers and Dan Cook for the "Westies", making the teams about even on that score. There was no score in the

MEN'S CLUB HOLDS DINNER

Excellent Dinner and Fine Programme For Large Attendance

With an attendance of over three hundred the members of St. John's Men's Association held their second annual Turkey Dinner in the Parish Hall, on Tuesday evening. The tables which were attractively decorated, were arranged to accommodate approximately one hundred and fifty of the guests, and the serving commenced promptly at six-thirty. The men of the Club acted as waiters and the many good things provided were served with despatch and a minimum of confusion. By eight-forty-five all had been fed and willing hands quickly cleared the hall for the programme which was to follow.

Dr. E. A. Carleton, president of the Association, acted as chairman for the occasion and extended a warm welcome to all those present.

The opening number on the programme was a trombone solo by Mr. Reg. Wardell, of Belleville, accompanied by Miss Ketcheson, of Frankford. The appearance of this talented musician on a local program is always appreciated and he was given a splendid reception. This was followed by a trio sung by the Misses Ketcheson and Snider of Frankford. So appreciative were the audience of the number that an encore was demanded and given. Mr. Snider acted as accompanist.

Greetings from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were conveyed to the St. John's Men's Association by Rev. J. A. Koffend, who wished the members the best of success in their undertakings. Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne of Bonarlaw, also spoke briefly.

Mrs. H. P. Ellis rendered a pleasing solo, and responded to the audience's demand for an encore. She was accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Alger, at the piano.

A feature of the programme was an exhibition of legerdemain by Flight Sgt. Syme, of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton, who kept the rapt attention of those present as he went through his complete repertoire of tricks. This artist, who was making his initial appearance before a local audience, proved beyond a doubt that the quickness of the hand deceives the eye, and it goes without saying that he will be a welcome artist on any programme in the future. He was assisted in his different numbers by Master Gordon Ellis, Miss Ketcheson, Dr. Carleton and Messrs E. Salisbury and A. Weaver.

After another number by Mr. Wardell, fraternal greetings were conveyed the Association by Rev. A. F. Smith, of Trenton; Rev. J. E. Beckel of Rawdon Circuit and Rev. Rural Dean Caldwell, of Marmora.

The trio from Frankford rendered another vocal selection and encore which were greatly appreciated. Expressions of appreciation on behalf of the Association to the guest artists and all those who assisted in any way in making the evening a success were extended by Mr. Thos. W. Solmes and Rev. A. S. McConnell, and the programme was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

A TIMELY APPEAL

No one will find fault with the appeal for economy in all departments of the county administration which was made by Warden W. Gray in his inaugural address last week at the January session of the Hastings County Council held in Belleville. Hastings County is in a strong financial position, with its debenture debt being comparatively small, but the present tax rate is high. Several municipalities within the County have been unable to pay their county tax for the past year and any increase in the County rate would be a catastrophe for them. There is little work throughout the county for the working men and the relief lists are reported to be larger than for some years, in spite of the current talk that times are so much better. During the past year the farmers have received better prices for their produce than for some time, but this has been offset by the corresponding rise in the price of feeds. With conditions throughout the county as they are, any reduction in the county tax would be most welcome and Warden Gray's appeal for economy was a most timely one.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE RETIRES

The next regular meeting of the Stirling Board of Education will see the retirement of one of the most respected members in the person of Mr. Fred T. Ward. It was in January, 1895, that Mr. Ward was first elected as a school trustee and for the past forty-one years in succession he has served in that capacity both faithfully and well, two years being spent as the presiding officer. No committee exists in the organization which has not been graced by his affiliation therewith. He has been one of the most faithful and assiduous of the members in the performance of his duties and has always taken a great interest in the problems of the youth of the village and surrounding community. A keen student of educational matters and quick to express himself on any subject, his opinion commanded great respect in the deliberations of the Board, and his presence around the table at the monthly meetings will be greatly missed.

In his years of service Mr. Ward has seen the educational facilities in the Village gradually developed, until today we have seats of learning comparing favourably with any and superior to many, in the province. It would be impossible to value the services he has rendered this community and the thanks of all the citizens of both the Village and surrounding countryside are due him.

CAN DO NOTHING ABOUT IT

It is interesting to listen to the comments passed by local and district residents, regarding present weather conditions. The snow shovel, instead of working overtime in the busy season, has this year taken a prolonged rest. Instead, the garden spade is still in use as residents take from the back yard enough earth and sand to spread on the sidewalks in an effort to prevent tumbles on the icy surface. In very few cases have we had two consecutive days of like conditions. Some farmers believe it will be the ruin of fall wheat and other growth. Others offer the opinion that these crops have not been subjected to enough extreme cold to do any appreciable damage. In some sections cattle are still allowed to pick what sustenance they can from fields which at this season should be buried deep in blankets of snow.

Many and varied are the explanations of happenings during the present winter, but one which occasioned perhaps a little more than the usual degree of surprise was our watching several birds gathering straws and nest-building material, and carrying it to a secluded spot at the rear of a local business place. There's something wrong somewhere when even the sparrows lose their respect for our usual winter. On Sunday afternoon a transient showman staged an act with what might be termed "cool" deliberation. He, attired in ordinary bathing trunks, swam the waters of Rawdon Creek with no apparent fear. Ice blocks hindered his efforts to swim a straight course, but he pushed them aside and went on.

Even those who revel in those "way back when" yarns are at their wits' end for something to say about it. Just as those who have wood to draw from snowless bush-lots are at their wits' end to know what to do about it. Many claim the fuel supply has been greatly benefited — others that they have noticed no great difference due to the fact that the fires were kept pretty well up to normal, as the householder never knew what sort of climatic conditions to expect next. But January is about finished. February is the shortest of all months. And ere long the season now with us, be it real or make-believe, will be gone. Few will be sorry. Spring, in spite of the mildness of the present winter, will be cordially welcomed.

FAIR BOARD ORGANIZED

The Stirling Agricultural Society, in annual session last week, decided to again hold a Fall Fair during the month of September next, as well as acting in conjunction with the Ontario Department of Agriculture to stage the Annual Championship School Fair for the County of Hastings. This organization, comprising farmers of the surrounding community, and a number of the citizens of the Village, has had a hard struggle during the years of depression, but through the untiring efforts of President E. J. Pyear and the directors it has managed to meet all its obligations and in addition has liquidated some of the outstanding indebtedness.

Two members of the Fair Board who have had no small part in the success attained, are Messrs E. J. Pyear, President, and J. E. O'Donnell, Secretary, and the announcement of their retirement was a matter of regret to the members of the organization. Holding office for the past eight years both these gentlemen have given unstintingly of their time and energy in the interests of a community organization and the thanks of all are due them.

The primary purpose of any Agricultural organization is the promotion of things agricultural and that the local Society is filling its duty may be gleaned from the large list of entries at last year's Fair. The number of entries at last year's Fair was not quite so large as the previous year, but this may be attributed to the drought which visited this district during the past summer. In the Horse classes there were around one hundred entries. Some criticism was offered in this section because of the absence of a class for Agricultural colts. The matter was brought to the attention of the directors at their annual meeting and will be adjusted this year. In the cattle classes there were one hundred and thirty-eight entries, while there were twenty-nine entries in the sheep classes and forty-six in the swine. The poultry class was filled to capacity with two hundred and eighty-five entries. This department has been steadily growing year by year until the number of entries exceed the accommodation, but the committee in charge has plans laid to cope with the situation. The grain and seed classes had one hundred and twenty-two entries; the roots and vegetables two hundred and sixty; flowers and fruit one hundred and thirteen, and the domestic products and dairy, three hundred and twenty-eight. The ladies' work department drew one hundred and eighty-eight entries and the Women's Institute section eighteen. In addition there was the manual training and domestic science section for pupils from the Stirling Public School and the Fine Arts section. In all there were approximately seventeen hundred entries, with prizes of approximately one thousand dollars.

In addition to these classes the local Society sponsored the Championship School Fair and the Boys' Swine Club.

This is a record of which the local Fair Board may be deservedly proud, and is due to the hard work and co-operation of its members. The new Board of Directors is headed by Mr. J. B. Thompson, as president, and has Mr. F. R. Mallory as Secretary. Both these gentlemen have been connected with the Society for a number of years and bring to their new positions much valuable experience gained from years spent in the different offices connected with the Society. Already plans are being considered for the raising of funds to further lower the outstanding indebtedness of the Society and it is fully expected that 1937 will be a banner year in the history of the organization. The officers of the Agricultural Society give freely of their time and energy with no thought of personal gain, in the interests of a community organization, and we hope that the citizens will give them their support in their efforts to raise funds for the Society.

CURRENT COMMENT

In 1908 there were 408 weekly papers published in Ontario; today there are only 264. Daily newspapers have dropped from 522 in 1911 to 34 today.

Next Tuesday is Candlemas Day — or the day when Old Bruin and the Groundhog are supposed to make their first appearance from their winter sleep. According to the legend we will have six weeks more of winter if the sun shines on this day, but since the Weatherman has apparently got mixed up in his seasons, folks will hardly know what kind of weather to expect, supposing the bear does see his shadow.

With the Minister of National Defence authorizing the expenditure of close to a million dollars on the airport situated near Trenton, it would appear that this station will some day be a most important link in the Canadian Airways System. The town of Trenton will benefit materially from having this station situated so close to its borders and perhaps the prediction that Trenton will be Ontario's next city is not so far wrong after all.

Sunday's sleet storm has left the streets of the village and the roads of this section covered with ice and in a very treacherous condition for motoring. When the roads are coated with ice the danger of skidding is always present, and motorists should use extra precautions, the most important of which is slow driving. The Highways leading into the Village have been given a coat of sand, but many of the streets and roads are still in a very dangerous condition, and motorists are reminded that the icy pavement is one of their most dangerous enemies. Drive slowly and carefully.

TRAVELLING MINISTERS

WORK FOR INVENTORS

(Port Arthur News-Chronic)

The search for the non-glaring headlight and the 100 per cent. efficient glare-eliminating windshield must go on. The reward for the discovery will be fewer traffic accidents, thousands of lives saved annually and faster and more comfortable night driving.

WHAT MAKES A TOWN

(Forest Staffard)

It isn't the number of square miles in a town that makes it what it is, but the number of square shooters in it. It is the citizens that make a town. Its prominence and a good name are controlled by the measure of co-operation and public spirit of its business men and leaders. The only way a town can be kept on the map is by the action of those who dwell in it. If they do not boost their town no one else will.

NO RETURN FOR THEIR MONEY

(Tweed News)

Tweed residents were not at all pleased at the prospects of having to purchase radio licenses this week in view of the poor reception and interference in this village. The Department, although previously advised of the disturbances, have made no effort to correct them and it rather irked all radio owners to procure the necessary document. However, the possibility of a fine sent many owners scurrying for licenses and unless they are able to produce them when the Inspector returns next week, summonses will likely follow. Those who wish to avoid paying a heavier penalty should take immediate steps in this direction.

THE SAME APPLIES TO STIRLING

(Havelock Standard)

In this issue appears a letter from a citizen of Havelock complaining, among other things, about the prevalence of transients panhandling from door to door in Havelock. Other towns in this district are complaining about the same evil habit and contrasting the city practice of arresting such chaps for so breaking the law of the land.

Day after day, and what is worse, night after night, these knights of the road are going from house to house begging for food and meals and clothing, and in many cases soliciting money, until we fancy our good people are heartily tired of the practice. Only last week a certain lady in town was startled to find one of these gentry with his hand over his eyes and his nose pressed against the front door, peering into her home. We are of the opinion that certain regulations have been laid down by the provincial authorities for the relief of transients, and municipalities enjoying aid are supposed to contribute to some degree. But in any event it is certainly high time that our council take steps to stop the practice and instruct the constable to do his duty before something happens that will awaken our citizens to the point where action will be imperative. If we have to feed transients, it should be paid out of the public funds and not have our women alarmed by daily visits from transients, among whom must necessarily be many with crime records, and who from their beggary experiences have every opportunity to seize on occasions for breaking in and theft — or worse.

THE SMALL SHOPKEEPER

(Christian Science Monitor)

For many years past the small retail shopkeeper, in England as in America, has been fighting under heavy odds in the contest with the big store and the great chain stores. But he has not yielded easily. To the mass distributors have been all the advantages of big buying power, spread overhead charges, labour-saving equipment, advertising facilities and low margins of profit. The small retailer has had to make the most of the personal service he can offer, and of sentimental associations. He still struggles on under difficulties, and it might appear to be only a matter of time before he is extinguished, or at least restricted to the smallest villages.

But in Britain he is by no means prepared to abandon the struggle. An organization has been formed known as the Society for the Preservation of the Small Shopkeeper, Ltd., which will aim at removing the handicap under which its members labour. Its chief object will be to enable the small man to sell his goods as cheaply as they can be obtained at the branches of the multiple store companies. Manufacturers will be asked to supply the society with goods on the same terms as they are sold to the chain stores. Railways and road transport companies will be asked to carry them cheaply; and if these do not respond to the demand the society will acquire a fleet of vehicles of its own.

In other words, what the chain stores have achieved by centralized organization the small shopkeepers now propose to do by co-operation. If by union they can put themselves into a position to compete on equal or nearly equal terms with their powerful rivals, they will have done a service to the community for which they cater as well as for themselves.

The small shopkeeper, single-handed against his big competitor, could not hope to give equal service. Doomed to inefficiency, he was bound to disappear. But with a strong association of his fellows behind him he can hope to run on equal terms with his powerful rival.

Landlord: "But does the chimney always smoke like this?"
Servant: "Oh, no; only when there is a fire in the grate."

Youth — "Mr. Snow, I love your daughter more than words can tell."
Her Father: "Well, maybe you can state it in figures."

"It's a bargain. I'll let you have the picture for half the catalogue price."

"Hm! The catalogue cost me a quarter. You're right, it's a bargain."

"Hm-m! Here's a story about a collar button being found in a cow's stomach."

"That must be a fake. How could a cow get under a bedroom dresser?"

It is told of a sage that one day after the fashion of his school, he was questioned, "Master, what is the test of good manners?"

"It is being able to put up pleasantly with bad ones," was the quick reply.

Motorist — "I will give you $5 for that picture."
Artist — "Won't you wait until I have finished it?"

Motorist — "No, I want the canvas to mend a puncture."

"How did you get on in the hospital?" a soldier was asked by a sympathetic friend. "Did they give you a lot of pills?"

"Pills!" replied the man, "why, they gave me so many pills that I've got ball-bearings in all my joints."

"No, he was a multi-millionaire."

LAKE-ON-THE-MOUNTAIN OVERFLOWS ITS BANKS

Lake-on-the-Mountain, which is 200 feet above the level of Lake Ontario and has no visible inlet or outlet, created a mystery in the Glenora district last week when it suddenly overflowed its banks, tumbling its waters down a precipice into the Bay of Quinte and tying up traffic on the Picton Glenora road.

The level of the little lake is three and one-half feet above normal, and old residents say that it has never been so high at this season during the past seventy years. Brimming over a three-foot retaining wall along the northern shore, the water flowed down over the highway and then created a miniature falls as it plunged down the precipice into the bay.

Glenora residents who wished to go to Picton were forced to take another route, and the teacher of the rural school, a few hundred yards from the flooded section of the highway, dismissed her class to allow the pupils to pass the water before it became too deep. The only one who ventured an explanation of the strange action of the little lake, was Leslie Schneider, who has lived near it since he was born, seventy years ago. "It must have been caused by the unseasonable break-up of the swamps on the north side," said he. The lake, which is apparently fed by an underground passage, is said to be unfathomable in some spots.

17 RURAL SCHOOLS CLOSED LAST YEAR

Seventeen rural schools were closed in Ontario in 1936 because of small attendance, Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education, said Monday. There is no general policy of the department towards compulsion in such closings, he said. "Where attendance falls below eight or so and pupils can be readily accommodated in nearby school sections where attendance is also small, the inspector might make suggestions about closing a school," said Dr. McArthur. "Each case is considered on its merits."

TWEED DEFEATS MADOC BY A SCORE OF 8-5

Tweed and Madoc, old rivals in the sport field, renewed hockey hostilities in the local arena on Friday night when the opening game of the Trent Valley League was played. The locals nearly doubled the score on their opponents, the final count being 8 to 5.

SPRINGBROOK LADIES' AID

A very successful and pleasant afternoon and evening was spent at the first meeting of the Ladies' Aid for the New Year, on Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Foley willingly opened her home for the occasion. There were 23 members present. The meeting opened by the President, Mrs. Florence Bateman, with hymn 21 and Mrs. S. Mason at the piano. The devotional exercises were also read by the president. The Lord's Prayer followed in unison. All joined in singing hymn 15. Responsive reading, Psalm 61, Mrs. Foley then led in prayer. The roll call was well responded to. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted. It was moved by Mrs. A. P. Williams and seconded by Mrs. A. Reid that both bills on the book be paid. A very fine reading was given by Mrs. Geo. Bailey, entitled "What Christ said." All were interested in a story my Mrs. A. P. Williams, "The Other Wise Man." An interesting paper was given by Mrs. C. Sine, "The Value of Happiness." Mrs. Geo. Williams then sang "Never grow old." Mrs. Thos. McKeown gave a splendid reading entitled "When the day is done." Some members paid the yearly dues. Rev. Mr. Foley closed the meeting with prayer. A quilt was quilted in the afternoon and a pot luck supper was served at 6 p.m. and enjoyed by all. The small fee of 20c was charged for the supper.

In the last report of L. A. Mrs. Elias Spry's name was omitted in the visiting committee.

BUY FERTILIZER ON GUARANTEED ANALYSIS

Unsatisfactory fertilizers, to wit, fertilizers of doubtful plant food content, or of such mechanical condition as will not feed satisfactorily through a drill, are becoming rarer every year, according to G. S. Peart, Chief, Fertilizer Division, Seed Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Occasionally, however, inspectors of the Fertilizer Division find such shipments. Usually, it is the casual vendor who most often violates the Fertilizer Act. Manufacturers and importers who intend to stay in the business do not deliberately hurt their reputations by delivering unsatisfactory goods, and therefore, they are the most dependable sources from which to buy. In any event, farmers are advised to buy subject always to guaranteed analysis and satisfactory mechanical condition, and they should refuse delivery when the bags are improperly labelled, or not labelled at all, or when the label is lower than that of the fertilizer ordered. Also, when the mechanical condition will not permit of uniform application as indicated by too high moisture content or inadequate screening, the fertilizer should not be accepted.

Any complete or mixed fertilizer delivered without the official registration number, together with a statement of guaranteed analysis, on the label or bag, is being sold illegally, and, as Mr. Peart points out, should be guarded against at all times. The only exception to this is when the fertilizer has been bought under prescription, for in such cases the buyer waives protection under the Act. Farmers should remember this when agents offer to sell them unregistered fertilizers by prescription. There is believed to be a wide enough choice of registered mixed fertilizers to give satisfactory results under any soil condition or crop requirement without resorting to prescription buying. The official results of fertilizer analyses for the registration year 1935-36 for all the provinces has just been published and may be obtained free on request from the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

The movement for a province-wide program of reforestation and soil conservation is rapidly gaining momentum throughout Ontario. Following the original meeting in London, of representatives of nine counties to form the Western Ontario Conservation Committee, a second meeting was held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, on January 13th, when representatives of thirteen Southern Ontario counties assembled to organize a second District Conservation Committee and to formulate a program of action. A third meeting was held at Bowmanville on Friday, January 15th, with a large number of Eastern Ontario counties being represented.

This series of meetings has been sponsored by the Farmers' Advocate, with its editor, Mr. W. H. Porter, as the moving spirit. Warden Adam McCowan of Wellington County, presided at the Guelph meeting and an all-day discussion of reforestation, water and soil conservation and woodlot preservation took place. At the conclusion the following resolution was unanimously passed: "That in the opinion of this meeting the people of Ontario, both rural and urban, are ready for a practical and constructive conservation program. It is further resolved that we recommend to the respective county councils that definite action be taken at their January sessions." It was recommended by the gathering that county councils set up a nucleus of a committee of two of their number, along with the county agricultural representative, to build up a strong conservation committee within each county. It was suggested that each county council make a grant of $25.00 to its District Conservation Committee to enable the latter to carry on its work, while the appropriation for work within the individual county would be left to the discretion of each county council.

OLDEST IN CANADA

Officially declared the oldest man in Canada, Mardiros Tatoi, 109-year-old Turk of Hamilton, Ont., is now cutting his third set of teeth. His age has been proven by both the United States and Turkish governments, according to the Hamilton old-age pension bureau, where the centenarian receives his pension regularly. Tatoi attributes his long life to the simple philosophy of "I like to live. I'm happy." An incessant smoker and coffee drinker, his new set of molars began to grow when his second set were extracted three years ago.

It was also further recommended that county councils demonstrate their sincerity by proceeding with some definite project of tree-planting and that a survey of each county be made in order to form a sound conservation program.

As a preliminary step in the campaign, the Guelph meeting recommended that Ontario be divided into five districts, in each of which a District Conservation Committee will be formed to supervise the program. The districts are as follows: No. 1, Essex, Kent, Elgin, Lambton, Middlesex, Huron, Perth, Norfolk and Oxford; No. 2, Welland, Lincoln, Haldimand, Wentworth, Halton, Brant, Waterloo; No. 3, Bruce, Grey, Dufferin, Simcoe, Wellington, Peel and York; No. 4, Ontario, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington; No. 5, Renfrew, Lanark, Carleton, Grenville, Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, Leeds, Frontenac, Prescott, Russell.

Various speakers stressed the need of tree-planting to conserve moisture and relieve drought conditions which had wrought havoc in the last two or three summers. Preservation of woodlots by stopping indiscriminate cutting of trees was deemed essential and also that farmers should learn to keep their livestock out of woodlands where they were doing much damage.

Educational programs were considered vital and it was suggested that the government prepare a primer on reforestation and conservation for use in public schools. Planting of trees by individual citizens for windbreaks and beautification purposes was urged as a coronation year feature. Plots of trees could also be set out as memorials to distinguished public men, who had rendered notable service to their country.

The serious effect of drought in lowering the water level of streams and rivers and drying up wells was emphasized. Farmers had found it necessary to draw water for their stock as far as five miles. It was also pointed out that there were too many municipal drains which were having the effect of taking moisture from the land where it was needed. Swamps were disappearing and trees being ruthlessly destroyed. All farmers must co-operate in the movement in order to secure satisfactory results.

Dr. G. I. Christie in a luncheon address predicted that this movement was destined to play a great part in the future development of Ontario. It would result in leaving a wonderful heritage for the children and grandchildren of the present generation. Planting of trees would go far towards solving the problem of conserving the water supply. Mr. E. J. Zavitz, Provincial Forester, and Frank S. Newman, superintendent of the St. Williams Forestry Station were other speakers, the latter declaring that misuse of forest lands in the province was without parallel and that a remedy must be found. Mr. Monroe Laudon, president of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the need for a revision of the Assessment Act to provide for the exemption of forest growth from taxation. He declared that trees were the only crop taxed and that the present assessment practice was a deterrent to private reforestation efforts.

A Central Committee representing all five districts will be set up and a brief is in course of preparation to submit to the Ontario Government.

Farmers! Beware!
Since many nutritional disorders and diseases of farm animals have been traced to the lack of adequate minerals in their rations, there has been an increasing demand for mineral supplements. Salesmen are known to be operating extensively throughout the Province and in some cases are offering so-called "mineral supplements" which are useless and may be worse than worthless and these products may be offered at prices far in excess of that which the farmers can afford to pay.

Recently two striking instances of fraudulent practice were brought to the attention of the Dominion Government inspectors. One material consisted almost entirely of ground limestone. The other of common salt. Yet both were being sold at fantastic prices.

When in 1921 the "Feeding Stuffs" Act of Canada was drawn up the wide demand for mineral supplements was unforeseen. Consequently no measures of control for their sale were incorporated in the Act. Therefore, until a revision of the said Act is completed it behooves the farmer to be on his guard against the insidious advances of these sometimes ignorant salesmen. The farmer should — first satisfy himself that the mineral supplement is the product of a firm with a reputation to maintain a demand to be shown a statement of analysis, bearing in mind that calcium and phosphorus should be approximately two to one. The maintenance of a correct balance between these two is considered important.

Consult your Agricultural Representative or the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph if you are in doubt as to the analysis of the product which is being offered to you.

UPSET LANTERN CAUSE OF FIRE IN BARN

A lantern upset by pigs caused a fire which totally destroyed the barn owned by Roy Hicks, a short distance from Milford Village on Sunday night. The lantern had been left on the barn floor while the pigs were being driven into the pens, from which they had previously been released. Two of the seven pigs went into the barn door instead of into the pig-pens and the lantern was upset. The hay on the floor quickly ignited and the flames quickly ignited and shot up the side of a mow of hay, so that nothing could be done to extinguish them. Mr. Hicks succeeded in saving several animals from the building, which was of frame construction and burned rapidly.

WE NEED YOUR HELP— THIS YEAR! EVERY YEAR!

Needy children from all over the Province are treated regardless of race, creed or financial circumstance.

This policy has been continued for over 60 years in the firm belief that everyone who understands the facts would want this great work to continue . . . would agree that no Ontario child should be denied a chance for health or escape from deformity if mere money makes the difference.

Over 95% of our beds are in Public Wards.

The Hospital receives no support from the Toronto Federation for Community Service because patients are accepted from all parts of the Province.

We must therefore appeal to a humane and generous public to take care of an annual deficit . . . this year it is $68,000.00.

• Please mail a donation to the Appeal Secretary, 67 College Street, Toronto.

The thanks of little children will be your reward.

The Hospital for Sick Children

Every morning in the year famous surgeons come to our operating rooms to donate their services. More than 8,100 operations are performed annually. But there are many extra lives involved and the maintenance of this necessary service is very costly.

Since 1929 the service rendered by the always-overcrowded Out-Patient Department has more than doubled. Last year 21,414 individual treatments were given. This service yields a small revenue—but not nearly enough.

FORMER CRIPPLE NOW PLAYS TENNIS

Rheumatism in Feet Relieved

Here is a story of a young man who had almost given up hope of taking part in active sports with his fellows again. He tells how he tried one remedy after another and how finally a former sufferer put him on the way to recovery.

"Two years ago I started with pains in the feet which gradually got worse. I tried 'everything under the sun' but to no effect. Whilst waiting for treatment one evening, another patient advised me to try Kruschen Salts. That was twelve months ago; the relief was not sudden, but the pain, and swelling gradually left my feet, and in six months I amazed my friends by taking long walks into the country. This year I have played a good deal of tennis, a thing which I had begun to think I should never do again." — C. W.

Rheumatic pain and swelling is frequently caused by excess uric acid accumulating in the body. Kruschen contains two ingredients which are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid deposits. Other ingredients in Kruschen assist the internal organs to expel this dissolved acid from the system.

The building is a well-built brick structure, three stories in height the two upper stories of which will be turned into lodge rooms, and the east half of the ground floor a banquet hall. The Masons do not intend to use the west half of the ground floor, but will remodel it as a store and offer for rent.

MARMORA DEFEATED LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Marmora High School won their second straight game when they defeated Stirling High School at the Madoc arena on Friday night by the score of 3-2. The fact that Madoc intermediates were playing in Tweed resulted in a small attendance. For Marmora, Leonard scored two, and O'Neill one, while Butler and Armstrong secured the counters for Stirling. The line-ups:

Marmora — Hart, goal; C. O'Neill, r.d.; N. O'Neill, l.d.; Leonard, c.; McKeown, r.w.; Kouri, l.w.; J. Love-lace, F. Loveless, Reynolds, Gray, McCaw, subs.

Stirling Loses First Game

Stirling Red and White Senior team took to the ice for their first game in the newly-formed North Hastings League on Thursday night when they battled a team representing the towns of Havelock and Norwood in the league. The game was played in Norwood with the home team winning. The Stirling team seemed to lack condition and Coach Harry Conley was well satisfied with their fine effort after only one practice. Brunton and Nell Rodgers were the goal getters for the Norwood team with the first mentioned getting a brace, one unassisted and the second on a pass from E. Jodin. Robinson got the lone tally for Stirling, with "Friday" Fraser getting the assist. Norwood was much superior in team play and combination.

The lineups:

Stirling — Goal, Fox; defence, McGowan and Jones; centre, Robinson; wings, Fraser and Rodgers; subs, Morton, Butler, Hagerman, Dainard and Reid.

Norwood — Goal, Davidson; defence, Webb and Rogers; centre, Brunton; wings, J. Voyer and Jodin; subs, P. Voyer, Hagerman, Rodgers, Jones and Rothwell.

Referees — Wells and Ennis.

first period, but play pepped up plenty after Dainard niched the first counter for the "Riversides". The final period was fast, particularly after H. Mott scored the tying goal. Both teams opened up and Mott got his second counter which won the game for West Huntingdon after B. Hagerman was taken out of the Glen Ross nets with a badly cut chin when he was struck by the puck. J. Armstrong went in to replace him, and turned in a fine game.

West Huntingdon — Goal, Saries; defence, Reid and McGowan; centre, H. Mott; wings, Wright and Thompson; subs, Thompson and Stapley.

Glen Ross — Goal, B. Hagerman; defence, Armstrong and Brown; centre, Hagerman; wings, G. Fraser fists flying and players and spectators swarmed the ice jostling one another around, but no serious damage was done.

For the locals, Robinson, with three goals, was the star, but was ably assisted by the Fraser Brothers. Goyer and Howie looked best for the visitors on the front line, with Ethier being dangerous on his rushes from the defence.

Canadiens and Maple Leafs Tie

Preceding the intermediate game the Canadiens and Maple Leafs, composed of local boys 12 years and under, played two fifteen-minute periods to a tie 3-3. This innovation proved popular with the fans and the boys responded with a good exhibition of hockey. Mr. C. A. Wells was in charge of the game. The line-ups were:

Maple Leafs — Goal, B. Tulloch; defence, Glen Whitehead and J. J. Ackers; centre, Bert Bastedo; wings, Doug. Patterson and Don McIntosh; sub, F. Weaver.

"SON GROWS UP"

By Harry M. Moore

A STORY OF THE LUMBER CAMPS

In his mind's eye he pictured the arch enemy of Camp Seven as a huge hairy-chested, two-fisted giant who fattened on hand to hand combat. He knew nothing of the man except what he had been told. He had never seen him. How was he to know that the stories told about McCracken had been highly coloured for a purpose?

But Tommy's chance to meet his enemy came sooner than he expected. Donald McCracken struck again at Camp Seven and he struck hard. Jim Waddell strode up from the limits one afternoon, lumbered into the office and dropped heavily into a chair.

"In a couple of days the loggers have to quit," he interrupted Tommy, who was buried at the time in a mass of figures. "They're at the last of the timber on the west side now. It's a pity too, when everything is going so well, and the sleighing is keeping up."

The pencil dropped out of Tommy's fingers.

"You mean to tell me that we're about cut out?" he demanded over his shoulder. "Let me see that map."

Jim pulled the pins out of the corners of the blue print hanging on the wall and handed the map over, indicating as he did where the cutting was now in progress.

"Mean to tell me," Tommy asked, spreading a big hand over the blue print. "That all this stuff's been whipped?"

The foreman shifted his glance. Tommy frowned.

"There's something else, Jim!"

"What is it?"

"Well, somebody has run a blaze across the limits from about there to— the foreman marked off the upper right angle — and trespassing signs are up —"

"Whose limits? Where?" Tommy yelled.

"Yours — ours!" Jim cried angrily. "And it cuts off a big section of our best pine."

"When did this happen?" Tommy asked in an effort to be calm.

The foreman shook his head.

"I found it out today when I started to move the men. Whoever blazed those trees and put up the signs came down the river on snowshoes. Of course, our cutters quite naturally refuse to cross that blazed line unless they are assured that they won't be looked up for trespassing."

Tommy smashed a fist on the table.

"Now, who in hell would do a thing like that?" he declared.

"I think I can guess," the foreman asserted.

Tommy Benson leaped to his feet. "By God! So can I," he fumed.

"Come on, Jim! Let's go get 'em."

The foreman turned on him.

"Where — where are you going?" he stammered.

"Down to the limits to see this thing with my own eyes," Tommy roared. "Then I'm going after Donald McCracken. And let me tell you something, brother, that timber pirate and yours truly are going to have a get-together meeting tonight that will be worth a ring-side seat."

Everything at the limits was just as Jim had told him. Tommy saw the freshly cut blaze. It had probably been done in the night. Signs, roughly made and carelessly lettered, apprized all and sundry that "Trespassers would be prosecuted."

"Jimmy," Tommy asked open-mouthed, "Did you ever in your experience hear of a thing like that being done before?"

The foreman shook his head.

"It's a new one on me," he vowed.

"And it wouldn't stand law?" Tommy declared.

"How could it?" the foreman questioned. "The limits are yours and the old line runs from the river directly west. The old blaze is as true as the compass."

Tommy Benson's eyes blazed.

"There's only one answer," he affirmed. "Whoever put that blaze there did so to impede us. That's as plain as the nose on your face. And he came down river? All right. He has invited me to call and see him. And I don't require any second invitation."

The foreman looked anxious. It was common knowledge that when Fight It Through Benson and Donald McCracken hooked up that there would be fireworks.

Victoria's New Bishop

Bishop-elect Cody is 37 years of age, a native of Ottawa, and is among the youngest bishops in Canada. Father Cody is appointed in succession to Bishop McDonald, who has recently been transferred as bishop coadjutor, with right of succession to Archbishop Henry Joseph O'Leary of Edmonton.

"Well, let's get going!" Jim suggested at last.

"No, Jim," Tommy explained. "This is my own affair and I'm going alone. Your place is at the camp. Push the men over the line and tell them to hop to it. Chuck those damn signs anywhere you like for all I care. Tell the boys that the Benson Lumber Company stands behind them and will see that they are fully protected. Now I must get back to camp and get a bite to eat. And if I don't make Donald McCracken crawfish tonight, Jim, I'll not have the face to come back to Camp Seven."

The foreman watched him as he disappeared up the main road in the direction of the camp.

"I wish you well, Fight It Through," he smiled, "but if you are not in for the cock-eyed surprise of your young life tonight, my name is not Jim Waddell!"

CHAPTER SEVEN

His father, David Benson, had been more than kind in his estimation of that subtle scoundrel Donald McCracken. Tommy summarized as he pushed one foot ahead of the other along the tote road that evening.

McCracken was of that low contemptible type of man who worked best underhand, striking treacherously without a hint that he was going to strike, or failing to do the dirty work himself, used paid hirelings, his yes men, to carry out his devilish schemes.

Donald McCracken had been at the bottom of every low act so far directed at Camp Seven and its management. McCracken's subtlety forced a wage increase where such an increase was most unwarranted. McCracken's underhandedness incited the teamsters to strike. McCracken's greed prevented Camp Seven from securing much-needed teams to teach the only too readily susceptible teamsters that McCracken propaganda had lost its force of appeal and could not hope to succeed at Camp Seven any more.

Tommy grinned proudly.

He had forced McCracken to pay a sweet price for those teams. It was a lone dry crust of comfort, but it was a crust. And it was comforting.

And now, McCracken had struck again. He was after the Benson Company timber. And he was using an old way of getting it — by attempting to frighten the rightful owners off. If he succeeded it would be a truly expensive stroke against Camp Seven. It would completely tie up the camp. Which would be too bad as there were many good logging days yet to come.

Of course Camp Seven would not be tied up, argued Tommy. In the morning the log-cutters would tear down the signs and axes would ring and saws would sing, road cutters would follow the loggers, horses would be led in to do the skidding. But in the meantime —

"Sap-head!" he fumed, drawing his belt in another hole and stopping to wipe his face. "Sap-head! As if his signs would stop us. There's a lot coming to him, alright, and I hope nobody interferes until I'm through with him."

The night was dark, growing darker every minute. A little rain or snow was near. Tommy met a group of noisy men who were on their way out to a dance in the settlement. They told him they were McCracken's men and that he had another four miles to go before he reached their camp.

Another hour's steady plugging and Tommy slowed up. He picked out what looked like an office and pushed in the door. A youthful clerk raised his eyes from the pages of a book long enough to ask curtly:

"What you want?"

Tommy caught up an axe and then a peavey from the office corner, examined them and set them back again. He frowned deeply. Each tool bore the easily recognizable stamp of the Benson Lumber Company. Stealing was something that Donald McCracken evidently knew a lot about, thought Tommy.

"I'm looking for McCracken," Tommy snapped at the clerk who was watching him curiously.

"He's over at the sleep camp," the clerk said. "The big building with the lean-to."

Tommy strode out of the office. He unbuttoned his mackinaw and loosened his shirt at the collar. At last he was running to earth the one man of all men he was most anxious to meet. McCracken — Donald McCracken — was in the sleep camp ahead of him on the right and every long stride he made brought him that much closer to his enemy. And when he reached him he was take this scoundrel by the throat and choke the life out of him.

Tommy grabbed the knob of the sleep camp door. He held it fast.

From within came the sweet strains of a violin. Head lowered, he listened. He heard someone softly dancing. For a moment he stood, then he pushed in the door. And as he did, he caught a glimpse of someone ducking through a door into the lean-to on the right. Probably the timber pirate's own private living quarters.

Tommy closed the door behind him, in his surroundings in one quick glance. The large, bare floor of a square room, several boys in a recumbent position on benches near a side-door to the left, a red-faced, grey haired fiddler on a chair near the lean-to door and in the middle of the floor, the dancer.

Tommy pursed his lips. It was a pity to interrupt them. He bit his lips with disappointment and dropped on a bench behind him.

The dancer, a tall, angular man, with a prominent roman nose, whirled over the floor in a Scotch trepsay. Rounds of applause came from the boys on the benches, a loud "Hurrah!" from the fiddler, who keeping time with one foot, bowed and scraped harder than ever.

Florid-faced from his exertions, the dancer kept on. He never looked up. He must have stood over six feet in his day. Tommy was amazed. He admired the agility and nimbleness of this man whose white hair and long bony hands proclaimed him at least sixty years of age.

The dancer finished with an unexpected flourish of his feet and called for another tune. Tommy made himself comfortable. He had never seen anything like this outside of the theatre and he enjoyed it. The business he had in mind could wait. It would be bad taste to intrude on them just now. Neither the dancer nor the fiddler had paid him the least attention if indeed they were aware that he was present.

The boys clapped vigorously as those marvelously trained feet caught up the tune again. Unable to control himself, Tommy gave vent to a "Bravo!" From side to side of the camp, the dancer flew, polishing off intricate step after intricate step with amazing rapidity and in perfect time. He tripped lightly from the centre of the floor towards the benches where the boys lay and was whirling back again when the door opened behind him and a big burly unshaven man slunk in and made directly for him. The old dancer gave the newcomer a quick glance of annoyance, but there was no apparent slackening of movements of skill and speed and time.

The stranger pressed after him and when close enough he passed some low, foul remark. The effect was electrical.

REGISTRARS APPOINTED

In the current issue of Canada Gazette listing the names of registrars of electors for the several electoral districts in Central Ontario, announcement is made that Col. W. R. Rierdon of Belleville, has been appointed registrar for Hastings South. Other registrars named are: Hastings-Peterborough, Charles Thompson, R.R. No. 2, Madoc; Durham, Geo. Farnet, Port Hope; Northumberland, J. F. R. Douglas, Campbellford.

GRASSHOPPERS NOW AT CAMPBELLFORD

If grasshoppers are a harbinger of spring than housewives should soon be getting ready for spring cleaning, because Hilton Beatty and a number of Hydro employees reported seeing one of the sprightly creatures sitting on an old sardine can down at No. 9 Power House at Campbellford on Thursday afternoon. Several attempts were made to catch the specimen, but he proved altogether too lively for his would-be captors.

JUDGE J. MADDEN WILL PROBE RIOT

Judge James Madden, Napanee, has been named by Acting Premier Hon. Harry Nixon as commissioner under the Public Inquiries Act to conduct an investigation into the Sunday riot at the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, and the escape of 35 prisoners. Mr. Nixon made the following statement: "I have requested Judge James Madden of Napanee to conduct an investigation into the trouble at Guelph, and he has accepted the commission under the Public Inquiries Act. "Judge Madden has had a good deal of experience in the Kingston Penitentiary riots, being sent as special judge to handle the cases arising from them. He will come to Toronto tonight to see me. Tomorrow he will go to Guelph for a preliminary investigation, while the episode is still fresh. As soon as he can conveniently arrange his affairs, he will proceed with the inquiry. He will probably advise us in a day or two of the date for the investigation." Mr. Nixon said the Madden investigation would be public.

BOGUS HALF-DOLLAR IS PASSED AT COBOURG

Another bogus 50-cent piece has turned up in Cobourg, a service station attendant receiving a counterfeit Canadian half-dollar in payment for gasoline. The customer was known to the service station attendant and apparently was unaware the coin was bad. The coin was turned over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Two weeks ago equipment for making counterfeit half-dollars was found in a Cobourg building.

FRICION SPRING

STOCK cars on the Canadian National Railway equipped with friction springs have reduced shrinkage and losses on live stock shipments, effecting a considerable saving both to the railway and the shipper, while at the same time providing the animals with greater comfort in transit and freedom from bruises and damage. Above is shown a shipment of bacon hogs, unloaded at the Montreal stockyards of the National System. Below, left, the friction spring which has reduced jarring and bumping of cars in transit. The wavy line at the top right shows the extent to which the car moves up and down on the friction springs; the wavy line below shows the movement which takes place in travel of a car not equipped with the friction springs. Test apparatus was used to determine the effect of the new spring equipment under actual loading conditions. Railway authorities also find the new spring equipment helpful to them since it reduces stress and damage to equipment and track.

Accountant's office of the Department of Highways.

This shows a net expenditure of $82,363.37, which is 83 cents above the estimated levy.

This is the last year for paying the balance due the government on the Highway's expenditures of 1934 and will require a levy of 3 1/2 mills. We have 21 miles of roads added to the county system making a total of 328 miles. There will also be an increased cost for Workmen's Compensation as there was not sufficient levied last year and we did $10,500.00 of contract work on which we did not pay compensation, and there will not be any contract work done this year. Yet with all these extras we are only recommending the same expenditure as last year, as we do not wish to increase the tax to the local municipalities.

Division of the estimated expenditure amounting to $82,363 as presented to County Council by the Roads Committee is as follows:— Grading, $14,780; Dragging, $6,100; Culverts and Bridges, $7,070; Resurfacing, $25,470; amount of yards, $1,350; Dust-layers, $4,995; Miscellaneous, $10,785; Bridges not on County Roads, $1,200; General Account and Emergency, $11,900. This accounts for a road mileage in the county of 328 miles.

The above estimate figures out at a 2 1/2 mill rate. The Roads and Bridges Committee have suggested an increase of 1/4 mill to provide for extra expenditures on additional road mileage and other miscellaneous items.

Following the reading and adoption of the Roads Committee report, the first reading on several by-laws was passed.

Application for an increase in County insurance premiums covering Road liability and Property damage by a representative of the insurance company brought about a lively discussion prior to the luncheon adjournment.

Figures submitted by the agent showed that in 1934 a premium of $855.90 was paid, while the company paid out $295.00. In 1935, $833.70 premium paid, with $2,150.00 paid out. In 1936 a premium of $1,042 was paid and $500 paid out by the company.

A premium of $1,100 was asked by the insurance company but the question was laid over until later to be turned over to the Ways and Means Committee.

We have many dangerous curves, hills and narrow bridges, which should be improved and the paving continued on the Madoc road. The dust from the traffic on the heavy travelled roads is creating considerable concern to those living adjacent to these roads and if the finances of the County were such that these necessary improvements could be made, we would arrange the expenditures accordingly, but as we are asking only for the same amount as last year, no provision is made for construction or paving work. The Superintendent has drafted a list of the duties, etc., of patrolmen, a copy of which is given to each patrolman and each Reeve. By careful study of these you will note that it requires a large expenditure to maintain our roads and bridges.

We are making provision for applying dust-layer on 20 miles of roads, but there are 60 miles which should be done. This extra 40 miles could be done for an additional 1/4 mill, making the total of 2 1/2 mills. If the Council thought it advisable on account of the proposed change in cost of Mothers' Allowance and Old Age Pensions that some of this extra work should be done this year, your committee would be guided by your suggestions and adjust the expenditures accordingly.

Your committee called for tenders on snow plowing with trucks and have awarded contracts so as the main country roads will be kept open this winter with snow-ploughing equipment. Wages for this year will be as follows: Construction and crusher foreman, power grader and roller operator, 30c per hour; maintenance foreman, 25c and labour, 20c; teams on graders and scraper, 40c per hour; others teams, 35c per hour; steam power, 55c, with fuel furnished; gas power, 80c, owner to furnish fuel; trucks for hauling from crusher plant (2 yards) $1.00 per hour; other work 80 cents per hour.

A schedule of estimated expenditures for the various classes of work on the basis of a 2 1/2 mill rate is attached and a copy is available for each member of the council.

PREVENTING FUTURE FLOODS

(Port Hope News)

The recent floods in Ontario, and more particularly in this section of the province, as a result of most unseasonable weather should not be taken as the inevitable but on the other hand should cause more interest in flood control and conservation measures. The flood conditions of last week were the result of rainfall almost unprecedented in the month of January. Canada has experienced most unusual seasons, with winters of record cold; summers of record heat, and now floods have risen to new heights. And we have not been without droughts which have been dangerous.

The proponents of conservation have have predicted just such occurrences as took place last week. And learning what has happened in other countries under the same conditions they are now certain that the ruthless clearing of forests, draining of swamps and land-mining will eventually turn our green and pleasant land into a replica of the deserts of China and the great Sahara.

HASTINGS COUNCIL WILL DEFER WRITS

Members of Hastings County Council decided to defer writs against defaulting municipalities at least until the June sessions of the Council. The decision came after nearly two hours of heated discussion.

Municipalities at present in arrears of payments to the county are Wollaston-Faraday, Herschel-Montegale and McClure-Wicklow-Bangor. The decision was made when a motion sponsored by Reeve W. H. Sayers, of Tweed, and seconded by Reeve J. L. Churcher, of Dunganon, passed unanimously.

Regular school grants were passed $800 will be granted to the North Hastings Inspectorate, and poor School grants of $90 to Elzevir township; and $25 to North Hastings Schools were ordered paid for 1937. On motion, Council also requested the Provincial Department of Highways to take over St. Lawrence street in Madoc, as a part of Highway No. 7. The street forms a connecting link between the two sections of the highway.

Council defeated a motion that wages for labour on a stretch of county road between Monaghan's Crossing and Drum's Crossing in Wollaston, be raised. Workers at present receive 20 cents per hour, with 35c for teams. The motion, calling for a five-cent-per-hour increase, was defeated. On motion, it was decided to grant $100 to the County Seed Fair to be held in Belleville this year.

Following the lead of Havelock and Belmont residents, the Booster Club of Marmora, an organization that has accomplished much in advertising Crowe Lake throughout the United States, has circulated a number of petitions against the proposed change to "Marmora Lake" by the Geographical Board of Canada, pointing out that there is already a small lake in the Township named Marmora. The Geographic Board claimed that originally the name of the lake was Marmora, but according to the history of the section, when Marmora Village was known simply as "The Works", the lake and river were known as Crowe Lake and Crowe river. It is believed that the river and lake were named after a Crow Indian trapper and medicine man whose name was Crowe. Marmora Village has passed a resolution protesting against any change in the name.

To me it seems strange that one should be coaxed or coerced into eating fish and, to my mind, it presupposes a mental resistance to over-emphasize the health-giving and energizing qualities of fish. While I do not doubt for a minute that fish contains superb food qualities, I prefer to eat fish because it pleases the palate like nothing else will.

Living, as we do, on the Atlantic Seaboard where fish of all varieties are readily available in abundance, we are naturally deeply interested in having the people of our sister provinces make use of our food supplies; but despite my mercenary interest as a public man in the natural resources of our Province, my own experience prompts me to advise people to use fish liberally because of its own delightful appeal.

ANTI-FLOOD STEPS TAKEN AT BELLEVILLE

A public works program totalling $2,500, to relieve flood conditions of Belleville, passed the Municipal Council on Monday night. The project will provide work for relief recipients of that city. Two storm sewers and the enlargements of culverts are included in the program. A twelve-inch storm sewer is to be constructed on Catherine Street from Yeoman to Sinclair Street, at an estimated cost of $1100, and an eighteen-inch storm sewer on Chatham Street from Bridge Street to Victoria Avenue, estimated at $1,200; and the enlargement of culverts under East Moira and Stone Streets, estimated at $200. Work on this project will start immediately.

DEBENTURE DEBT OF COUNTY $68,184

According to the report of the auditors of the Hastings County Council which concluded their January Session late Friday afternoon, the amount owing the county by the various municipalities was estimated at $172,430.73. This includes county rate, indigent accounts and interest. The outstanding debenture debt for the year ending 1936 stands at $68,184.33, while accounts receivable were $55,997.30 and those payable were $21,177.48.

DEBENTURE DEBT OF COUNTY $68,184

Acting on behalf of a Hancock taxpayer, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., has launched proceedings to unseat Dr. S. S. Lumb and Councillors D. E. Hawley and T. W. Tryon, on the grounds that they allegedly failed to properly qualify under provisions of the Municipal Election Act.

TRYING TO UNSEAT BANCROFT COUNCIL

Reeve Lumb recently returned for a second term of office, and Councillors Hawley and Tryon, who are serving their first terms as members of Bancroft Village Council, have been requested in letters sent from the office of Mr. Gordon, to file their disclaimers forthwith.

"Unless I hear from you by Thursday, January 21st, I will start proceedings against you," each of the letters states. The proceeding referred to, Mr. Gordon told a reporter, are that if disclaimers are not filed he will make a motion for their disqualification and an application for costs against them before the Hastings County Judge at Belleville.

It is alleged that Mr. Hawley failed to resign as member of the School Board before becoming a member of the Village Council, and the allegation against Mr. Tryon is that he took the oath of office as councillor without owning property in the municipality.

In each letter Mr. Gordon states: "I am instructed to move for your disqualification, and apply for costs against you, unless you file your resignation in a manner prescribed by the Municipal Act. Unless I hear from you by Thursday, January 21, I will start proceedings against you."

Some time ago the editor of the London (England) Morning Post offered a prize for the best "Code of Rules for the guidance of Journalists." The following, submitted by Guy Innes, of Australia, was awarded the prize:

$82,000 TO BE SPENT ON COUNTY ROADS

An estimated expenditure for the upkeep and maintenance of three hundred and twenty-eight miles of Hastings County roads amounting to $82,360, approximately the same as that of a year ago was recommended in a report of the County Roads and Bridges Committee to the Hastings County Council.

While several extras have been added to the duties of the Road Committee such as the maintenance of twenty-one additional miles to County roads, making a total of 326 miles; increased cost for Workmen's Compensation and the provision for applying dust-layer to twenty miles of roads, the Committee with a view to keeping the tax rate at the same level, did not increase the estimate of a year ago.

Embodied in the report is the suggestion, that a quarter-mill be added to provide for dust-layer on an additional sixty miles of roads. Other extras could be provided for in view of the proposed changes in the cost of Mothers' Allowance and the Old Age Pensions, the report stated.

Following is the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee in its entirety. Since the December session the accounts and paysheets of the roads and bridges expenditures for 1936 has been audited by the Auditors from the Howdy folks!

"The wheel of Fortune spins. Around and 'round she goes — and where she stops, nobody knows."

Shades of Major Bowes!

We wonder if the Major had been in our fair land just previous to his coming of that passage.

Rain all day, freeze all night, Snow all day, thaw all night —

Result — nice walking.

Instead of the wheel of Fortune doing the spinning, you do it yourself.

Ice, ice, ice — with here and there an occasional puddle of water to lend "colour" to scenery and break the fall.

No, Sir. Major Bowes' wheel hasn't got anything on the natives of this district.

Almost any morning you can see Bill Anderson, on his way up for the mail, take a tail-spin and make a forced landing when his under-carriage comes in contact with a nice juicy piece of ice.

Folks in this vicinity are so accustomed to taking three-inch strides with legs all stiff and set that they're going to have an awful time getting their gears shifted in the Spring.

It has been a beautiful winter — but you don't notice it from any particular standpoint —

You observe most of it from your sit-point.

Just to see Ham Johnston come down the main avenue on any of these slippery mornings, is almost pathetic, and yet he's got a lot to be thankful for.

Ham's stature makes it so that if he does lose his balance, he hasn't got far to go.

The Corporation has built the sidewalks nice and close to what Ham's likely to land on.

Which is certainly obliging.

Well, word comes that the radio license inspectors are on another spree in this district.

It's time to buy another piece of paper from the Government.

That's the only time we ever hear from that gang.

Once you've bought your license from these soft-collar employees of the powers-that-be, it's legal for you to operate a piece of machinery that will bring right into your front room all the noises from faulty power lines; the assurance that some of the folks in your neighbourhood are able to use their vacuum cleaner; announcements regarding a certain brand of soap which if used in prescribed dimensions is guaranteed to remove everything from your skin but your finger-nails; medicine that will put a horse on its feet in sixteen seconds after the first dose, even though it has not been able to keep anything solid on its stomach for weeks; all the sounds of joy radiated by an electric sparking machine held by some sweet old soul that is brimful of rheumatism; a bald-headed radio announcer giving you the "dope" on a hair-tonic that is positively guaranteed to grow fuzz on a door knob; a Yankee news commentator giving you the precise manner in which the English Government should handle their unemployment situation; and five broadcastings stations all using the same wavelength, giving you a splendid rendition of Mozart's "Pain in the ear", as rendered by the Afghanistan light artillery opera company — Rudy Valley softly gurgling "Yes Sir, that's my baby" (if it is he's adopted it) — Bob Ripley giving a demonstration on how a frying pan was the original soup spoon used in the Stone Age; and last but not least, that dear little piece of idiocy, Gracy Allum giving you her idea of "The Face in the Bar-room Floor"; followed by Blowell Tommils and Boke Karter with all the latest and surest remedies for the General Motors squat-down strike or Yalter Yintchull telling you all about how Morris Chevalley was caught kissing Merry Pickfort on the front porch, just as the milkman arrived, and why — only to be interrupted by the incoming noise from somebody's police headquarters regarding a hold-up — (probably some clever detective caught an old maid holding up her petticoat as she walked through a mud-puddle).

Great entertainment!

And just imagine folks — all for the small sum of two dollars!

They've used a part of your $2 to form what is now known as the C.B.C. (Can't Be Cured).

This is just a new outfit appointed by the Government.

A bunch of ginks that had been hunting for a soft job for a long time before the Government heard about it.

But give the government credit.

They soon fixed that, and found a position for the unemployed.

Speak to one of these inspectors about radio interference, and what happens?

You're informed that you can't expect them to stay in this district all night to find where a certain noise is coming from.

No, we wouldn't expect anything much from them — except trouble if we didn't contribute two dollars towards the upkeep of their happy little circle.

In one section of this village a resident or residents has got a system-full of rheumatism or a sister ailment.

Every night the same resident undertakes to hang on to a generating outfit and get a system-full of electricity, to counteract it.

Result: Nobody can hear anything on the radio.

What can be done about it?

Nothing — so far as our radio inspectors are concerned.

It's entirely up to you.

All you can do is pray as hard as you can that the rheumatic trouble soon clears up so that the radio will do the same thing.

And pay your two dollars for the privilege.

In a country that isn't being flooded out, there are a lot of things we're supposed to be terribly thankful for.

Probably the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is one of them things.

Go to it. Get to work trying to be thankful!

Well, just the same, there is some justice in some things.

One day last week we noticed someone hoofing it down North Street under a bonnet that just glistened forth in its loveliness.

It was a dandy — 1933 model, stream-lined, no-draft ventilation, automatic spark control and all.

No Easter parade could be productive of a beautiful headpiece.

And underneath this exquisite creation was none other than our good friend Fred McCutcheon.

Fred made one trip to the barn with it on and one horse died and the other has St. Vitus dance!

They couldn't take it!

We couldn't help but ask Fred where he got it.

Not being the sort of chap who seeks publicity, Fred blushed several different shades (with gloves to match) and informed us that Mr. Clarence Rollins, Chairman of the Street Committee, (which is at present working in conjunction with our Village Council) had given it to him.

It was presented in honour of the faithful services Mr. McCutcheon had given for so many years in connection with his labours on the highways and byways of Stirling.

Fred figures that this presentation was made to keep him from telling all he knows.

At least that's what he told us.

But to us it marks, probably, the termination of a period of usefulness.

It's really just a nice way of telling him he won't be needed any more.

One man does all the local work now.

Another little bit of news is brought to us by the underground wire.

It seems that Lawrence Munro was merrily driving along the highway, just north of Springbrook with the Box Factory truck.

All of a sudden the hind end of the truck went "bang", and that was all there was to it.

It didn't go any further — just settled down in the road and stayed there.

Needless to say, Mr. Munro got out of the cab and went back to investigate.

He found that one of the rear wheels was missing.

Knowing perfectly well that at any time some part of the said vehicle is likely to fall off, he carries a extra wheel.

He put it on the truck, but no amount of searching was productive of finding that which had so suddenly and unwarrantedly taken its departure.

However, he came home with what was left.

Driving up to his home, he just turned off the switch to stop the engine (a feat which isn't very difficult at the best of times), and started for the door.

Lo, and behold! There was the wheel leaping up against a post in his front yard.

It had probably figured it could make better time on the homeward journey without the engine.

How it got there, nobody seems to know.

But the rest of the truck, as well as the driver are highly insulted.

Well, we had the Human Seal with us on Sunday.

Nice act.

While he was sitting on a cake of ice with no clothes on, eating an ice cream cone, Ed. Salisbury was standing beside him shivering so hard we were afraid Ed's underwear was going to shake itself, right off his chassis.

As well as putting on his swim suit, he staged several other so-called slight of hand acts — or something.

He could take his pants off and never lift either foot off the floor.

We came to work the next day and the boss was trying to do the same trick.

He had both feet off the floor, but the pants were still refusing to be loosened from their moorings.

The main reason being he was so interested in his feet he forgot he happened to be sitting in the trousers!

But this Human Seal went for a swim in the pool, and seemed to enjoy it.

"Doc" Carleton got so cold just from watching him, he went right home and put on a mustard plaster to keep from catching something.

He did a lot of slight of hand tricks to add to his show, too.

Among other miraculous things he did, so we are informed, was to get a free dinner at Whitehead's lunch room.

That's quite a trick in itself.

After a swim in the coolish waters at the pool we're afraid our teeth would be moving so fast we would bite the end off the fork if we attempted to eat.

But it's no wonder he can stand the cold — he spent the night in the transients' bunks under the Community Hall — he likely just took the "dip" to get warmed up.

Well folks, you should have been down at the local arena on Monday night.

"Shrub" Conley and some of the boys have got together and organized a town hockey team.

And so help me Henry it ain't so dusty!

They've got a bunch of boys together that are "going places," if they stick with the ship.

Mostly all younger chaps who have been needing a chance to get into the game and benefit by coaching and practice.

They've rounded up a bunch of lads like Frank Butler, "Heave" Morton, and two Dainards, that from where we sat appeared to be making things warm enough for the opposition. They worked hard and were effective.

The first string line of Robinson and the two Fraser boys, was real good — in fact too good for the Belleville crew.

The two Frasers never turned in a nicer performance. Those gents know what to do with a puck when they get it.

And Robinson was working just a bit over the heads of the opposition.

He went pretty well where he liked, when he liked and how he liked.

And the visiting team couldn't seem to do much about it.

There was some talk about Robinson not appearing on the Stirling line-up. But everybody's glad it was just talk.

We didn't quite figure he'd willingly be absent when the locals really need him, and need him badly.

And Don Rodgers, another forward, went well. He's got what it takes. He can carry a puck and skate. He's going to be a very helpful factor on the local lineup.

Reid was also in uniform and went well when used.

Back on defence "Bob Jones", of the High School squad, and "Jud" McGowan, of the West Huntingdon crew, gave and took plenty in the way of checks.

Both these boys played the full game and made it plenty interesting for both the spectators and incoming puck-carriers.

To us the surprise of the whole show was the work of Earl Fox in the nets for Stirling.

"Foxie" never looked better or played better even in the old days of the Trent Valley League.

He bumped, thumped, slammed, threw and batted pucks in every direction — just as handy on one end as on the other — and in general he gave to the cash customers a rip-roaring jim-dandy exhibition of goal-tending.

He spent some time on his feet, some on his knees, considerable on his stomach and a few seconds on his back.

No goal-tender could do better.

He'd have stood on his ear if the occasion had demanded it.

"Lottie" as the boys call him, was throwing out pucks faster than Bert McMullen can turn out doughnuts.

And for real fun — if you en-Joy that kind of fun — Monday night's game had everything.

Every time you looked out, in one corner or another you'd see a Belleville player with his arms around a local boy.

If the local resented these advances, he got a poke in the jaw.

Then all hand dropped sticks and gloves and the whole works would embrace each other.

To use that abominable word, that somebody has invented, it had all the earmarks of a public "necking" party.

Scraps broke out thicker on the ice than messes on a school kid.

Nothing serious.

The main thing being that the Belleville outfit was made up of fellows who used to be able to play hockey.

Players that are past their best always slow up and generally resort to illegal tactics when it is necessary to stop an incoming rush.

Sometimes these same players can't "take it" when they receive treatment of a like variety.

That's what happened Monday night — the visitors turned to tripping, slugging and butt-ending, and when they got a bit of it in return, they didn't have the to take their own medicine.

It appeared as though they were annoyed to see kids doing as well as they used to do a few years back, but can't do now — only in the way of dish up dirt.

Especially so does that apply to a defenceman named Ethier, who in reality only would need about one encounter with somebody his own size and weight on the ice to take some, if not all, the desire to "mix it up" out of him.

It isn't clever to go slapping a bunch of kids — he should be informed.

And practically all the scraps broke out in the one end of the rink —

Which digs up a secret that isn't very deeply hidden —
